Warren County program cancelled

Flu shot deaths top 30

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — The death of a Mason, Ohio dentist after receiving a swine flu immunization shot sparked cancellation of the Warren County shot program and a dispute between coroner and public health authorities about the safety of the program.

"The federal government takes products off the market that kill mice but not human beings, like saccharin, but here they are in a crash immunization program and they aren't sure it's safe," said Warren County Coroner Dr. Ralph Young.

The controversy was sparked by the death Wednesday morning of Dr. Alvin C. Erbeck, 74, less than a day after he received a shot at Montgomery, Ohio, in adjacent Hamilton County.

"You can't get flu from a flu shot," said Cincinnati Health Commissioner Dr. Arnold Leff, adding that the death was reported to the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Leff said, however, Hamilton County will continue with its program. He said more than 65,000 elderly had been immunized with no ill effects.

The Warren County Board of Health, after hearing Dr. Young, cancelled its immunization program indefinitely. It was set to start Friday.

"It is my position," said Dr. Young, "Dr. Erbeck died of acute gastroenteritis. It is of a viral nature and I can't say yes or no if there is any danger from the vaccine. National health authorities can't agree on this and I think there are too many unknown factors not to warrant caution," said Dr. Young, who said he has now decided against getting a shot himself. He said "I will also advise my patients against it. I believe it is my duty as a public official to warn the public as well."

The Warren County Board of Health cancelled its immunization plans pending an autopsy on the death of Dr. Erbeck which will be performed by the office of Hamilton County Coroner Dr. Frank Cleveland. It will take about two weeks, Dr. Young said.

"I see a man, who was in normal health, die 24 hours after receiving the immunization. I don't think we as public officials can not fail to warn the public against taking the shots until this is proven non-related," Young said.

"I won't stand behind any smoke screen. This man died of a viral infection, exact cause undetermined, and I'm waving the red flag saying the immunization program should go slow."

Warren County Medical Director Dr. Ray E. Simendinger said he felt delay was "the only prudent thing to do." However, he said "I don't think the Mason, Ohio death will substantiate anything concerning a connection with the swine flu. I feel we should hold up though, not because of a personal concern, but because we need to know if Dr. Erbeck had any past difficulties and we need to solidify our position."

Dr. Young said Erbeck's relatives reported the victim had symptoms within three hours of taking the shot. These included diarhea, chills, vomiting, headaches and fever.

Three of nine states that suspended the swine flu inoculation program have decided to resume giving shots after tests revealed no evidence that the vaccine caused the deaths of elderly persons.

But several areas reported sharp declines in the number of persons showing up Wednesday for the free inoculations. The program is designed to reach up to 200 million Americans.

There was no hesitation at the White House, however, where President Ford's personal physician, William Lukash, said the 63-year-old President would receive his shot today.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford scheduled the shot for today in an effort to persuade Americans the vaccine was safe.

Officials in Louisiana and Illinois on Wednesday ordered the resumption of their programs. Vermont authorities said immunizations would resume on Friday.

At least 33 elderly persons in 16 states — most with a history of heart trouble — are reported to have died after receiving the inoculations.

That includes three persons in the Pittsburgh area whose deaths Monday prompted nine states to suspend the program a day later.

Federal and state officials stress that there is no known connection between the $135-million vaccination program — which began Oct. 1 — and the deaths.

Other states where the program was halted were Alaska, Maine, Michigan, New Mexico, Texas — except Houston — and Wisconsin. There also were suspensions of the program in some areas of other states.

At least 21 states have yet to begin inoculations.

Food and Drug Administration officials said Wednesday they found no evidence in preliminary tests that a batch of swine flu vaccine used at a Pittsburgh-area clinic was responsible for the deaths there.

The FDA said it had completed tests of 35 vials of vaccine gathered from the Pittsburgh clinic and found no trace of foreign materials. FDA officials said they would run more tests on the samples' purity and potency in about a week.

Spokesmen for the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta repeated that "there is no evidence that the program should be curtailed in any way."

A spot check, however, showed a decrease in the number of persons lining up for shots.

In New York City, health officials said 10,000 persons showed up on Wednesday, compared with 20,000 who were inoculated Tuesday.

Pennsylvania officials said 12,803 persons were inoculated Wednesday, a drop of 11,000 from the day before. And in Florida, the director of the swine flu program in Dade County, the state's most populous, said the turnout was about one-fourth what it was on Tuesday, when more than 10,000 persons were vaccinated.

Ford, Carter seek electoral votes

New York prime target

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

New York, with 41 electoral votes, is shaping up as a prime target of both major party presidential candidates as Jimmy Carter heads into the state on the heels of a two-day visit by President Ford.

Carter was flying to New York today after spending a quiet two days at his home in Plains, Ga. It was the beginning of a three-day trip in which the Democratic presidential nominee also will touch down in Detroit, Kansas City, Mo., and Cincinnati, Youngstown and Columbus, Ohio.

Ford returned home to Washington on Wednesday night after swinging through New York City's middle-class suburbs. There he voiced saber-edged criticism of Carter and promised that a Ford administration will show "compassion for the American taxpayer."

But there was potential trouble awaiting Ford in Washington.

It was reported that the special Watergate prosecutor will decide this week whether to look into claims that Ford discussed with members of Richard Nixon's White House ways of blocking an early investigation of the Watergate scandal.

And the Washington Post reported in today's editions that the Democratic National Committee is preparing to file a complaint with the Federal Election Commission about Ford's alleged use of aides and Cabinet members, who earn government salaries, for campaign duties.

Both vice presidential candidates, Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale and Republican Sen. Bob Dole, were heading for Houston, where they meet Friday night in a nationally televised debate.

Ford, at each stop on Wednesday, told his audiences that Carter wants to raise their taxes but that a Ford administration will cut taxes. At White Plains, N.Y., Ford said, "I say the middle-income taxpayer is already overtaxed, overburdened and underrepresented."

And he signed a bill extending the federal revenue-sharing program for 3½ years at a projected cost of $25.5 billion. The money goes to state and local governments.

In a statement issued in Plains, Carter said, "I am pleased that Mr. Ford has decided to sign the bill." But, he said, "I do regret that so little else has been done by this administration to ease the plight of our cities and to help restore a true federalism in our system of government."

He said Ford had vetoed legislation that would have provided needed aid to cities and states.

Meanwhile, the Ford administration announced an increase in the production loan rates for wheat and feed grains after months of rejecting farmers' pleas for such increases.

There were indications the move could aid the Ford campaign in grain-growing states where the race with

U.S. set to deport alleged war criminals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Karlas Detlavs says he was aware back in 1941 that Nazi soldiers were rounding up Jews for the concentration camps in his native Latvia.

By his own account, Detlavs did little. "How do you help? If you help the Jews the Nazis will put you in the concentration camps, too," he said Wednesday.

The U.S. government has other thoughts about Detlav's activities in Latvia. Wednesday, it announced the beginning of deportation proceedings against him and two other men it says helped the Nazis kill hundreds of Jews in Latvia and Lithuania during World War II.

Named by the government were Boleslavs Maikovskis, 72, of Mineola, N.Y., a Latvian native; Bronius Kaminskas, 73, a native Lithuanian of Hartford, Conn.; and Detlavs, 65, of Baltimore. The three were charged with illegally entering the United States after the war by lying about their wartime activities.

The charges were part of a new campaign aimed at resolving the allegations against some 77 people in the United States accused of being war criminals. If the government succeeds, it will mark the first time alleged Nazi war criminals have been deported and forced to leave the country.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service will hold three separate hearings Nov. 15 when the three individuals will have to show cause why they should not be deported. The central issue at these hearings will be whether they lied when they entered the country.

If deported, the three would simply be forced to leave the country. They could be subject to prosecution by another country if they entered that country's jurisdiction.

The government in 1973 allowed the extradition of Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan of Queens, N.Y., to West Germany, where she is awaiting trial for murder. But she was not deported, a process where the U.S. government begins the process of forcing a person to leave, while extradition results from the initiative of a foreign government.

There was no direct indication by the government of how the accusations against the three were lodged or by whom. But a lawyer for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, James Vincent, has just returned from Israel, where he gathered eyewitness accounts of atrocities for use in the new government campaign.

Maikovskis in 1965 was convicted in absentia of war crimes and sentenced to death by a Soviet tribunal in Riga. At that time, American authorities refused Soviet requests for his extradition.

Kaminskas was charged with participating in shooting about 60 children near the Medziolkalnis Woods in Lithuania in September 1941.

Governor slates appearance here

Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes will be appearing in Washington C.H. at 3:45 p.m. today at the Fayette County Courthouse.

Robert L. Brubaker, chairman of the Fayette County Republican central committee, said the appearance by the governor will be informal and there will be no speech. The public is invited.

Bolivia jet crash toll tops 100

SANTA CRUZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia began three days of national mourning today for more than 100 of its people killed when a chartered American cargo jet plowed through a street crowd and into a group of young soccer players at practice.

The three American crewmen of the Boeing 707 were also killed.

At least 100 Bolivians were hospitalized, a government spokesman said, "and there are injured who are hovering between life and death."

He said at least half the victims were children.

The spokesman reported 84 bodies, including those of the Americans, had been identified.

Officials said it was the worst aviation disaster in Bolivia's history. President Hugo Banzer flew to Santa Cruz, 350 miles southeast of La Paz, ordered three days of national mourning and said he would lead the funeral procession Thursday morning.

The four-engine jet was owned by Jet Power Inc. of Miami and was chartered to a Bolivian firm, Lloyd Aerero Boliviano. After delivering oil well machinery and other cargo from Houston, it had just taken off empty at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday from the airport on the edge of the city when it faltered.

"People at the scene said they heard an explosion before it fell and saw fire in one of the motors on the left wing," a Bolivian air force officer told reporters.

The plane clipped the tops off several big trees, demolished a corner of the Julio Gutierrez primary school, mowed down a line of people buying kerosene from a street vendor on Avenida de Ejercito, and crashed into a practice field outside the municipal soccer stadium where a number of people were watching two boys' teams scrimmaging.

The pupils at the school were home for lunch, but the caretaker, his wife and three children were in the building and were killed, an air force official said.

Another official said about 50 people were killed in the kerosene line, about 40 were killed on the soccer field, and eight boys were suffocated in a locker room of the stadium by smoke from the burning plane.

Debris and bodies were strewn across the soccer field.

"All those people were destroyed, burned, mutilated," a witness said. "It was like a scene from Dante. There were screams from the burned people."

Jet Power Inc. said the three crewmen were Capt. Charles Baldwin, a former airline pilot; first officer Lee Marsh; and flight engineer Leslie Bennett. All were from the Miami area.

An air force officer said the plane's instruments indicated that one of the engines on the left wing failed. The "black box" flight recorder was recovered and turned over to investigators.

Share totals $26,779

City Council accepts compromised tax rate

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

A resolution accepting amounts and rates as determined by the Fayette County Budget Commission following a compromise reached this week on an unlevied tax was adopted Wednesday night by Washington C.H. City Council.

In essence, City Council agreed to accept $26,779 as its share of a three-tenths of a mill tax which will be levied by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners.

The Fayette County Budget Commission Wednesday received approval from the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals to reconvene and adjust the tax rate for 1977 to include the three-tenths of a mill tax on the county duplicate.

Earlier this year the Fayette County Board of Commissioners decided not to impose the full 3.0 mills of inside operating millage and by a joint agreement between the commissioners and the county budget commission only 2.7 mills were levied for county operations in 1977.

A political advertisement by Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford last week criticized the action and it was discovered the three-tenths of a mill tax belonged to the city.

The discovery resulted in negotiations between city and county officials and an agreement was reached to have the county levy the tax and reimburse the city a total of $26,779.

Under the agreement reached, the local government distribution formula will be changed in order that this city will receive a 48 per cent share. The city formerly received 39.87 per cent of the funds which are provided from the state based on the amount of sales tax generated by each county.

Dumford and City Manager George H. Shapter were applauded by City Council members for their efforts in obtaining the tax revenue.

"I'd like to thank Bucky for bringing to the attention of the county auditor this oversight on the millage," said Council member James Ward.

Council member Ralph L. Cook said, "I's like to thank George (Shapter) for pursuing this tax thing." Council finance chairman Mrs. Bertha McCullough added that she believed the city manager "did a very excellent job."

She and Shapter attended an emergency meeting of the budget commission to negotiate the city's share of the three-tenths of a mill tax. Countywide, the tax is expected to produce $51,000 and the city first requested a $35,000 share.

But, Shapter added a word of caution despite the added tax revenue to be received by the city.

"Even though we'll be receiving some $26,000, we still need the two levies we have on the ballot.

The city has two one-mill levy renewals on the November 2 general election ballot. The levies are earmarked for street maintenance and operation of the Washington C.H. Fire Department.

Additional coverage of Wednesday night's regular Washington C.H. City Council meeting can be found on page 14 of today's edition.

Millage to be imposed

Budget commission re-establishes tax

The Fayette County Budget Commission met Wednesday to re-establish tax rates and local government money distributions to the city and county.

The commission voted unanimously to assess the three-tenths of a mill tax formerly dropped from the county duplicate. It will now be imposed on all Fayette County residents as it has been in past years.

The action came in a lengthy collection of "whereas" and "therefore." Essentially, the commission was faced with allowing the county to levy the tax in accordance with an agreement reached between city and county officials or levying it against city residents only.

After the county elected not to collect the millage for 1977, it was determined that the city had the right to impose it on its residents. Had the city done so, the county would have lost the opportunity to levy the millage indefinitely.

The compromise agreement allowed the county to levy the tax while the city and county shared in the proceeds.

The city's share of local government funds was increased by $26,779 to compensate for allowing the county to levy the tax.

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners voted unanimously to accept the millage increase.

Wednesday night, City Council accepted its tax rate for 1977.

Hot dog man in the soup

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Charges are pending in two cities against a 24-year-old businessman who revolutionized lunchtime on the streets of downtown Columbus with pushcart hot dog stands.

Z. Felix Szymanski, whose All-American Hot Dog Corp. operates from gaily decorated stands in downtown Columbus, is charged with two counts of passing bad checks in an indictment returned Tuesday by the Franklin County Grand Jury.

The corporation was also named in the indictment.

Meanwhile, arrest warrants have been issued in Philadelphia for Szymanski and five other officers of the Ohio corporation for theft, deceptive business practices, bad checks and criminal conspiracy. The Columbus firm has been named in a separate warrant.

Representatives of the Philadelphia district attorney's office will travel to Columbus this week to make arrests, according to Eugene Boggia, assistant district attorney in charge of the investigation.

The men allegedly solicited five Philadelphia investors to contribute between $3,250 and $3,500 each for hot dog carts that were to have been operated during Bicentennial activities this summer.

No All-American hot dog carts have appeared on Philadelphia streets so far, despite the completion of most of the city's Bicentennial activities, Boggia said.

Secret U.S. arms system sale near

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's decision to supply Israel with a major new infrared night-fighting system collides with long-standing opposition by U.S. military men who contend such advanced technology should be withheld from other countries.

In this case, it appears that only a few senior Pentagon officials knew in advance that approval would be given to sell the Israelis the system, which still is under development.

It was not known whether Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, or any other members of the JCS were consulted beforehand.

There were strong indications that disclosure of the agreement to provide Israel with additional weapons and other military equipment was premature. Word was dropped by Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon during a picture-taking session in Ford's office Monday and then confirmed by the White House.

State Department spokesman Robert L. Funseth described the new arms decision as routine and said it grew out of an "ongoing relationship" between the United States and Israel.

Pentagon sources said U.S. military men have opposed, with limited success, the provision of certain weapons and other gear representing advanced technology to Israel for fear it might fall into Arab hands in battle and then reach the Soviet Union.

American military men are especially anxious to safeguard technology that they believe gives the United States a head start of five to ten years over the Soviet Union.

The FLIR (acronym for Forward-Looking Infrared) system promised to Israel falls in this category, sources said.

FLIR uses heat-sensitive infrared sensors instead of radar to detect targets in the dark. Pilots of F4 and F111 fighterbombers will use it, together with laser-guided bombs and missiles, against tanks, bunkers, enemy aircraft and other targets.

One specialist, calling FLIR "spectacular," said target images shown on a screen in a plane's cockpit are as clearly visible as in daylight.

Unlike radar, such heat-sensing devices are jam-proof. Infrared sensors also are impervious to interference from dust clouds, such as might be stirred up in desert warfare.

The FLIR system reportedly will not be ready for installation on U.S. warplanes for several years. It is uncertain when the Israelis would get theirs.

Red China leaders hold big powwow

TOKYO (AP) — Leaders of the Chinese Communist party are believed meeting in Peking to back up Premier Hua Kuofeng's purge of radical party leaders and perhaps to prepare the formal announcement of his elevation to chairman of the party, Japanese press reports from the Chinese capital said today.

Kyodo news agency reported that scores of limousines were parked Wednesday night at the Great Hall of the People, the Chinese party's central meeting hall. The report said traffic control in the area was strengthened, and that police were patrolling adjacent streets.

There was speculation that Hua had called the Communist party Central Committee together to endorse his reported arrest last weekend of Chiang Ching, Mao Tse-tung's firebrand widow, and some 30 other leading party radicals.

There was no confirmation from the Hsinhua news agency, Peking Radio or other official Chinese organs that a party meeting was in progress. Nor was there any official confirmation of the purge.

However, Japanese correspondents reported that photographs of Chiang Ching and the other three leading radical members of the party Politburo — Shanghai leader Wang Hungwen, Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao and ideologist Yao Wen-yuan — were no longer on sale in the city. This was another indication that the widespread reports of the purge were true, since photographs of disgraced leaders usually disappear quickly.

The power struggle between moderate and radical leaders that has been going on in China for years was intensified by the death in January of Premier Chou En-lai. Radicals blocked the advancement of First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-peng, Chou's choice for his successor, and succeeded in having him purged. But Hua, 57, who was named premier and first vice chairman of the party, was considered a compromise choice whose leanings in the power struggle were not clear.

As first vice chairman, Hua has been acting head of the party since Mao's death Sept. 9, and wall posters in Peking last week said he had been named chairman. Foreign correspondents in Peking reported this week that a spokesman for the Chinese Foreign Ministry confirmed the poster report and said the formal announcement would be made after the entire party organization had been informed.

President cleared in Michigan probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate prosecutor Charles Ruff today cleared President Ford of any wrongdoing in connection with campaign finances in his home county while he was in Congress.

"The matter has now been closed, and counsel for the President has been so advised," Ruff said in a two-page statement issued to reporters.

Ruff said FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley on July 13 alerted the Justice Department to "information concerning alleged misuse of political contributions" by Ford during the period from 1964 to early 1974.

That information "concerned a previously unreported allegation that political contributions from certain named unions had been transmitted to political committees in Kent County, Mich., with the understanding that they would be passed on to Mr. Ford for his personal use," the statement said.

Ruff identified the source on the allegation only as "an individual who had recently become aware of the underlying information."

He said the individual took the allegation to an FBI agent.

As actress, Liz Ray makes good typist

ST. CHARLES, Ill. (AP) — Elizabeth Ray made her stage debut playing a movie sex goddess with a pink towel as part of her wardrobe. Some critics thought another towel should have been thrown in after the first act.

Miss Ray, who starred in the Washington sex scandals last June, launched a hoped-for acting career Wednesday night in a 21-year-old comedy that was racy for its time — "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter."

The 33-year-old former secretary was the one who brought down Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, by claiming that he placed her on his congressional payroll as a typist when her real duties were sexual.

After the performance, she confided in her dressing room that she had been very nervous in the first act.

"If you were on a rubbing table with nothing on but a towel, you would be nervous, too," she said. "But after the first act, my nervousness seemed to wear off.

"Most of all I was afraid I would lose that towel, and also 70 per cent of my lines were in that first act."

Miss Ray had the fringe benefit of a fine supporting cast as she tripped almost birdlike across the small stage of Pheasant Run Theater, 40 miles west of Chicago.

Several times she flubbed her lines, and at other times she was barely audible. One of the biggest laughs from the curious playgoers came when she sat down and tried to use a typewriter.

The theater was far from a sellout, with only about two-thirds of the 450 seats filled.

Miss Ray throughout had trouble keeping her long blonde hair out of her eyes. And she brought another laugh when she got off the rubbing table and said in her high, little voice, "I'm just terrible in bed. Everybody says so."

One critic was heard to mutter, "She should have stood in bed."

Miss Ray's role as Rita Marlowe was created for the late Jayne Mansfield about a blonde sex symbol movie star who fancies herself a deep thinker. Miss Ray seemed to sum it up several days ago in an interview when she said, "Without skills, it's hard to make a living."

The play is scheduled for a one-month run.

Ford sets News meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will hold a televised news conference tonight to comment on closing of the Watergate special prosecutor's probe of his congressional campaign finances and to field questions over that and other issues, the White House announced.

There was no other immediate response from Ford to special prosecutor Charles Ruff's announcement that he is closing the books on the investigation of contributions to Ford's congressional campaign committees in Michigan.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the President requested that his 7:30 p.m. EDT news conference be carried live by television and radio networks.

Ford probably will make an opening statement that will focus on the conclusion of the probe, and then field questions, Nessen said.

Ford has not held a formal news conference in the capital since last Feb. 17. Tonight's session was to be held in the Executive Office Building next to the White House.

Nessen said Ruff notified the President's counsel, Philip Buchen, by letter Wednesday night about his decision to end the investigation.

The unexpected news conference caused a half-hour postponement in a black-tie dinner the White House has scheduled tonight to honor dancer-choreographer Martha Graham.

Cold front, winds in northeast

By The Associated Press

A cold front that became active when it reached the Northeast produced showers and thundershowers over the Great Lakes region and the north Atlantic states before ending early today.

Thunderstorm gusts reached 62 miles an hour at Elmira, N.Y.; 58 miles an hour at Johnstown, Pa.; and 56 miles an hour at Watertown, N.Y. Small hail fell in parts of northern Michigan, but rainfalls in the area were light in the six-hour period ending at 2 a.m. EDT today.

Precipitation elsewhere consisted of only a few light showers over the southern parts of Arizona and New Mexico, and extreme western Texas.

A sharp change in the weather was predicted for the Northwestern part of the nation today as a strong cold front from Canada barreling into the area with gusty winds. In Montana, winds have gusted to 56 miles per hour at Livingston, while winds reached 45 miles per hour at Havre.

Showers, with snow in the higher elevations, were forecast for the northern Rockies and northwestern Plains today, with temperatures falling into the 20s and lower 30s by night.

Outside of the shower areas, the only other cloudy part of the country overnight was along the Pacific coast, where some dense fog was forming. Overnight skies across the remainder of the United States ranged from clear to partly cloudy.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 76 at Key West, Fla., and Yuma, Ariz., to 24 at Craig, Colo.

The forecast for today calls for scattered showers with mostly cloudy skies and colder temperatures over Montana east of the continental divide, western North Dakota, New England and northeastern New York. A few snow flurries may be seen over northern New England and northeast New York. Elsewhere, skies will be sunny or fair. Cooler weather will spread over most of the Great Lakes region and the Ohio Valley into western New York. It will continue rather cool from the southern Rockies through most of Texas and southeast Arizona, and it will be mild in the rest of the nation.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, hesitating after the sharp swings of recent days.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped about 3 points in the early going, but gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said traders seemed uncertain whether Wednesday's rally, sharp as it was, had firmly reversed the downtrend of the previous two weeks.

Today's early prices included Philadelphia Electric, unchanged at 17½; Lawter Chemicals, down ⅝ at 8½, and Continental Oil, up ⅛ at 36⅜.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 15.95 to 948.30 after having lost 81.78 in the 11 prior sessions.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 5-2 margin on the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index rose .64 to 54.51.

Big Board volume reached 21.69 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .27 to 98.23.

Electoral votes

Carter is close, but Agriculture Department officials denied any political motivation.

Carter had issued a statement Monday calling for such increases to help farmers get loans they say they can't get in sufficient amounts under current market conditions. Acting Secretary of Agriculture John A. Knebel denied that the raises were "in response" to Carter's plea.

Meanwhile, Reps. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and John Conyers, D-Mich., both members of the House committee that voted to recommend impeaching Nixon, have asked Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff to look into the possibility that Ford lied at hearings held before he was confirmed as Nixon's vice president.

And Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking Committee, also called on Ruff to look into the matter.

The question Ruff is being asked to answer is whether Ford, as House GOP leader, acted at the behest of Nixon's White House when he helped stop an investigation of Watergate money in the fall of 1972.

Ford, who has acknowledged fighting such a probe, denied under oath during his vice presidential confirmation hearings that he had done so at the request of White House aides.

However, former Nixon aide John Dean said Richard K. Cook, a White House lobbyist, was told to seek Ford's help in blocking the probe. Dean said, "I can recall Dick coming back and telling, for example, how Jerry (Ford) was going to call a meeting of the minority members ... and really tell them what they should do on the day of the vote and how they should hold together and things of this nature."

Cook, now a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. executive, said, "despite John Dean's repeated and frantic requests, I never spoke with Mr. Ford" about blocking the probe. Cook said, "There is no question in my mind that the President told the truth" at confirmation hearings.

Meanwhile, Jesse M. Calhoon, president of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, said Wednesday the relationship between his union and Ford "has been on the highest moral and ethical level."

Calhoon, subpoenaed in a grand jury probe of Ford's political finances, which was also launched by Ruff, said he has no reason to believe Ford misused donations from his union.

He said his union donated $12,000 to Ford's congressional races in 1968, 1970 and 1972, but that the union gave Ford no other funds.

CBS chief suddenly quits post

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

Just 15 months after his powerful boss said he'd be "greatly pleased to have him as my successor," Arthur R. Taylor, 41, abruptly quit his $480,000-a-year job as president of CBS Inc.

Industry observers were surprised by his unexpected decision Wednesday to leave the billion-dollar conglomerate he's headed since 1972. He disclosed neither his future plans nor reasons for leaving. CBS declined to say why he resigned.

But it said his decision in no way involved CBS-TV's poor ratings this season or the controversial "family viewing" concept for early-evening shows he initiated and the networks adopted in September 1975.

A knowledgeable industry source attributed Taylor's departure to a personality clash between the handsome young executive and his strong-willed boss, CBS board chairman William S. Paley, 75.

Paley went to great lengths in July 1975 to rebut an article in "New York" magazine that mentioned "a strong rumor" that he and Taylor "aren't hitting it off" together.

"Absolute nonsense," Paley said in a statement then. "As I have said before and as I have been quoted in the press, Arthur Taylor and I have a very good relationship and I would be greatly pleased to have him as my successor."

Paley, declining to comment on Taylor's sudden resignation, praised him in a statement Wednesday, and tersely added:

"We understand and appreciate his decision to make other plans for his future. We wish him the very best."

CBS said Taylor, an investment banker who rose to executive vice president at International Paper Co. before joining CBS, turned in his resignation shortly before a CBS board meeting Wednesday.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHRBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "announcer" on the "Lohman and Barkley" TV comedy show here looked awfully familiar. No matter that he did an Ed McMahon-style introduction entirely in Japanese.

He later did an entire Henny Youngman routine of one-liners in Japanese. I fell down laughing each time, then suddenly realized: That's Jack Soo.

Soo, as "Barney Miller" fans know, is the deadpan, middleaged Japanese-American who brews the bad coffee on the show.

Inquiries were made, and it turns out that Soo, born in Oakland, Calif., didn't start in show business as an actor. He started as a singer, then became a comic and finally an actor.

"That routine you saw was part of my old, old act," he said with a laugh. "I did it maybe 25-30 years ago, but always in English. This was the first time I did it in Japanese, even the punch lines."

Soo's comedy career began in 1941, when he ran out of tunes he knew and had to pad his act with jokes while sharing the bill with a stripper at a club in Watsonville, near Ft. Ord., Calif.

The career was interrupted by a shameful part of U.S. history when, after Japan's Pearl Harbor attack, he became one of thousands of Japanese-Americans the government uprooted from their West Coast homes and put in internment camps for most of the war.

Soo — whose real name is Suzuki — spent two years at Camp Topaz, Utah. He doesn't like to discuss his memories of those years. But he says he was in a concentration camp, not an internment camp.

"I'd just started what I loved. I felt my life had ended right there," he added. But things took a turn for the better.

He was released shortly before war's end. He wound up in Cleveland, hired as a part-time barkeep, part-time singer in a Chinese restaurant owned by a gent by the name of Mr. Chin.

"He was a very kind man," Soo recalled. He said the owner knew he was of Japanese descent and advised him to change his name from Suzuki to Soo. This was done, and Jack's career resumed.

"The funny part of the thing is that the boss told all his Chinese employes that this 'Chinese fellow' never learned to speak Chinese because he came from Iowa and there were no Chinese around."

Soo edged back into show business, joining Joey Bishop in 1949 as the latter's straight man, then worked clubs on his own. He got his big break in 1959 in Broadway's "Flower Drum Song."

A good agent helps in Hollywood, but Soo became a regular in the hit "Barney Miller" because he helped a fellow comic "with the lousiest night-club act in the world" change a flat tire 28 years ago on a cold morning before dawn in Springfield, Ill.

"He also borrowed ten bucks from me," Soo recalled. "I wouldn't let him pay me back because I wanted him to be obligated to me the rest of his life.

"So when we parted, he says, 'Someday I'm going to be a writer-producer and you're gonna work for me.' And I said, 'Oh yeah, sure.'"

The comic was a guy named Danny Arnold. He now happens to be executive producer of "Barney Miller."

Ohio University enrollment rises

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University reports enrollment on the Athens campus has increased for the first time in five years. Preliminary figures place enrollment at 13,809, up 5 per cent from the 1975-76 school year.

Provost Neil Bucklew said the most encouraging part of the report showed a 16 per cent increase in enrollment of freshmen.

Women's liberation reaches bookstores

By GWEN FLORIO
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — "A Mind of Your Own" is one bookstore where little girls don't play with dolls and Mommy isn't always home while Daddy works.

Instead, the children's books the store carries picture girls with wrenches or fixing pipes. Boys do the cooking.

"We tried to choose books that offered children more options," said Bill Anderson, a day-care worker who volunteers at the nonprofit store.

"They show that girls don't have to be just mothers, or some man's possession," he said in an interview. "And there are books that show little boys crying or playing with dolls, all in a very positive light."

Judy Brunk, head of the board of directors that runs the store, said, "We also carry books dealing with problems children go through, such as death or living with a single parent.

"There was a need for an alternative bookstore in Des Moines to provide books people couldn't get in other stores, especially children's literature."

In selecting books, staffers look for those that don't stereotype women and for books written by women about their experiences, said Joyce Drury, coordinator of elderly services for Iowa Children and Family Services.

The store carries a wide selection of fiction and poetry. It also offers medical and sociological literature, with books on natural childbirth, abortion and battered wives.

But children's books are the fastest-selling, said Ms. Drury.

So far, customers have reacted favorably to the store, she said. "A lot come in just to visit, and to talk about the women's movement."

None of the nearly 50 men and women involved in the bookstore have been in the business before, said Ms. Brunk. Each of them contributed $50 or 50 hours of work to help get the store opened three weeks ago. Day-to-day affairs are handled by a 12-person policy-making board.

One of the responsibilities of a county commissioner is that he be qualified to handle the tax payers money in an efficient manner. I would point out that I helped make balanced county budgets for a period of twelve years, when we did not have the luxury of receiving $220,000 per year of revenue sharing money. My opponent would have you believe that his presence in the commissioner's office assures you of reduced spending. A close look at the county general fund appropriations over the past five years will dispel this theory. Appropriation is the approval to spend.

YEAR	COMMISSIONER	APPROPRIATION
1972	Dumford	$670,385.
1973	Perrill	$695,906.
1974	Perrill	$789,927.
1975	Perrill	$804,935.
1976	Perrill	$888,347.

The above figures represent an increase of 32.5 per cent or a total of $217,961 over a four year period. The above does not include any highway expenditures.

Indifference to the dream

The New York News' fine commemorative publication in magazine format, "Op Sail," beautifully recalls that halcyon time last July 4 when the tall ships graced New York harbor. A succession of remarkable color photographs refresh memories of the noble parade of sailing vessels which echoed the period of our nation's founding.

One is moved to remember the galaxy of events, not only in New York but across our land, which climaxed celebration of the Declaration of Independence two centuries before. These are happy recollections of a day when the American people praised their heritage of freedom in joyous community of spirit.

Events since Independence Day of this Bicentennial year give less cause for rejoicing. Indications of apathy and indifference toward the presidential and congressional campaigns suggest that a great many Americans who celebrated the origins of their democracy have forgotten its contemporary worth.

They seem also to have forgotten their responsibility as citizens - their obligation, and privilege, to take part in the electoral process. Though the Ford-Carter debates have attracted large television audiences, millions of otherwise eligible citizens have not even registered to vote. Political scientists and samplers of public opinion are forecasting that for the first time in well over a century fewer than half of the electorate will go to the polls.

The tall ships symbolized a time of greatness when a brilliant array of men devoted to the cause of liberty established the conditions for its nurture on our continent. Will the American people, on this election day 200 years later, but feebly exercise their right of choice - will they thus do the Founding Fathers the signal dishonor of indifference to the dream they cherished? We fear that it may be so.

A WORD EDGEWISE .... By John P. Roche

Anybody have a good crisis?

Extremely reliable Washington sources indicate that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has been issued his flying orders: Settle a Crisis by Nov. 2. Probably Mr. Ford and his political advisors hoped the media would string along — at least through Election Day — with the party line that Super K "solved" the Rhodesian confrontation. But as more and more journalists escaped from Kissinger's spell and began to check the facts, it became apparent that nothing had emerged except a meeting from which — predictably — a deadlock will emerge.

True, the President can claim that his Administration "solved" the Arab-Israeli confrontation, but that has a rather hollow ring to it. What has happened recently is that the Syrians have taken time out to dispose of the wild cards — the Palestinian guerrillas. Israel has been given a breathing spell, but no indications of a long-term settlement.

In fact, one can argue that Syrian consolidation of power in Lebanon would close the semicircle around Israel. And intelligence reports indicate that the Egyptians have dug three huge tunnels under the Suez Canal — perhaps to accommodate increasing camel traffic?

Meanwhile, back in Washington, the General Accounting Office has issued a most embarrassing report on the Mayaguez Affair — which all hands had considered dead and buried. The central accusation is that the President knew the Cambodians were prepared to release the ship and crew in time to stop the costly rescue. Allegedly, at 6:07 a.m. on May 15, 1975, U.S. monitors picked up a statement by Cambodian Minister of Information Hu Nim that release was in the works, and Kissinger so informed the President at 7, but the strike was not aborted.

What bothers me about this is not that it may be true, but that in Oct. 1976, people will forget the atmosphere of May, 1975. If you were President and Kissinger dashed in with the news — in May, 1975 — that the Cambodian Communists were offering a peaceful solution to the Mayaguez seizure, what would your reaction be? After all, Kissinger had brough word in 1973 that the North Vietnamese were committed to a peaceful solution of the war — and in May, 1975, Hanoi's troops were dominating the South. Probably this was just another trick to get the ship's crew out of reach before we could react — and who the hell was Hu Nim?

In any event, the President needs a foreign policy triumph, and the State Department is on crisis alert. Rocketing up to the 7th floor are reports from all the regional bureaus on crisis possibilities. The first on the agenda was apparently Cyprus — if the Secretary could talk the Turks into some minor border concessions, or convince the media that he had, it might hold until Nov. 2 and delight Greek-American voters. The big problem here is that the Turks are not sophisticated enough to go along with a charade for Ford's benefit — the first rumor of Turkish concessions would go off like a bomb in Ankara.

What about Latin America? Well, Bolivia is trying to gain access to the sea from Chile and Peru. Perhaps instant diplomacy could resolve that? Hold it — this would involve negotiations with the Pinochet regime in Chile which is on the black-list of all right-thinking people.

Then there are the Guatemala-Belize argument over the "ownership" of the latter Central American state, the Honduras-Salvador "football war," and the British-Argentine dispute over the political fate of the Falkland Islands. . . pretty small pickings. Who but stamp collectors ever heard of Belize or the Falkland Islands? And a headline such as "Ford Ends Football War" could lead to inquiries whether he wore a helmet. Too bad that the Johnson Administration ended our Mexican border. dispute. Scrub Latin America.

Maybe there is some action in Western Europe? There the Secretary might get some cooperation. What about that long-festering feud between France and Britain over the Channel Islands — were they, or were they not retroceded to France with the Duchy of Normandy in the 12th or was it the 13th century? A summit with Jim Callaghan and Valery Giscard d'Estaing on the status of Jersey and Guernsey might raise our negotiating stock. Oh, no! It would sound like a session about cows. Perhaps the best thing to do is advertise: Have solution, will travel — and have somebody check, fast, the Tamil minority crisis in Sri Lanka.

The Treaty of Ft. Stanwix in the Mohawk Valley in New York in 1768 fixed the boundaries of Indian lands in Ohio. About 3,400 Indian warriors assembled for the conference. From the eastern end of Lake Ontario the line ran southerly to the Delaware River then west to the Allegheny River, down the Allegheny and to the Ohio and hence to the Tennessee. The Indians ceded all lands east and south of that line for goods and silver worth more than 20,000 English pounds. — AP

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Do not wait for opportunities to materialize "out of the blue." Seek them out yourself. A period for exercising your lively imagination and your good judgment.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

You may feel the weight of pressure in certain job issues. Don't try to force your own views. Listen — and learn. Superiors will be impressed.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

A minor flirtation could be a pleasant diversion, but don't let it take your mind off your work. There's much to be accomplished — profitably.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Fine lunar influences. You can take to the high road enthusiastically; pursue worthwhile objectives with a good measure of attainment. Romance also favored.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Aspects are generous, but you will accomplish much more through teamwork than by going it alone. This is often difficult for the Leoite but, at times, it has its merits.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Good judgment needed now. Where a project is pending, try to force the pace if it will prevent loss of time or assets. Otherwise, you can "play it by ear."

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Don't consider first thoughts only, nor first impressions. You could be mistaken about motivations, indications, meanings. Give all the benefit of the doubt.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

You may run into snags or obstacles — but you can handle them well. Pep up an old idea, keep your vision broad. Think over past experiences — and profit by them.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Jupiter influences extremely generous. A day in which to exercise your keen faculties and capitalize on your wealth of talents. Business matters especially favored.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Be careful not to mix friends and finances now. Arguments, mistrust on either side would be a distinct possibility. In order respects, day should go well.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

You may face some inconveniences but the result will justify them and will compensate if you handle situations maturely. Broaden your mental horizons, perk up enthusiasm.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Stellar influences suggest that you expand — within reason. Tread cautiously in new areas but go forward confidently on familiar paths. Progressive ideas stimulated.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with lofty ambitions, unusual practicality and efficiency and a fine gift of logic. You are devoted to home and family, but are not always demonstrative in your affections. This sometimes hurts, so try to let loved ones know that you care. Your versatility is outstanding and the fields from which you could choose a successful career are almost limitless. In the art world, you could shine as writer, poet, playwright, designer or musician; in the professions, choose law, diplomacy, statesmanship or medicine. If business appeals, banking and real estate are your best bets.

Mysterious illness remains unsolved

By TOM JOURNEY
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Health officials are still puzzled by a mysterious illness that swept an electrical controls factory here more than a month ago, affecting 13 per cent of the work force.

However, the plant has no connection with two plants in Pennsylvania where workers have complained of similar symptoms, said Earl Reeg, personnel manager for Robertshaw Controls Co.'s Acro division, which has its headquarters in Richmond, Va.

In all three cases workers complained of nausea, headaches, stomach pains and breathing difficulties.

In Pennsylvania, Essex International Co. furloughed 300 employes at its electronics plant in Kittanning, Pa. after 100 of them got sick. Health authorities also were looking for the cause of a similar illness that struck 70 employes of the RolaJensen plant in Punxsutawney in September.

The Ohio plant was closed four times from Aug. 25 to Sept. 8.

"We have been unable to determine any cause-and-effect relationship," said Dr. George Shadle, head of the Ohio health department's division of occupational safety.

"All the tests were honestly negative," he said. "I feel we've gone as far as we can go. To the best of our knowledge...we can't consider it of bacterial or viral origin."

Tests were conducted on water supplies, pesticides used on lawns surrounding the plant, pipes and propane tanks, among other possibilities, Shadle said.

The propane leak looked promising as the source until it was repaired and workers still got sick.

However, DeWitt Huffman, industrial hygiene engineer, said abnormally high concentrations of methyl alcohol, freon and acetone were found at different times in the plant.

Those chemicals alone or in combination might have caused the illnesses, but adequate ventilation would prevent sickness, he said.

Reeg said 10 or 15 employes quit because of the illness. But he said he's satisfied the plant is safe.

Betty Shipe was one of the lucky ones who didn't get sick at the Robertshaw plant in Columbus. She was working the day shift Aug. 25 when she heard rumors that other employes were getting sick.

The grapevine, as it turned out, was all too accurate.

"It was about 11 o'clock when they told us how many were sick and told us to come out of the factory," she recalls. "We were really surprised when we did go out to see how many did go to the hospital."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The Other woman tells her side

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from HIS WIFE who wrote an open letter to all women who were in love with a married man. I hope you will give me equal space to respond:

DEAR WIFE: He has never told me you are a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) or that you have neglected him sexually. Instead he speaks only in glowing terms of you, how you stood by him in rough years, through all the difficult times.

There is no talk of divorce. I know I will never see him on Sundays or holidays. I don't call him at home. We meet at hotels since there are teenagers at my place. Yes, I sometimes spend more on him-on transportation, gas for the car, whatever. But we do not measure our relationship in money. And I insist he not buy me gifts.

I know how you feel about social status, financial security and retirement income. I ended my loveless, unhappy marriage without regard to such things. I love your husband; and we share a need for each other that has nothing to do with your set of values. But because your husband is a good man and would never hurt you, I know we will probably never be together.

I never went after your husband; he pursued me, because I recognized his pain and bewilderment; his triumphs and delights, in a way you have forgotten or belittled. He needed to be actively loved, or I would not be a part of his life.

THE OTHER WOMAN

DEAR ABBY: I beg to differ with you when you state that a girl can tell if a man is married because she never sees him on weekends or holidays.

I went with Rob for 14 months and he was with me morning, noon and night every day of the week. And last Christmas he came to my house at 9 in the evening and stayed until 10 the next morning until after the kids had opened their gifts. Then he left, saying he had to go to a family dinner. He came back again at 7 that evening and left at 6 the next morning.

When my little boy had an operation, Rob stayed at the hospital with me all day and night. Finally, on New Year's Eve, I learned he was married when we ran into some people who knew his wife.

He confessed it was true, and said he and his wife didn't sleep together but she didn't believe in divorce. I figured if he treated her that way, he'd eventually treat me that way, too, so I kicked him out. Why would a woman want to hang on to a louse like that?

STILL SINGLE AND LOOKING

DEAR STILL LOOKING: Because she probably figures she's better off with him than without him. I think he showed his "lousiness" more by lying to you about his marital status than by seeking satisfaction outside marriage to a woman who refuses to sleep with him but refuses to divorce him.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Oct. 14, the 288th day of 1976. There are 78 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1066, Normans under William the Conqueror defeated the English at the Battle of Hastings.

On this date —

In 1644, the founder of Pennsylvania, William Penn, was born in London.

In 1890, the 34th president of the United States, Dwight Eisenhower, was born in Denison, Tex.

In 1933, Germany announced it would withdraw from the League of Nations.

In 1944, in World War II, British and Greek troops liberated Athens from German occupation forces.

In 1947, U.S. Air Force Captain Charles Yeager tested a rocket-powered research airplane in California and became the first person to fly faster than sound.

In 1964 the American black leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

Ten years ago: An early fall blizzard swept over Wyoming and Eastern Colorado, isolating cities, blocking highways and leaving at least four people dead.

Five years ago: Dr. Earl Sutherland of Vanderbilt University won the Nobel Prize for Physiology and Medicine for his research on hormones.

One year ago: The Ford Administration said it had devised a plan to protect the rights of Americans while continuing effective intelligence operations.

Today's birthdays: Writer Arthur Schlesinger Jr. is 59. Pianist Gary Graffman is 48.

Thought for today: You can't hold a man down without staying down with him. — Booker T. Washington, American educator, 1856-1915.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Continental Congress in Philadelphia sent funds to New York to pay a bounty to all American soldiers who would reenlist for the length of the Revolutionary War.

Matches did not come into use in Ohio until about 1835. The earliest "lucifers" or sulphur sticks had to be dipped into a vial of prepared liquid to ignite, and they were not always dependable. —AP

Bank appoints new board member, executive officer

NEW HOLLAND — A new member of the board of directors and chief executive officer have been named at the First National Bank in New Holland.

Mrs. Jane Bryan, 3366 White Road, near New Holland, has been appointed as a member of the board of directors. Mrs. Bryan, a graduate of Washington High School who attended Ohio University, succeeds her late husband, Joseph V. Bryan, former bank president and director, who died September 5.

Richard Kirkpatrick, of New Holland, has been elected by the board of directors to serve as the bank's chief executive officer until the annual meeting in January.

Other members of the board of directors are McKinley Kirk, Paul Peck, Earl Arnold and Dr. John Louis.

Bank officers are William Davidson, executive vice president; Mrs. George Hott, cashier; Mrs. Robert Green, assistant cashier; Mrs. Richard Garrison, teller, and Mrs. Bruce Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Daniel Mace, bookkeepers.

The First National Bank in New Holland was founded in 1904 and currently has assets of over $6 million.

Municipal Court

For engaging in a disorderly conduct incident at the Emerald Inn tavern recently, three Washington C.H. residents received identical sentences by Judge John P. Case during a non-traffic session Wednesday in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Rick Penwell, 22, of Columbus Ave., Timmy Penwell, 20, of Broadway St., and Randy Nichols, 25, of Warrior Court, were each found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Each was given a fine of $100 with $30 suspended on the condition that none would enter liquor selling premises for one year.

Alphus E. Crawford, 52, of 316 Fourth St., was fined $30 for disturbing the peace by intoxication.

ATTEND CONVENTION

Mr. and Mrs. David Hurley and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cruea of Scioto Vending Systems, 742 Highland Ave., attended the four-day 1976 convention-exhibit of Automatic Merchandising and Foodservice Management in Philadelphia, Pa. More than 7,000 other executives participated in the convention and looked over new equipment and products used at foodservice and vending installations. One of the keynote addresses at the convention was delivered by Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen.

Community Ed. report

By HANK SHAFFER
Program Director

Community Education will have an organizational meeting for a mixed volleyball league tonight in the Washington Middle School gym at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be to set up teams and those wishing to participate should come prepared to practice after teams are set up. Women's and men's leagues have been set up earlier in the week. Those wishing to play in either of those should phone the Community Education Office, 335-6621.

The Community Chest drive has already started and Community Education is one of the ten designated recipients of the donations. We hope that you will give whatever you are able to help our organization and the other nine worthy groups.

The swine flu vaccine will be given at a number of different locations this coming week. Unfortunately, the seminar on how it affects people and why you should take it could not be scheduled. Therefore, we urge you to call Doris Douglass at the Health Department, 335-5910, if you have any questions concerning the vaccine. The vaccine will be given at the following locations: Tuesday, Bloomingburg gym 9 to 11 a.m.; Wednesday, Jeffersonville Lions Building 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Thursday, Good Hope gym 9 to 11 a.m., and Washington Shopping Center (Scott's) 2 to 7 p.m.; Friday Washington Shopping Center (Scott's) 2 to 7 p.m.

If you have any ideas for seminars on a one night basis, please contact the Community Education office. We welcome your ideas and concerns.

Youth shooting education program begins Saturday

A new community education effort sponsored by the Washington C.H. Jaycees and the Fayette County Fish and Game Association will begin Saturday.

The two organizations will jointly sponsor and conduct a 10-week youth shooting education program for area youths between the ages of 7 and 14. Though being offered for the first time locally, the program has been promoted by the Daisy Division of the Victor Comptometer Corp. for a number of years. Conducted nationally by the Jaycees, the program which teaches proper gun handling and marksmanship has highly popular with youngsters and adults.

The initial local youth shooting education program class will consist of 16 boys and girls and will be held each Saturday from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. in the Washington C.H. Middle School gymnasium. The first group of youngsters registered for participation in the program at the National Hunting and Fishing Day event on September 26.

If the fall course progresses as expected it is anticipated that the two local sponsoring organizations will begin a second 10-week program after the first of the year.

Parents or youths interested in obtaining more information about the program should contact Clem Edwards of the Jaycees at 335-2351 or 335-0200.

Goats help fight forest fires

NICE, France (AP) — Officials in southern France are trying a new weapon to fight forest fires — goats.

In a controlled experiment, a herd of 50 goats will be used to cut firebreaks in the rugged forestland along the French Riviera which is swept by fires each summer.

Kept in line by electric fences, the goats will munch the underbrush for the next three years in a closely watched area.

Louis Perrin, a local farmer, came up with the idea.

Mel Tillis sues over commercials

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Mel Tillis, winner of this year's top country music award, says's he'll take legal action against two networks that rejected his dog food commercials because he stutters.

"It hurt my feelings and it hurt my pocketbook," Tillis said Wednesday. "It also hurts to know networks won't let people who have handicaps have employment or equal opportunities."

The commercials were rejected by executives at both the National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia Broadcasting Co., who said they felt they might offend people who stutter. The networks also said they hadn't realized who the person in the commercial was.

Tillis said his lawyer plans to file discrimination complaints with the Federal Communications Commission.

"If this isn't discrimination, I don't know what is," Tillis said. "I thought there was an all-out effort in this country to hire the handicapped."

In New York, an NBC spokesman said, "It appeared to us that if we approved this, it would appear to be making fun of people with that affliction. Nowhere was Tillis identified as the country and Western singer who actually does stutter. We had no idea it was him."

A CBS spokesman in New York said the stuttering "is so exaggerated in the commercial to the extent that we think it is inappropriate so far as our standards are concerned. It might be offensive to a certain segment of the national community, so we rejected the commercial."

Tillis was named by the Country Music Association on Monday night as the entertainer of the year — generally regarded as the highest honor in country music.

The 42-year-old entertainer has stuttered since a bout with malaria at age 3. He does not stutter when he sings.

Ex-state treasurer Don Ebright dies

PICKERINGTON, Ohio (AP) — The burial of Don H. Ebright, a state treasurer for 12 years and a candidate for governor in 1950, is scheduled for today. He was 74.

Ebright, who died Monday night in a Cleveland hospital, was treasurer from 1938 to 1950 when he ran for governor, but was defeated by Democrat Frank Lausche.

Following the loss, he joined the Union Bank of Commerce in Cleveland as a vice president, later serving as senior vice president until he retired in 1967.

Comrades meet

The Comrades of the Second Mile met in the Bloomingburg United Methodist Church for their October meeting. Mrs. Rex Bloomer gave devotions, using as her theme Faith. She read scripture from Psalms and the writings of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale. The members decided to continue their project of giving financial aid to Church Women United for the purchase of gifts for children at Christmas.

After the usual business reports, the President, Mrs. Alvin Writsel introduced Miss Elsie Forman as guest speaker for the evening. Miss Forman invited the members to accompany her on a review of her recent trip around the world. By using slides and interesting commentary, we toured Hawaii, Japan, Thailand, Nepal, Hong Kong, India, Israel, Greece, Austria and Hungary. She showed slides of the beautiful temples and gardens, and talked briefly on Buddism, Hinduism, and Shintoism, the principal religions of the far East.

Delicious seasonable refreshments were served by Mrs. Rachael Smith and Mrs. Bloomer to, Mrs. Edgar McFadden, Mrs. Dan Thompson. Mrs. Jack Sollars, Mrs. Alice Cory, Mrs. Richard Thompson, Mrs. Glenn Heistand, Mrs. Donald Denen, Mrs. Dale Thornton, Mrs. Gilbert Biddle, Mrs. Grace Iden, Mrs. Eli Craig, Mrs. Joe Giebelhouse, Mrs. Lydia Lafollette, and Mrs. Writsel.

Daughters project

The Loyal Daughters of First Christian Church met in the church social room when Mrs. Ward Brown read the article "Aspiration." Mrs. Orpha Willis presented devotions entitled "Grace". She read Scripture from Corinthians, Ephesians, Acts and Titus, and the poem, "Let Your Wish Become a Prayer" by Helen Steiner Rice. A Bible quiz was conducted and a moment of silent prayer was observed. Mrs. William Rulon gave the closing.

Mrs. Zoe Follis gave the treasurer's report for the 13 present, and each signed cheer cards for the ill and shutins. All were reminded to continue saving the grocery tapes at Ev's, a class project.

During the social hour winners of the game trivia were Mrs. Lloyd Sowders and Mrs. Ted Merritt. Refreshments were served to the 13 by Mrs. Homer Kimmey, Mrs. R.A. Wasson and Mrs. Dodothy Allen.

Tables were of a fall theme accented with Halloween jack-o-lanterns.

Zeta Upsilon plans dinner-meeting

Zeta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the home of Mrs. Don Jones Oct. 12, when various reports were made and minutes of the previous meeting read. Program booklets were distributed and discussed, with some changes made.

It was announced that a ham dinner will be served Oct. 26th in the home of Mrs. Steve Colburn, then all will go to Grace United Methodist Church for a Pledge Ritual and a Ritual of Jewels. Members are also reminded to bring old toys and games to this meeting.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Warren Huber, Mrs. Bob Snodgrass, Mrs. Robert Knecht, Mrs. Steve Lewis, Mrs. Charles Bowersox, Mrs. Doug Grugg, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Bill Tippett and Mrs. Willis Gever Jr.

PERSONALS

Plans completed by board

Junior Achievement program scheduled to open on Monday

Plans for beginning of operations of the local Junior Achievement program for the 1976-1977 school year were completed at a luncheon meeting of the organization's board of directors Wednesday in the Terrace Lounge.

Rick Stinson, president of the Junior Achievement board of directors, reported on a recruiting campaign which has been conducted at Washington Senior, Miami Trace and Greenfield McClain high schools.

The recruiting campaign netted approximately 180 potential members for the three companies which will open operations in the Junior Achievement center on N. Fayette Street next Monday.

It was also reported that besides the new members recruited there are about 30 members who participated in the program a year ago.

The Junior Achievement program will operate this year with a total of three companies.

The Armco Steel Corp. Metal Products Division plant in Washington C.H. is sponsoring one company while Mac Tools, Inc. will be sponsoring another. The Dayton Power and Light Co. and the Huntington Bank of Washington C.H. are co-sponsoring one of the companies.

Three-man advisory teams which supervise sales, production and front office operations have been selected. The Armco Steel Corp. will provide its own advisory team while the Washington C.H. Jaycee chapter will supply an advisory team for the company co-sponsored by the Dayton Power and Light Co. and the Huntington Bank. The Hoover Plastics Co. of Greenfield will provide an advisory team for the company sponsored by Mac Tools, Inc.

Stinson said the Junior Achievement organization experienced problems this year in obtaining advisory teams. He said he has contacted a number of retired businessmen in the Washington C.H. area about the possibility of them forming an advisory team for next year if the program is expanded to four companies.

Harry V. Turner, principal of Greenfield McClain High School, is a member of the Junior Achievement board of directors and another Greenfield representative is being sought to be added to the board. Greenfield McClain High School had a number of participants in the program a year ago and a large response is expected this year.

In other matters, the board heard a report on the fund-raising campaign which is presently being completed.

Robert Grim, a Miami Trace High School teacher, will be serving as manager of the Junior Achievement center this year.

Nobel Prizes awarded

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two American medical researchers and an American economist today were named for the 1976 Nobel Prizes in Medicine and Economics.

The Royal Caroline Institute announced that the medicine prize was awarded to Prof. Baruch S. Blumberg of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School and Prof. D. Carleton Gajdusek of the National Institute for Neurological Diseases at Bethesda, Md., "for their discoveries concerning new mechanisms for the origin and dissemination of infectious diseases."

The Swedish Royal Academy of Science awarded the economics prize to Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, a 64-year-old native of Brooklyn who also writes a weekly column for Newsweek magazine.

Isabel Peron eyes convent

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Former President Isabel Peron wants to leave her luxurious detention center to enter a Roman Catholic convent in Spain, according to a newspaper report.

The afternoon newspaper La Razon said the 45-year-old widow of Juan D. Peron, ousted by the armed forces in a bloodless coup last March 24, met with the vicar general of Argentina's armed forces Tuesday in the Swiss-style chalet where she has been confined since shortly after the coup.

Mrs. Peron has been charged with the misappropriation of $1 million in public funds. The money was to have gone to flood victims, but was deposited in her private bank account, government sources said.

Traffic Court

A Mount Sterling man had one of two traffic charges lodged against him dismissed Wednesday during a traffic session of Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Dennis R. Swartz, 23, of Mount Sterling, was fined $50 for failing to stop after an accident, but a charge of making an improper turn was dismissed by Judge John P. Case.

It will be increasingly warm in Ohio through Friday with a chance of rain.

A weak high pressure system centered over Missouri and extending northward will move across Ohio today, providing a mostly sunny day with temperatures in the 60s. Cloudiness will increase tonight as a low pressure system in southern Manitoba approaches the state.

Set welfare indictments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Franklin County prosecutor's office will seek indictments against 39 suspected Welfare cheaters who are current or former employes of Ohio State University.

County Atty. George C. Smith said Wednesday that the cheating came to light in an investigation by the state Department of Administrative Services.

Suspects probably will be charged with deception by failing to say they were employed when they applied for welfare venefits. His office expects to take the cases to a grand jury within 10 days, he said.

OSU is not involved in the determination of welfare eligibility of its employes, said William Merriman, the university's communications director.

Most of the employes worked in the OSU hospital in lower-level positions and were paid from $2.30 to $5.10 per hour, Smith said, and records show they received welfare aid in food stamps and Aid to Dependent Children benefits ranging from $96 to $296 per month.

Of requests for indictments against 63 persons on deception charges, 43 persons pleaded guilty and one trial ended in a conviction.

City manager reports

Police force vacancies to be filled soon

The Washington C.H. Police Department will soon start filling a number of its vacancies.

City Manager George H. Shapter Wednesday night reported that an examination for police officers eligible for the rank of sergeant will be administered by the Civil Service Commission on October 21.

Four officers presently holding the rank of police specialist have applied for the promotional examination.

Following the test and certification by the Civil Service Commission, one officer will be promoted to rank of sergeant to fill the vancy created by the retirement last December of Sgt. Virgil Harris.

Police Specialist Dennis Brown was recently promoted last week to the rank of captain following a test conducted by the Civil Service Commission. Brown fills the vancy left by Capt. Charles Foster's retirement last December.

Shapter also reported to City Council that the city has received an eligibility list for an appointment to the rank of patrolman. He said the list, as certified by the commission, contains four names.

It is anticipated that a patrolman will be appointed later this month.

The city manager also reported to city council members on a number of other topics:

STREET MARKINGS

Last week, under a contract with the state, five school crossings and five intersections in the city were marked with a new thermal plastic coating. The material was applied at temperatures in excess of 400 degrees and bonds with the street surface. The city manager said the durability of the substance is many times that of street paint markings. He added that when the current paint which still shows at the intersections wears off, the new markings will be much better appearance wise.

STREET LIGHTS

All street light fixtures which were turned off earlier this year under a budget-cutting program have been reinstated by the Dayton Power and Light Co. Shapter said the auditor's office will be refunding money to city residents who paid for steet lighting for the months of October, November and December. Shapter also said sample high-pressure sodium lights will be installed as soon as they are received.

ALLEY TRAFFIC

At two recent meetings a resident complained of speeding cars in an alley situated south of the Kroger Co. store on Clinton Ave. A request was submitted that a stop sign be placed at the cross alley in the first block south of the Kroger store. Shapter said he had checked the alley personally on numerous occasions over the past few weeks and did not observe any speeding traffic. He said there is a continuous "barn sale" in operation in the alley which could possibly be a contributing factor to the excess traffic referred to by the complaining resident. The alley will continue to be observed.

ALLEY MAINTENANCE

The city has been unable to locate an agreement concerning the maintenance of alley by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. behind the company's facility on N. North Street. Shapter said the telephone company's maintenance superintendent is convinced no such agreement exists.

SALT SPREADER

A new salt spreader has been ordered from Bill Jaeckels of Washington C.H. at a price of $1,395. The $1,300 price was the low bid of two bids received. Funds were appropriated for the purchase in the street maintenance accounts.

ZONING BOARD

The city manager again asked City Council for possible candidates to fill a vacancy on the Washington C.H. Board of Zoning Appeals.

EPA LETTER

The city manager said he had received correspondence from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency concerning the proposed construction of 12-inch storm sewers in the city's multi-million sewer improvement project. The EPA granted the authority for the 12-inch lines to be included in the project costs.

HOLIDAY CONFUSION

The city manager, at the recommendation of Council members, will be drafting a new schedule of legal holidays. Shapter said a problem surfaced during the Columbus Day holiday (Oct. 11) when parking tickets were issued during part of the day. Shapter said the city is still operating under a holiday schedule that was devised in 1962. It was pointed out that legal holidays are spelled out in the parking meter ordinance.

CURB CUT REQUEST

Owners of the Deanview Nursing Home, 719 Rawlings St., have requested a 100-foot curb cut to provide head-on parking spaces. Council's safety committee will investigate the matter since a resolution is required on all curb cuts over 25 feet. An expansion project is presently underway at the facility.

HELP OFFERED

Hank Shaffer, director of the Washington C.H. Area Community Education Program, has informed the city manager that the program would be willing to sponsor a town meeting to assist in supporting the city's two one-mill levy renewals on the November ballot.

City Council cuffnotes

City attorney post still vacant

The city has been without the services of full-time legal counsel for the past 44 days and a solution to the problem is not immenent.

City Manager George M. Shapter Wednesday night reported to City Council members that he has contacted three local attorneys about the position, but has received no replies.

The city solicitor's post has been vacant since August 31 when the resignation of Gary D. Smith became effective. Smith, 1370 Dayton Ave., had served in the post since January of 1974.

The salary offered by the city makes the post unattractive to most attorneys who have substantial private practices.

Smith received $5,500 a year in the post, but the city is reportedly prepared to offer more money in an attempt to attract a replacement. The time required in court is another drawback.

Council agreed to have the city manager contact the Fayette County Bar Association to discuss the situation. Presently the Fayette County prosecuting attorney's office is handling preliminary hearings on felony charges in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Another problem which has been created by the vacancy is the postponement or eventual dismissal of charges against some defendants.

Municipal Court Judge John P. Case informed Shapter he will be forced to postpone a second jury trial next week if the post is not filled.

TWO PIECES of legislation were considered by Council during the regular semi-monthly meeting held in the Fraternal Order of Police building.

An ordinance dealing with the required distance between a bowling alley and school property was approved after its third reading. The approval of the measure clears the way for the proposed construction of a bowling alley on Commerical Avenue and repeals an ancient city ordinance prohibiting bowling alleys to be built near school grounds.

Council placed an ordinance to vacate an alley running from North Street in a northwesterly direction to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad on its first reading. The alley has never been in existence and is located on property owned by Floyd and Alice Reid.

IN OTHER matters, City Council:

—Accepted a bid of $2,205 annually submitted by the Pennington Insurance Agency for a three-year policy on city buildings and contents. The only other bidder was the Richard R. Willis Insurance Agency, Inc. with a bid of $3,480 annually;

—Received a smoke ejector holder to be used by the Washington C.H. Fire Department in clearing smoke from buildings following fires. The new piece of equipment was purchased with funds raised in a project sponsored by firemen. Firemen Edward Helt and Cecil D. Seaman told Council members that Local No. 2474 of the International Association of Firefighters is planning to support the one-mill levy renewal for fire department operations on the November ballot.

—Learned of a joint meetin between City Council, the city's planning commission and the city board of zoning appeals scheduled for 7:30 p.m. October 26.

—Appointed Council members James Ward and Richard Kimmet to a committee to investigate obtaining a new meeting place. Council has been meeting in the old Fraternal Order of Police building, 470 N. Fayette St., since the remodeling of city administration offices earlier this summer. The building now used for meetings will not be suitable during winter months; and —Instructed Council's safety committee to investigate a possible traffic hazard at the intersection of Highland, Clinton and Leesburg avenues. The committee will seek the assistance of the Ohio Department of Transportation for the study.

Columbus man dies after shot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A terminally ill 34-year-old Columbus man has died after receiving a swine flu immunization shot, but his doctor and the county coroner stressed there was no apparent connection between the innoculation and his death.

Frank Hall, 34, of Columbus, died Tuesday night in his home. He had received the flu shot on Monday.

His physician, Dr. James Lewis, said Hall was a diabetic, was being treated with dialysis because of kidney failure and had severe cardiovascular disease.

Dr. William R. Adrion, Franklin County coroner, said he did not "think there was any relationship between the vaccine and his death."

Noting that Hall was one of the youngest persons known to have died after receiving the immunization shot, Adrion said, "This is the age that he was going to die whether he got the vaccine or not."

Dr. Thomas Halpin, chief of the state Health Department's bureau of preventative medicine, agreed with the other two physicians.

"There is no evidence the immunization was a factor," he said. "I'm sure the cause of death is going to be listed as diabetes or cardiovascular disease."

Halpin said the man's death will have no effect on the state's swine flu immunization efforts and urged counties to continue their innoculation programs.

The Sloan Library in Zanesfield, Logan County, was given to the town by Dr. Earl S. Sloan, a native, who made a fortune from the manufacture of Sloan's Liniment. — AP

Successful homecoming held

The 1976 Homecoming weekend began with the selection of the Homecoming Queen.

The student body chose Jill Schaeper to represent them. The Senior class chose Beth Schaeper. Both are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Mark J. Schaeper. The Junior class chose Margie Easterday, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Easterday; the Sophomore class chose Susan DaRif as their attendant. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Kay DaRif. The Freshmen chose for their first attendant, Tammy Schneider, daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Schneider.

Homecoming dance

The homecoming weekend began with the annual homecoming assembly Friday morning. The choir began by singing "I Write the Songs." "Mr. Touchdown" was then selected. The student body chose him by placing money in jars labeled with the names of all the senior players. The player with the most money is chosen the winner. The year Jerry Brickles received the award.

The history of homecoming at Washington Senior was read before the presentation of this year's queen and court. The band played as the queen was presented to the student body. The girls Ensemble ended the beautiful assembly with a selection of tunes.

The homecoming parade route ran from the Middle School to Gardner Park Stadium prior to the game. The Queen rode on a float made by the Student Council. The court rode in corvettes following the ROTC. The WSHS marching band, the pep club and the cheerleaders also participated in the parade.

Pre-game festivities included the presentation of the Queen and court to the capacity crowd for the first home game this season. Queen Jill presented the game ball to co-captains, Mark Heiny and Bret Shaw expressing her hopes for a homecoming victory.

The school spirit experienced throughout the day, centering on the slogan, "Win it for Jill" must have been the topmost thought on the players' heads, for they played an outstanding, and exciting game. They topped Sylvania Northview, 22-15, to give the homecoming the final touch it needed.

"Midnight Blue" was chosen as the theme for the homecoming dance held Saturday night. The student Council was in charge of the activities and they worked hard in preparation. The DECA club helped make favors and put up the decorations. The hard work paid off in transforming the gym into a masterpiece.

The program began with a welcoming speech by Student Council President Mike McDonald. The queen and court were presented to preside over the dance. The couples danced to the sounds of the Silver Nichels.

As 11:30 p.m. grew near, everyone realized that another great homecoming at Washington Senior High School was over. So, for another year, homecoming will be another memory left until another will take i t's place. For Seniors, it will be remembered forever.

Student comments . . .

By DAVID LEISURE

We, the upper classmen, would like to welcome the new members of our student body, the Freshmen class. We find the Freshmen to be a great asset to our school. There are mixed feelings from the ninth graders concerning Washington Senior High. Here are a few of the thoughts from our new friends:

Pam Bennett - It's a very exciting experience. The teachers and students are really friendly, especially our Number 1 band and director.

Lana McCoy - I like all the activities, and the upperclassmen have really been nice. I'm looking forward to this year and the following three.

Kathy Prysiazniuk - There are more activities and clubs to join and participate in. The upperclassmen are a lot of fun to be around.

Robbin Hendren - It makes you feel more like adults than children. Mr. Pfeifer is really a neat principal, and we have more priviledges.

Susan Moore - I really enjoy all my classes. It's a new experience, and we have a lot more responsibilities. All the privileges we have are great!

Eric Croker - It's too big for us little guys.

Wayne Aills - I like the cafeteria. I like the outdoor activities and the gym.

Steve Spears - It's more fun than the Junior High, and the teachers are friendlier.

Gloria Smith - The teachers give you a lot of respect if you respect them. Also, we have a lot of responsibilities, but, they're fun.

Tom Easterday - I like my gym class, but the teachers are strict.

Kelly Mounts - I like being mixed with upperclassmen. I'm able to choose most of my classes.

Bill Runnels - I like new things, and the Senior High is new!

Lion of the Week

By DEBBIE HIGHFIELD

Our first Lion of the Week is Robyn Leslie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Leslie, 804 Lincoln Drive.

Robyn is one of our cheerleaders in the crowd. She doesn't wear a blue uniform, but she's a great cheerleader.

She begins her spirit-building the day before the game, by organizaing a group to make signs and badges for the upcoming Friday. The next morning, she is wearing painters pants and a 'New Blue' shirt, either chanting, or singing the alma mater.

Seeing her spirit lifts your day and prepares you for that night's victory. At the game, she screams and yells throughout the entire contest no matter what the outcome of the event may be.

This is why we've chosen Robyn our Lion of the Week. She's our No. 1 Super Fan.

We salute you Robyn!

ROBYN LESLIE

Pfeifer, better known as 'Coach' now principal

By CHRIS McKINNEY

As the 1976-77 school year opened, a group of new students entered Washington Senior High School. Along with these new faces came a man who is commonly known to us as "Coach." This man is the new principal at Washington Senior High School, Maurice Pfeifer.

Although this is Mr. Pfeifer's first year as principal, he is not unfamilar with the school system. He has been vice-principal at the Middle School and the Senior High. He has also been a guidance counselor at the Middle School in addition to teaching Physical Education, Health and Driver's Education.

Mr. Pfeifer came to Washington C.H. in 1965 after a successful four-year stint as head football coach in Marysville. During this time he was head wrestling coach and an assistant in track. Prior to that he was a Madison South, where he started his coaching career.

In two years at Madison South his teams came up with a 13-1-1 record including the Darby Valley League football championship, and an 8-0 season in which his teams were 11th in the state in the Class A ratings.

Mr. Pfeifer is a native of Lima. At Lima Central High School he lettered in football and tennis.

A graduate of Ohio Northern University, he lettered four years in football making all-conference as a center and a linebacker while captaining the 1958 edition of the Polar Bears. He also lettered four years in tennis and was conference singles champion for four years. He coached the Ohio Northern tennis team while a student becoming the youngest college coach in the United States at the age of 19.

MAURICE PFEIFER

Mr. Pfeifer received his Masters Degree from Xavier University. He also attended Ohio State University, Miami University and Southern State College.

Now that he is principal, Mr. Pfeifer feels there are some advantages he did not have as a staff member — "You get to work with the whole student body instead of just a portion of it."

Somewhat wistfully, he said he misses coaching, "but that is to be expected after 17 years."

Ondrus keeps Lions at home to continue McClain rivalry

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Blue Lion football fans can keep their road maps folded again this week. Coach Paul Ondrus' squad will appear for the second-straight week at Gardner Park.

After four straight weeks on the road from Wellston to Westerville, the Blue Lions made their home debut last Friday and thrilled a large homecoming crowd with a 22-15 non-league win over Sylvania Northview.

Sylvania, a school near Toledo, was rather unfamiliar to the Blue Lion crowd, but this Friday's opponent needs no introduction.

Greenfield McClain will travel the 15 miles to Gardner Park to resume a long-standing rivalry that dates back some 70 years.

Coach Ondrus no doubt is happy that McClain will do the traveling this week instead of his Blue Lions. Coach Fred Brisker's Tigers are tough at home which is not to say they are not tough on the road.

However, McClain always seems to rise to the occasion on its home field. Last year, it was the Blue Lions who felt the Tigers' wrath. So far this year it has been Circleville.

McClain handed the Blue Lions their first loss of the season last year at Greenfield in a tightly fought, 7-0, contest. Last Friday, in a similar contest McClain blanked Circleville, 6-0.

Beating Circleville anywhere is an indication that a McClain is good and that the Blue Lions will have their hands full as they resume South Central Ohio League action.

Both squads are 3-2 on the year and they have another thing in common. The have both been shutout by Westerville North. McClain lost 10-0 while the Lions were stunned 34-0.

Coach Brisker was concerned with his defensive line before the season started, but after last week's shutout of Circleville he has apparently solved his problem.

The keys to that line are Joe Cannon and Bill Harvey, and they have left an impression on the Blue Lion coaching staff after viewing game films.

Cannon, who weighs 202 pounds and has been described as "a one-man gang", plays defensive tackle while Harvey holds down the middle guard spot in Brisker's somewhat unconventional defense.

"I'm sure the people that play across from them will know they are there," Ondrus said.

Brisker's defense does some strange things according to Ondrus with line shifts and various different looks. "They get you to try and guess," Ondrus said.

Also lining up with Cannon and Harvey is 225-pound Bret Robinson. Robinson was highly touted at Hillsboro earlier this year before moving to the McClain school district. At Hillsboro, he was fondly called "Mongo". The McClain offense has also been known to do some strange things.

"Basicly they are conventional," Ondrus reported, "but they will show you some razzle-dazzle."

The scouting report states that Brisker will send in a lot of trick plays when the offense is stalled "just to keep the defense off balance."

The Blue Lion coaches have seen everything from reverses to the tightend and then a pass (the end is Steve Wood, who is the backup quarterback) to double reverses.

When Brisker is not using the "razzle dazzle", tailback Tony Anderson is his main weapon. The speedy tailback ruined the Blue Lions last year with a 50-yard jaunt setting up the only touchdown of the game.

Steve Weaver, the quarterback, works the option with Anderson. And, while Weaver is an adequate runner, Ondrus is planning to key on Anderson, "the lesser of two evils."

Also in the McClain backfield is sophomore Randy Seldon and fullback John Dettwiller. Sometimes Dettwiller is pulled in favor of Cannon at fullback, and Ondrus feels the bigger Cannon is more dangerous.

The Blue Lions only have one starter who is listed as questionable for Friday's contest. He, however, is the Blue Lions main threat on the ground.

Tailback Jeff Elliott is still feeling the effects of the flu. He played last week, but was not at 100 per cent.

One Blue Lion was injured severly in practice Wednesday. Sophomore Tommy Upthegrove injured his knee and spent the night in the hospital. He is definitely out for the season and is scheduled to undergo surgery.

Friday's game will be taped and broadcast by Channel 3 at noon Saturday.

Pass receivers earn Lion weekly honors

The passing games of both squads were the keys to last Friday's 22-15 Washington C.H. win over visiting Sylvania Northview. The Blue Lions used the pass effectively and the guests from the north did not.

Junior Mike Turner, a lanky 6-3, 185 pound end, and senior Dee Foster did most of the catching in the Blue Lion's homecoming victory, and their performances earned them Blue Lion lineman and back of the week honors.

Turner starting only his second game at right defensive end scored the first of three Blue Lion touchdowns when he snared an errant Sylvania pass and rambled 60-yards to the endzone. He graded out 80 per cent on the night in defensive efficiency by the coaching staff and was credited with four individual tackles and two assists.

On offense, Turner latched on to a conversion pass from quarterback Mark Heiny after Jeff Elliott scored the go-ahead touchdown late in the fourth period.

Foster, who shares the messenger wide-receiver spot with Sam McClendon, was Heiny's main target Friday. Last week, it was McClendon's turn as he caught two touchdown passes and earned similar honors in the win over Hillsboro.

Foster had three catches totaling 133 yards. One of the speedy receiver's grabs was good for a 12-yard touchdown, the Blue Lions' second of the night. Another catch was good for 66 yards in the fourth quarter setting up the winning touchdown.

On that fourth quarter catch, Foster was finally tackled on the Sylvania four-yard line as time ticked away. Elliott's carry followed giving the Blue Lions a 3-2 season record.

Computer narrowing possible champs

New leaders in prep football ratings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Class AAA Akron North, Class AA Elyria Catholic and Class A Woodsfield are new regional leaders in the Ohio High School Athletic Association's computerized weekly football ratings.

Akron North displaced Stow Walsh Jesuit for the top spot in Region 3, moving up from second. Walsh Jesuit fell all the way to eighth place.

Elyria Catholic moved up one spot in Region 5 while Girard, last week's pacesetter, tumbled to seventh.

Woodsfield made the most dramatic jump, vaulting from sixth a week ago into the leadership in Region 11. Newark Catholic, No. 1 in that area last week, is now tied for third.

In Class AAA, Parma Valley Forge, Findlay and Cincinnati Moeller maintained their regional leads.

The Class AA frontrunners again were Columbus DeSales, Philo and Cincinnati North College Hill while still atop Class A regions were Cleveland Cuyahoga Heights, Fostoria St. Wendelin and West Jefferson.

Ashtabula St. John and Cleveland Cuyahoga Heights had shared the Region 9 top spot last week. St. John was second this time.

The OHSAA uses the ratings, based solely on a team's schedule and those of its opponents and not margin of victories, to select its semifinalists for the postseason playoffs.

Despite its 5-0 record and ninth-place ranking in the Class AAA grid poll, the Miami Trace Panthers fell farther behind Cincinnati Moeller in the state computer ratings.

The Panthers are currently in 24th place in Region 8 rankings with 22 points. Moeller has 63 points.

League rival Wilmington has 27 points in the same region and is ranked 19th.

In the Class AA rankings, Greenfield McClain shot to 18th place after upsetting Circleville last Friday. McClain has 18 points while Cincinnati North College Hill leads the region with 38.

Circleville and Washington C.H. are right behind McClain with 17 and 15 points respectively. Hillsboro is in 39th place with nine points while Madison Plains is in 46th place with five points.

Mexican QB aids Blanchester squad

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Mexican exchange student, who speaks little English, has come to the rescue of Blanchester High School's football team, helping extend its victory streak to 20 games.

Bruno Ramos, 18, from Mexico City, did not play in his first American football game until Oct. 2, starting on defense against East Clinton.

"But we were trailing 7-0 at halftime and only had one first down," said Jack O'Rourke, the Blanchester coach. "I decided to put Bruno in at quarterback. He ran the team with no problem at all."

With the coaches calling the plays from the sidelines, Ramos ran for two touchdowns and two extra points, leading Blanchester, a Clinton County team, to a 20-7 victory.

Last week he followed with another touchdown and extra-points run as Blanchester beat Mason 15-13, its 22nd straight game without a loss.

The 5-foot-9, 160-pound senior says he has played the sport about eight seasons.

"The big difference between the play there and here is the quarterback calls more plays in Mexico while the coaches call most of the plays here," he said.

O'Rourke says the language barrier is disappearing each week for Ramos.

"Bruno has gotten to the point where he understands what we tell him in practice if we talk very slowly. I was afraid to use him at first because I didn't know if the language problem would hurt us. But he knows what he's doing even if he can't tell you," said the Blanchester coach.

Around Ohio: Tailback Terry Bates of Fremont Ross has 913 yards rushing in five games and has surpassed 240 yards twice. The latest was 242 yards last week against Mansfield Senior.

John Long, Williamsport Westfall's 2,528-yard career rusher, is out for the season after undergoing knee surgery.

Lancaster's 24-16 victory last week was only Upper Arlington's fourth loss in 43 Central Ohio League games and the first to the Golden Gales since a 1963 forfeit. Bob Krannitz, a substitute tailback, ran 185 yards and scored two Lancaster touchdowns.

Newcomerstown's victory streak is up to 12 games, one shy of the school record. Doug Donnelly of Cambridge ran 63, 87 and 3 yards for touchdowns in a 47-34 loss to Canton McKinley. A converted middle guard, fullback Gerald Jackson scored three McKinley touchdowns.

Xenia beat Kettering Fairmont East with a 32-yard flea flicker play in the last 12 seconds, quarterback Kent Phillippi to Curtis Wingard, who later called to Mark Scott for the score.

Miami Trace, near Washington Court House, is averaging 530 yards a game and has not lost in its last 18 under Coach Fred Zechman.

Cleveland Stadium will be the site of a high school football doubleheader Saturday: Parma Padua vs. Cleveland Latin at 6 p.m. and Cleveland St. Ignatius vs. Cleveland West Tech at 8:30 p.m.

Islanders top Sabres in NHL

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Sabres got almost all the shots ... but the New York Islanders got all the breaks. As a result, they got most of the goals.

Despite a staggering 30-14 difference in shots on goal, the Islanders converted theirs with high efficiency Wednesday night and took a 4-3 decision with a little help from their opponents.

"We capitalized on the mistakes Buffalo made, but that's what we have to do all season to keep winning," said Islanders Coach Al Arbor after his club remained the only undefeated team in the National Hockey League.

The Islanders scored a shorthanded goal in the first period by Ed Westfall and quickly added another score by Clark Gillies when the Buffalo defense collapsed.

Gary Howatt drilled in two more New York goals in the second period and the Islanders withstood a late charge by the Sabres. New York could only get two shots on goal in the entire third period and Buffalo lost a chance to tie the game late in the third period when Brian Spencer missed a shot into the open net.

In other NHL action, the Boston Bruins beat the New York Rangers 5-1; the Los Angeles Kings tied the Toronto Maple Leafs 4-4; the Atlanta Flames whipped the Cleveland Barons 4-2; the Chicago Black Hawks stopped the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1; the St. Louis Blues turned back the Colorado Rockies 3-2 and the Vancouver Canucks trimmed the Washington Capitals 4-1.

IL baseball awards

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rich Dauer of Rochester, the International League's leading hitter in 1976, now shares the Most Valuable Player honors with two others and has been named Rookie of the Year.

The 24-year-old second baseman, a native of San Bernardino, Calif., also tied with his teammate, pitcher Scott McGregor, in the balloting for the league's All-Star team.

Rochester also had the Most Valuable Pitcher and Most Valuable Manager, as the awards and the team were announced Tuesday.

Dauer, who hit .336 with 11 homers and 78 runs batted in during his first full year with the Class AAA Red Wings, tied for MVP honors with Mickey Klutts of Syracuse and Joe Lis of Toledo. Each got five votes from sports reporters in the eight IL cities.

Klutts, a shortstop, hit .319 with 24 homers and 80 RBIs. The first baseman, Lis, led the league with 103 RBIs, powered 30 homers and hit .306.

The Most Valuable Pitcher was Rochester's Dennis Martinez, who led the league with 140 strikeouts. His record was 14-8, with an earned run average of 2.50.

Rochester's Joe Altobelli was named Manager of the Year for the second time, after leading his squad to the regular season pennant.

The only other shared MVP award for the IL was in 1970, when it went to Rochester's Roger Freed and Columbus's George Kopacz.

For the All-Star team, Dauer and McGregor each got 23 votes, one less than the maximum. The left-handed pitcher was 11-6, and led the league with six shutouts.

Other players, by position, were: first base, Lis; shortstop, Klutts; third base, Butch Hobson, Rhode Island; outfielders, Miguel Dilone and Omar Moreno of Charleston and Terry Whitfield, Syracuse; catcher, John Stearns, Tidewater; righthanded pitcher, Martinez.

Pro bowler slated to give exhibition

Jerry Hamilton, a national member of the Professional Bowlers Association, will visit Washington C.H. Saturday.

Hamilton will give a bowling exhibition at 4:30 p.m. at Bowland Lanes.

WCH golfers finish league

The Washington C.H. Blue Lion golf team finished out the South Central Ohio League dual-match schedule with a 178-186 win over Hillsboro Wednesday at the Washington Country Club.

The win gave coach Rick Crooks' young linksters a 6-4 league record and left them 9-4 overall. Only one more dual match remains. It is slated today against Chillicothe High School at the Chillicothe country club.

Saturday, the Blue Lions will enter district tournament play at Chillicothe's V.A. Course. The top team from the six-team tourney will move on to Class AA state competition.

Monday, the SCOL meet will be held at Wilmington's Snow Hill Country Club.

Gary Fisher took top honors for the Blue Lions Wednesday in the win over Hillsboro with a 43. He was followed in the scoring by teammates Willie Hatfield with a 44, John Moore with a 45 and Greg Tillett with a 46.

Hillsboro's Tim Sharkey took medalist honors with a 39, but his teammates shot in the high 40s.

McCurdy, Patton, Boy share OAC honors

CLEVELAND (AP) — Capital's Tom McCurdy, Jim Patton of Baldwin-Wallace and Marietta's Mark Boy shared the Ohio Athletic Conference football honors this week.

McCurdy, a sophomore middle guard, and Patton, a senior defensive back, were named OAC defensive players of the week, while Boy, a sophomore tailback, was the only offensive selection.

Aeros top Calgary

HOUSTON (AP) — With team emphasis being placed primarily on defense, Houston defenseman Marty Howe was surprised his first goal of the year came so early in the season.

Howe's power play goal at 15:39 of the second period broke a 1-1 tie Wednesday night and boosted the Aeros to a 2-1 victory over the Calgary Cowboys in a World Hockey Association game.

Reds have no preference who will challenge world crown

CINCINNATI (AP) — They're playing a waiting game in Cincinnati—and they don't seem to care who shows up at Riverfront Stadium Saturday.

The Cincinnati Reds, fresh from their three-game sweep of Philadelphia in the National League playoffs, began looking ahead to the World Series.

For some, it was a matter of taking on the bigger name.

For others, it was a matter of raking in a bigger paycheck.

And for most, it was a matter of believing that whichever team wound up representing the American League would also wind up a loser.

"I don't care who we play because these guys represent the best team in baseball," Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said Wednesday as he awaited the outcome of the best-of-five playoff between the New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals, now tied 2-2.

"There isn't another club in baseball that can match the eight players we can put on the field every day," Anderson added. "This isn't any three or four-man team, like most clubs."

Anderson said he believed "some of the younger players are hoping it will be in New York. But that's because Yankee Stadium seats more than the Kansas City park and they're figuring that playing New York will mean more money to them."

Gary Nolan, the right-hander who started the final game of the Reds' playoff against the Phillies, said emphatically that he was hoping to play New York "because I figure it's a once-in-a-lifetime shot. I've never seen Yankee Stadium except on television. And it would sure make me feel proud, standing out there on the mound."

Pete Rose also said he would prefer going against New York, but for a more practical reason. "I know the Yankees' pitchers better because I've faced most of them before," he said. "I guess you might say it's a psychological thing with me, but it always bothers me when I'm facing a pitcher for the first time."

Ray Shore, Cincinnati's special assignment scout who has been keeping close tabs on both American League playoff clubs, said he would rather see the Royals win the AL flag.

"Kansas City, that's the club I'd like for us to play in the series," Shore said. "The Yanks have the more experienced staff and I think they'd have a better chance of holding down our hitters. And the Kansas City park has Astroturf like ours. That's another reason why I'd rather see us play them than the Yankees."

For the most part, though, the Reds were being noncommittal about their possible opponent.

"I don't care which team it is," said left-hander Don Gullett, the Cincinnati starter in the World Series opener, summing up the Reds' viewpoint. "All I know is I'll be ready when Saturday comes."

Royals hook Catfish to tie Yanks in AL playoff

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Having beaten New York Yankees ace Catfish Hunter in the game they had to win to stay alive, the Kansas City Royals go after their first World Series berth tonight against Ed Figueroa.

The Yankees, hoping for their first American League pennant in 12 years, tried to wrap it up with Hunter Wednesday. But the bid backfired when the Royals kayoed Hunter early.

That left Figueroa, a 19-game winner during the regular season but the loser in Game Two of these best-of-five AL playoffs, for tonight's deciding game. Today is Figueroa's 28th birthday.

The Royals forced the championship series to its limit by beating New York 7-4 Wednesday with a barrage of extra-base hits that included a double and triple by Hal McRae.

That overcame a pair of home runs by Graig Nettles of the Yankees and sent the two division champions back for one more game in this see-saw series.

McRae, who broke out of a slump that had left him hitless in the first three games of the series, thought that beating Hunter in Game Four would give the Royals the edge tonight.

"I feel we have the momentum now," said McRae. "I think we're in the best position. We beat their best pitcher — their big gun. They won't have the same faith in the guy they throw tomorrow (Thursday night) that they had today (Wednesday)."

Yankees Manager Billy Martin bristled at that suggestion. "Figueroa will start the fifth game, and we have a lot of faith in him," he said.

What was Martin's reason for using Figueroa, who has lost three decisions to Kansas City this season, including the second game of the playoffs?

"Nineteen wins," snapped the Yankees manager. "That's a pretty good reason."

Ignored as a possible starter for the final game was lefthander Ken Holtzman, a veteran of playoff and World Series competition during his years in Oakland. "Holtzman hasn't been pitching well lately," said Martin. "I really didn't consider him."

If the Yankees had no plans for Holtzman, Royals Manager Whitey Herzog could have used him on loan. Asked about his fifth game starter, Herzog had to hedge Wednesday night.

"I have no idea right now," he said. "I have a choice of four — Dennis Leonard, Marty Pattin, Al Fitzmorris and Paul Splittorff. If I had Holtzman, I'd pitch him."

Splittorff, who pitched 5 2-3 innings of shutout relief in Game Two, would have had the assignment almost automatically if he had not had to warm up Wednesday. But he was anxious for another shot at the Yankees.

Leonard was the second game starter and was knocked out early. But Herzog thinks the 17-game winner could do a creditable job. "He's a power pitcher and if he throws strikes he can give them trouble," the manager said.

Fitzmorris is the only Royals player who has not played in the series so far. "If I pitched, I'd feel strange," he said. "I think my bid was turned down."

Don January tiring out?

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Tough old Don January, who happily calls himself "Old Folks," will close out one of pro golf's most remarkable seasons this week.

"This is it," drawled the slow-moving, easy-going January before teeing off in the first round today as the defending champion in the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open. "I've played enough. I'm running out of gas."

That's exactly what happened in his last start, two weeks ago in the Sahara Invitational in Las Vegas. He led through three rounds, then faded over the last 18 holes and finished in a tie for second with Dave Hill.

Still, that performance helped him to the best year of his pro career that has spanned more than 20 years, and capped one of the most dramatic comebacks in sports history.

At age 46, after a three-year retirement in which he rarely played even friendly golf, he won the prestigious Tournament of Champions, was in title contention almost every time he started, has a chance at the Vardon Trophy for the tour's low scoring average and now has won $162,772, more than twice as much as he had ever won.

"It's been very rewarding, very satisfying," January said.

Not just another concrete bowl

Riverfront Stadium gains tradition

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — It is just another ball park. It looks like any of the other impersonal concrete bowls which have sprouted up in major league cities around the nation the past decade or so.

But for a park just six years old, Riverfront Stadium already has a lot of tradition going for it.

Everybody knows the $50 million stadium is the personal playground of Cincinnati Reds star Pete Rose. And it's where quarterback Ken Anderson of the Cincinnati Bengals takes target practice against the rest of the National Football League seven times a season.

But that's not tradition, yet.

Tradition is Henry Aaron hitting the first home run in the park on opening night, June 30, 1970, and the late Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh hitting his last, in the fourth game of the 1972 National League playoffs.

It is Aaron tying Babe Ruth's record of 714 career homers on April 4, 1974, with his first swing of the season, in an appearance ordered by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Tradition is Chicago's Ken Holtzman and Rick Wise of St. Louis throwing no-hitters just 20 days apart in 1971.

It is President Richard Nixon starting the 1970 All-Star Game by throwing out the first ball and Rose ending it with his crunching collision with Cleveland catcher Ray Fosse in the 12th inning.

And the tradition isn't limited to sports or even to the stadium itself.

Singing cowboy star Roy Rogers claims he was born at second base—long before the base was ever there and Joe Morgan guarded it.

Murderer Charles Manson grew up playing in the back alleyways of the slums that were later leveled to make room for the stadium.

More than a century ago, Stephen Foster and Mark Twain hung around the neighboring riverfront after which the ballpark is named.

And even today, the majestic Delta Queen, the 50-year-old paddlewheeler, calls the dock beyond the right field wall its home port.

Riverfront will get some tradition starting Saturday when the defending world champion Reds begin their second straight World Series and their fourth since 1970.

Anderson eyes Steelers

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson has taken his lumps over the years from the Steelers and looks hopefully toward Sunday's confrontation at Pittsburgh where Cincinnati has never won.

"It's a challenge," said Anderson, discussing the team that has been his nemesis. Pittsburgh has won the Central Division of the American Conference of the National Football League for three straight years.

Cincinnti is 4-1 this season but despite the Steelers' 1-4 record, and the absence of injured quarterback Terry Bradshaw, Cincinnati is only a one point favorite.

"Look at their whole defense," said Anderson. "They try to intimidate people. They're very physical.

"We haven't done very well against them in the past. They've had good success against us."

Pittsburgh has beaten Cincinnati in eight of the last 12 games between them. Cincinnati scored on the final play of the game at Cincinnati last season to lose 30-26. The Steelers romped 35-14 in the first game at Pittsburgh.

In a 1914 Georgia-Alabama League baseball game, pitcher John Cantley hit three grand slam home runs and a single to drive in 15 runs in leading Opelika, Ga., to a 19-1 win over Talladega, Ala.

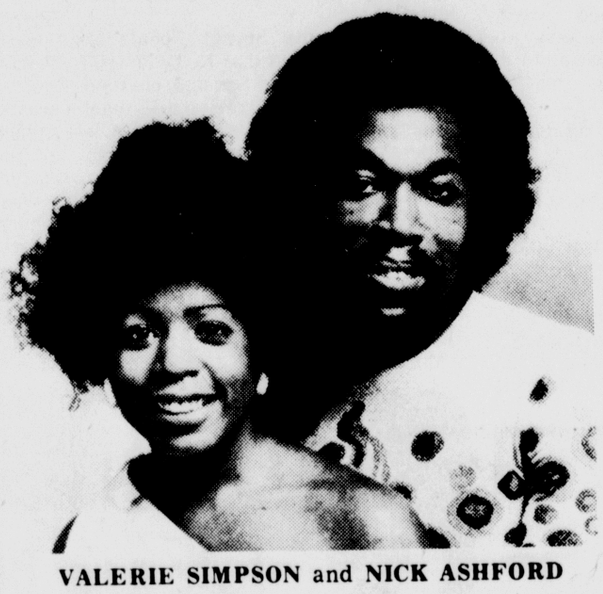
Ashford & Simpson Get Act Together



VALERIE SIMPSON and NICK ASHFORD

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures

Nick Ashford and Valerie Simpson have written lots of the soul hit songs of the last dozen years, been married a couple of years, become parents of baby Nicole. In the past few years, they have made a few records themselves and performed from time to time.

Now they have decided to get serious about getting their act together and their show on the road, and for Ashford and Simpson that is meant literally.

George Faison, who choreographed Broadway's "The Wiz," did some choreography for them. Ashford says, "He more or less married it with the music. He really knows how to make the picture work. We wanted to make the act get over; we don't want people to think of us as dancers. I think he enhanced what we do.

"Just the fact we're really ready and want to get out there makes this tour different for us." The tour, which extends into the summer, includes seven performances in Broadway's Uris Theater, sharing the bill with Al Green, and a couple of TV guest appearances.

The couple's most recent album on Warner Brothers is "Come As You Are," and a new single released from it is "Somebody Told Me a Lie." Earlier they made "Gimme Something Real" and "I Wanna Be Selfish" for Warner Brothers and before that Miss Simpson made two solo albums for Tamla.

The new album, Ashford says, "Expresses what we feel about performing. We want to communicate and be uplifting. We think what is needed today is inspiration. We don't believe in negativity. I've had experiences — we've written about them — which were unhappy. We know we have our moments when everything isn't fine. We've got to stop and deal with them. We're, saying, 'We're going to make it through here.' "

The couple has homes in New York City and Connecticut — where they have a vegetable garden. They've been married two years and, Miss Simpson says, some people thought they always were married. "Other people say they knew all the time that eventually we'd get married. Why didn't they tell me? I didn't know it, at least not consciously.

"I recommend long friendships. You get to learn a lot about a person."

Her husband agrees. "We were always telling each other about our experiences. Then when we finally looked at each other with the love light, a lot of the games we were playing with other people — we'd already told them. We couldn't use them on each other. It was starting out with nothing hidden and not trying to fool somebody. I kept on being my regular self and she kept on being her regular self and we loved it.

Miss Simpson, a native New Yorker, and Ashford, born in Fairfield, S.C., and reared near Detroit, met in the White Rock Baptist Church in Harlem when she was 17 and he was 21. She was singing there with three other girls. Gospel music was having a vogue just then and the girl quartet went into an off-Broadway gospel nightclub, Ashford joining them. That didn't last long but before she went back to a secretarial job and he started looking for a job, they tried writing some songs together. They sold them, which led to being hired to write for Scepter Records.

The big break came there, when Ray Charles got a hit with one of their songs, "Let's Go Get Stoned." On the strength of that, Motown Records hired them in 1965.

"We thought we had a good pace of writing," Miss Simpson says, "but they were turning out songs as fast as pancakes, they had so many writers."

The Motown system was to let a writer, who was getting hits with, say the Temptations, keep writing songs for that group. But if a song didn't become a hit, then other Motown writers could try writing for the Temps. Lots of writers came to hate that, but Miss Simpson and Ashford say they thrived on the competition. They worked for Motown some seven years, though they never moved out of New York, just flew to Detroit sometimes, then back to New York.

He says, "Competition brings out the best in you. You don't know how much reserve you really have until you push yourself. There were so many good writers and producers there. You felt you had to call upon yourself for more than you had previously been giving.

Their biggest hit probably is "Ain't No Mountain High Enough," Miss Simpson says, because it was a hit for Marvin Gaye and Tammi Terrell, then again later for Diana Ross. "Reach Out and Touch (Somebody's Hand)," recorded by Miss Ross and by Aretha Franklin, also was big. And the one they get most requests for is "Give Me Something Real."

They surprised Motown, the couple recall, by turning in completed songs on demonstration records, complete with background singers. "They had hundreds of music tracks there, with no words. Usually somebody would later pick up a track and write words," Miss Simpson says.

She explains, "Nick writes all the lyrics and I do the music but he gets into that, too. Most of the time it happens together. We'll be playing and singing and thoughts will come and something falls out right so we know it sounds good."

Studying The World Of The Occult

SOMETHING'S THERE. By Dan Greenberg. Doubleday. 320 Pages. $7.95.

One of the frustrations of journalism, albeit a rare thing, is when a lot of time and money is spent on an idea for a potential story and it doesn't pan out. There's a great temptation to put something into print anyway, if for no other reason than to justify the effort.

Such seems to be the case with "Something's There." Although this is a literary effort, a valid comparison can be made to journalism because the author ventures into a serious vein — trying to discover and write about whether there's anything concrete to the world of the occult.

The impressive part of "Something's There," is the obvious effort Dan Greenberg made toward tryirg to discover for himself whether ghosts exist, people can levitate things, etc. He spent a lot of time trying to meet a respectable spirit — assuming there might be such a thing — and talking with and observing those who claim they count spirits among their friends. He also read a lot, according to a bibliography that listed 119 sources. Impressive indeed. But that's about it. There's nothing new here.

One further note: Greenburg has a knack of writing a humorous flash when you least expect it and that talent sporadically surfaces in this book. Unfortunately, though, this is rather disruptive at times because it keeps the reader asking "is this for real or is it a put-down?" It's real, but after reading it for a time you'll probably want to put it down.

Nation's voters face many local issues

By The Associated Press

The spotlight in the 1976 election is on the presidential race, but voters in November also will be deciding close-to-home questions involving everything from nuclear safety to state-regulated slot machines.

Some of the proposals are in the form of constitutional amendments offered by state legislatures. Others have been placed on the ballot as a result of voter initiatives and petition drives.

An Associated Press spot check showed that the nuclear safety issue has generated the most interest, followed by proposals to ban or restrict nonreturnable beverage containers.

California residents voted against a proposal on the June primary ballot to limit development of nuclear power plants and impose restrictions on the operation of those already in existence.

Similar measures now are on the ballot in a number of states, including Oregon, Montana, Ohio, Washington and Arizona.

There are about 60 atomic power plants already in operation and another 40 plants are expected in operation by 1980. Critics of nuclear power say that safety controls are not strict enough.

The proposals under consideration would:

—Set specific safety standards for builders.

—Provide for safe storage, transportation and disposal of nuclear wastes.

—Require legislative approval of all new plants.

—Urge Congress to suspend the limit on liability insurance in case of nuclear accidents.

The outcome of the vote is expected to be close in most states and both sides have been fighting hard. Opponents of the measure in the State of Washington have a fund of more than $340,000, but a poll published by the Seattle Times in August showed 44.1 per cent of those surveyed were for the measure, 23.9 per cent were against and 32 per cent were undecided.

Here is a look at some other issues under consideration around the country:

RETURNABLE BOTTLES AND CANS

Massachusetts, Maine and Michigan are among the states trying to limit the use of nonreturnable containers. Under the Maine proposal, which is typical, all beer, ale and soft drink containers sold in the state after Jan. 1, 1978 would have to have at least a five-cent deposit. Cans with flip-top openers would be banned, as would plastic rings used to hold the cans or bottles together in a six-pack.

UTILITIES

Voters in some states will decide on measures that could affect electric and gas bills. In Massachusetts, a proposal would require the same per-kilowatt charge for all customers in contrast to the current practice of lower rates for big users. The governor and the state Department of Public Utilities contend that the measure would hurt industry. Ohioans for Utility Reform — OUR is pushing a measure requiring utilities to offer low-cost "lifeline" rates, with a minimum charge for a minimum amount of power. A measure on the ballot in Missouri would prevent utilities from including construction work in progress as one of the ongoing costs in figuring rate increases. Supporters of the measure say it's not the job of a utility customer to finance long-range construction projects.

GAMBLING

Legalized gambling of one form or another is under consideration in several states. The biggest fight has been in New Jersey where there is a proposal to okay casino gambling in Atlantic City. Two years ago, a plan for casino gambling throughout the state was rejected by a 3-2 margin. The Eagleton Institute of Politics of Rutgers University said a late-September poll showed 59 per cent of those questioned favored the proposal, 36 were against and the rest were undecided. In Delaware, the issue is whether the voters favor state-regulated slot machines. In California, the controversy is over greyhound racing. And in Oregon, a proposal on the ballot would allow charitable, fraternal and religious organizations to run bingo games.

SPENDING—MONEY

Two measures on the Michigan ballot specifically deal with money. One would limit state spending to 8.3 per cent of total personal income in the state; the other would remove the state's constitutional prohibition on a graduated income tax. Massachusetts voters also will decide whether to permit a graduated income tax — an idea that has been turned down three times in recent years. In Missouri, there are proposals to increase the state's sales tax by an eighth of a cent, but remove it from food and prescription drugs. North Dakota voters are faced with a plan to reduce the sales tax from 4 to 3 per cent. The drive is led by a businessman critical of the state's $180 million general fund surplus.

GOVERNMENT REORGANIZATION

Jimmy Carter has made his reorganization of the Georgia government a key issue in the presidential campaign. Another kind of reorganization — involving the state constitution — is on the November ballot. A key proposal would rearrange the constitution to put similar subjects under the same articles. Officials say it would be the first step toward an article-by-article constitutional revision in the future. Another measure on the Georgia ballot would allow a governor to succeed himself for a second four-year term. In Montana, residents of 156 counties, cities and towns will vote on proposals for new forms of local government. The new ideas generally would increase power at the local level.

STATE CAPITAL

The biggest issue on the Alaska ballot is where to put the state capital. Alaskans voted in 1974 to move it from Juneau and created a commission to propose three alternative sites. The choices: Willow, about 70 miles north of Anchorage and the cheapest of the three to develop; Mount Yenlo, a wilderness area 100 miles north of Anchorage and the second cheapest to develop; and Larson Lake, 120 miles north of Anchorage and the most expensive in development costs.

MISCELLANEOUS

Oklahoma residents have another chance to vote on legalizing the sale of liquor by the drink; an Equal Rights Amendment to the state constitution and a ban on the ownership of most handguns are on the ballot in Massachusetts; and a Florida measure would strengthen the state's financial disclosure law for public officials.

Shelter for beaten wives successful

FAIRFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Early this year, Lois Hake Woman divorced her husband, changed her name and opened her home to other women who had lived in fear of their husbands' anger as she did for 29 years.

Her residence, which she kept in the divorce settlement, is an ordinary four-bedroom ranch. In February, it became the Butler County Woman's Crisis Center, opening its doors 24 hours a day to offer protection from wife beaters.

So far, 20 women have been housed there, one returning as many as four times, for three to five days.

"Most of them return home after that," Miss Woman said. Experience has taught her why.

"In 29 years of marriage, I can't tell you how many nights I spent locked in the car or sitting in an all-night diner to be safe from my husband," Miss Woman said.

"But I stayed married," she writes in a 40-page pamphlet entitled "Diary of a Battered Housewife."

"Being beaten is such a shameful experience you don't want to tell anyone, because you're afraid of the kind of justice which often sets such men free within five minutes; because even if your husband earns $20,000 a year, you may have no alternatives financially; because of a son—we're so conditioned to think a child needs a father; and for religious reasons.'

Gearing herself for divorce at age 49 and with no recognizable marketable skills, she did telephone solicitation to maintain the home.

Since she has opened the shelter, which houses 12 women, and written her diary, Miss Woman lectures throughout the state.

She said she is looking for funds and working with agencies in the Cincinnati area "so the center can offer total resources—housing for women and children as long as needed, peer counseling, paralegal and medical services, and job training and counseling."

The cooperative shelter is staffed with two volunteers who answer crises calls. Present services include nightly talk sessions for abused residents and the offer to accompany the victims to file assault charges, to the welfare department and to attorneys.

"The trouble with going to an attorney is that in our town you need $100 just to go for advice," she said. "And many women aren't eligible for Legal Aid because their husbands earn too much money."

Miss Woman said statistics show "three times as many women are abused as are raped." She quoted a recent poll which said 20 per cent of Americans think wife beating is acceptable under certain conditions.

She said her name is an effort to break the chain of subservience.

"After my divorce, I took back my maiden name. Then, I realized that no woman has her own name—before you're married you use your father's," Miss Woman said.

"So, I decided to take a name that would be solely mine...one that no man would think of using. 'Woman' is my answer."

Appeal scheduled on data ruling

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Federal Home Loan Bank Board has filed a notice of appeal of U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin's ruling Sept. 27 barring the agency from providing data processing service to savings and loan associations.

Rubin ordered the service stopped as the result of a suit brought by a private data processing firm in Cincinnati.

The firm contended the federal agency was causing a hardship for private industry by providing the service. Judge Rubin said the Federal Home Loan Bank had no basis in law for providing such services.

Ohio Perspective

Issue 5 links consumers, utility companies

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — How much help do residential consumers want in dealings with Ohio gas, electric and telephone companies? If Issue 5 on the November ballot passes, two consumer offices will champion their cause against utilities.

The proposed constitutional amendment would create a Residential Utility Consumers Action Group (RUCAG), an independent, nonprofit advocate office, funded on a voluntary basis.

Regardless of the outcome of the vote on RUCAG, a separate consumer counsel will begin next year intervening on behalf of homeowners and renters in regulatory cases before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO).

The consumer counsel concept, already in effect in about a dozen states, was enacted as part of a major utility rate reform bill.

RUCAG's role would be similar, but the concept of a voluntarily-funded, independent action group for utility consumers would be unique to Ohio, if enacted. It originated with Ralph Nader's Public Interest Research Group in Washington, D.C. and has yet to be adopted by any state.

RUCAG would be financed by voluntary $6 a year check-offs on utility service bills and would be guided at the outset by a seven-member board of trustees, named in the ballot issue.

Ohioans for Utility Reform (OUR), sponsor of the proposition and three other ballot issues, stresses that RUCAG would be free of governmental interference and accountable only to its membership.

"It's not a government agency," says Steve Sterrett, OUR's public information director. "When you are accountable, you are also influenced by. RUCAG will be accountable only to its membership and if it doesn't perform well, ratepayers won't fund it."

Citizens for Safe, Lower Cost Electricity (CSLCE), a utilitybacked coalition opposed to the four OUR amendments, sees RUCAG in a different light— "unnecessary and duplicative."

"It beats me as to why anyone would want to pay twice for representation, especially in this day of increasing costs, and into a fund administered by a group of seven people they know nothing about," says Eugene "Pete" O'Grady, chairman of CSLCE.

Although Ohio's public utilities will be assessed for the operation of the consumer counsel, the office already in existence, the companies will eventually pass this cost on to ratepayers. Consequently, O'Grady reasons a consumer who voluntarily contributed to RUCAG would also be paying for the consumer counsel's activities.

This public consumer counsel will be named early next year by nine trustees from different segments of society, appointed to an advisory board by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown. Should the voters approve issues, RUCAG would operate as a separate entity.

RUCAG's seven original trustees, who would receive expenses but no salary, would serve until contributions reached the $10,000 mark. After that, public elections by congressional district would be held for two-year terms on the policy board.

Although the prospective board members are named in the amendment, O'Grady says "most voters will not know anything about these seven people, let alone know that a 'yes' vote on Issue 5 will elect them to state office."

The seven are: James L. Mack, a Shaker Heights psychologist; John T. Looney of Wadsworth, a representative of the American Friends Service Committee; Edward A. Harter, a Columbus attorney; Susan E. Clark, an Akron social worker; Charles S. Toskas, a Youngstown teacher and consumer protection caseworker; Fred Shuttlesworth of Cincinnati, a Baptist minister, and Susan M. Weaver, director of Cuyahoga County's child abuse prevention program.

Lively election in New Hampshire

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire is having one of its liveliest governor's races in years. The outcome may provide the first test of what effect thousands of new residents will have on the state's politics.

Republican Gov. Meldrim Thomson, a conservative known for his outspoken views, is pitted against liberal Democrat Harry Spanos in the November election. Thomson is trying to become the second governor in the state's modern history to serve three straight terms.

New Hampshire, which despite its small size grabs national attention every four years with the country's first presidential primary, traditionally has been conservative and overwhelmingly Republican.

But in the past six years more than 80,000 new people — about 10 per cent of the state's population — have settled in New Hampshire, many of them seeking to escape higher taxes in other states. New Hampshire is the only state with neither a sales nor an income tax.

The Thomson-Spanos race, according to a number of veteran politicians, is expected to test the sentiments of those new voters because Thomson and Spanos have opposing views on a litany of issues, including the emotional subject of taxes.

In their first joint appearance at a Chamber of Commerce breakfast in Manchester, Thomson called Spanos an "ultra socialist" after Spanos accused Thomson of "one man rule" and undermining government operations during both his two-year terms.

Spanos, 50, a former state senator and an articulate spokesman for the progressive wing of his party, surprised many politicians by defeating two other Democrats in the primary. Thomson easily defeated a moderate Republican to get the GOP nomination, rolling up 65 per cent of the votes.

Thomson, although remaining the favorite, is facing the stiffest race yet because of a divided Republican party and a Democratic party which has captured three of the state's four congressional seats — two since 1974.

"You're going to find the electorate is changing," said John Lynch, executive director of the Democratic state committee. "The election is going to be an indication of the changing mood of the electorate."

Peter Thomson, the governor's son and campaign manager, agrees the election may give an insight on the changing electorate because the candidates have "real philosophical differences."

"If these people came to New Hampshire to escape taxes in Massachusetts they'll vote for Meldrim Thomson. If they came to continue the policies of Massachusetts than they'll vote for Harry Spanos," said the younger Thomson.

Thomson has banked his campaign on his unwavering opposition to the imposition of either general sales or income taxes and his generally conservative fiscal policy. Spanos, who as a state legislator voiced sympathy with a graduated income tax, has said in the campaign that he is opposed to any such tax at this time.

Alcohol education program begins

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Liquor Control has begun an alcohol education program for Ohio's junior high schools.

Director Clifford E. Reich said department representatives will speak at schools on liquor laws for persons under 21. The speaker will coordinate the program with the classroom teacher for discussions on alcholic beverage control, reading material and a department film.

Walleye fishing curb attacked

By JIM DAUBEL
For The Associated Press

Walleye fishing would be closed statewide during seven weeks of the best spring angling for that species if a bill recommended by a House committee is approved by the legislature and governor.

Sponsor of the measure is Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, a longtime foe of the wildlife division and consistent supporter of antigun, antihunting legislation.

Wilkowski's measure would prohibit the taking of walleyes by commercial or sports fishermen from March 24 to May 11 annually. He says it is aimed primarily at curtailing the illegal snagging of walleyes in the Sandusky River at Fremont every spring.

The legislation is opposed by the wildlife division and is expected to come under fire from sportsmen's groups if it is pursued when the General Assembly reconvenes next year.

"I received a number of requests—a vast number—from fishermen who were concerned about the illegal fishing of walleye," Wilkowski explained. "Everyone will agree out here in northwestern Ohio that it's like a Roman circus during spawning season."

The walleye fishing problems in the Sandusky River are well known to the division, which moved two years ago to curb illegal fishing tactics when thousands of the prized gamefish migrate upstream during their annual spring spawning runs in March and April.

Terminal tackle has been restricted and portions of the river closed from 1 a.m. to 5 a.m., when most snagging occurs. Stronger measures, including daylight fishing only, have been advocated within the division but never adopted.

Wilkowski maintains that the natural resources department "has condoned snagging and will continue to condone it because of agreements and arrangements with the League of Ohio Sportsmen, all to the detriment of other fishermen who don't belong to the league or any other sportsmen's organization."

The division and many sportsmen are opposed to Wilkowski's bill for several reasons. First, by protecting the species statewide, they contend all fishermen would be punished for the excesses of a few. Secondly, the division is particularly critical of any move to put fish or game management in the political process.

Wilkowski steered the bill to his own House Economic Affairs Committee rather than the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee, where such bills normally would go.

He said he brought the legislation to his own committee because it "deals with a multitude of subjects. There is no reason why it shouldn't go" before his panel, he said.

Asked why he didn't go before the natural resources committee, Wilkowski replied that "getting an endorsement before a committee means absolutely nothing. The ultimate test is on the floor of the Senate."

ONA seminar slated Oct. 28-30

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Newspaper Association holds its 13th seminar on the use of newspapers in education here Oct. 28-30.

Speakers include Dr. Martin W. Essex, Ohio superintendent of public instruction; Eugue Rutland of the Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial-Appeal; Wilma Blaylock of the Memphis city schools; Nancy Eberhart of the Ohio Department of Education; Lloyd McCrory, superintendent of the Mansfield city schools; and Harry R. Horvitz, president of the Ohio Newspaper Association.

The association has developed projects on understanding the news media for junior high schools and further application of newspapers in learning.

See 61 per cent vote turnout

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some 61 per cent of Ohio's eligible voters will go to the polls for the Nov. 2 presidential election, Secretary of State Ted Brown predicted Tuesday.

The record high equals 4.2 million of the 6.9 million eligible voters, Brown said. He said Montgomery and Franklin counties were the only metropolitan counties to show an increase in voter registration from 1972, but many suburban and rural counties have reported increases from their 1972 figures.

By 1800 there were upwards of 1,000 settlers scattered throughout 35 of the 103 townships in that part of the Western Reserve which was east of the Cuyahoga River, and 700 miles of roads had been cut through the wilderness.—AP

Both sides seek southern political advantages

DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

Beneath the contest between Jimmy Carter and President Ford in the South is another struggle. It may determine the political direction of the New South and the chances for a new Republican majority.

By nominating a native Southerner for president, the Democrats have done two things crucial to the future of the region:

—They have ended a long free ride for Republicans in the South in national elections.

—And they have made it possible for many Southern Democrats to stop doing their own thing at the local level while ignoring the party's presidential ticket.

Ever since the Dixiecrats bolted the party in 1948, the once Solid South has been eroding for the Democrats. Dwight Eisenhower made inroads in 1952 and 1956, and Richard Nixon held some of the new ground in 1960. Barry Goldwater took five Southern states in 1964 despite a Texan heading the Democratic ticket.

In 1968 only Texas stayed with the Democrats. What George Wallace didn't win with his third party bid, Nixon got. And in 1972 Nixon took them all.

The split began over civil rights, but it spread to other issues on which Southern voters generally concluded that the Republican presidential nominees were more conservative, and therefore closer to their own traditions, than the national Democratic party.

Local Democrats, meanwhile, most of them just as conservative as any Republican, simply ignored the national party, or even denounced it while campaigning back home. They ran on their own strength and voting habits older than the Civil War.

At the same time they continued to call themselves Democrats, keeping their seniority in Congress and other benefits of national party support. They had the best of both worlds.

But a couple of things happened which threatened this comfortable accommodation. For one thing, once Southerners had dared to vote against the party of their fathers at one level, it was an easier step to the next. Southern districts began sending Republicans to Congress for the first time since Reconstruction.

Sensing a trend, some newcomers decided to enter politics under the new banner, and some lifelong Democrats, like Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who had first defected as Dixiecrats, completed the switch and became Republicans.

But just as the conservative mood of the Old South was leading it to what was seen as the more conservative party, the old patterns were being broken by the 1965 voting rights act, which brought thousands of new black voters onto the rolls.

Segregationists were no longer automatically winning elections. Blacks began to be elected to public office. And white New South politicians, able to draw from both constituencies, began to appear, men like Carter in Georgia, Reubin Askew in Florida, Dale Bumpers in Arkansas, Wendell Ford in Kentucky.

Now, one of the New Southerners is heading the Democratic ballot.

"The South sees him the kind of presidential nominee they have been asking the Democrats for," said an early Carter backer. "For the first time they have a candidate who is nationally acceptable ad whom they can accept and identify with."

"Most local candidates for the first time are proud to have the national ticket tied to their campaigns," said David Dunn, Carter's Florida campaign coordinator.

If Carter makes the national Democratic party respectable to Southern voters, the main advantage the Republicans had in the South will be wiped out. And most of them know it. Ford workers say they are surprised at the way Ronald Reagan's conservative Republican backers are pitching in to save the Ford campaign in Dixie.

The kind of Southerners who are sticking with the GOP appear to be in large measure those who would have been Republicans all along if they had lived in another part of the country — businessmen, professionals, white collar workers, suburbanites.

This is a growing class in the South and could provide a reasonable base for a growing Republican party no matter who wins the presidency — if the GOP can adapt its approach and cultivate these voters.

On the other hand, one of the things which has stumped Ford's strategists is the way the rural South and the growing urban industrial working class is sticking with Carter.

Despite their conservative bent on social issues, these people are closely affected by the basic economic issues which have always been the strength of the Democratic party. Recession and inflation influence them just as much as voters anywhere else.

That basic Carter strength has not been lost on the Democrats of the old school. While Ford is picking up some Democratic support in the South, he is not getting it in the measure that Nixon, Goldwater, and Eisenhower did. There are people lining up behind Carter who haven't backed the national ticket in two or three decades.

If this means embracing a liberalized New South in the person of Jimmy Carter, most of them seem willing to do it. This was graphically illustrated when Sens. James Eastland and John Stennis accompanied Carter to Mississippi for a public annointing. Even Ross Barnett, who was perhaps the most famous of Mississippi's segregationist governors, is on Carter's steering committee in the state.

Ford's hopes of saving the South for the GOP lie in trying to convince Southerners that as a conservative he holds greater right to their loyalties, even though Carter was born and raised in their midst.

"He may talk like us but he doesn't think like us," said Haley Barbour, the young Mississippian who is Ford's Southern coordinator. And that is the heart of the strategy, that the South "will vote principles instead of geography."

Carter's hopes lie in the belief that the New South retains its traditional regional pride while it tolerates new ideas.

"We don't think Jimmy's out of the mainstream of the South," said Phil Wise, Carter's Southern coordinator. "A lot of the pride of the South is at stake in this race."

Some Carter supporters see his candidacy as a kind of vindication of the South, and this has made a lot of Southerners protective of Jimmy Carter.

After his Playboy interview appeared some Carter campaign offices received calls from people asking just which verses of Scripture he had been referring to in his explanation of pride and lust.

"Now these people know the Bible," said Dunn. "They weren't asking for their own instruction. They wanted the right verses to defend him with."

One problem Ford has in campaigning in the South stems from the very nature of Republican party growth in the region. It has been based largely on the appeal of a national ticket which sold itself and never built a local base independent of coattails.

In some Southern states — Louisiana is a good example — the Republican party has been run more like a private club than a political party. It lacks the organization and machinery for delivering the vote.

Ford must necessarily depend largely on direct appeal from the candidate to the voter through media or through central telephone banks, both highly expensive.

Nevertheless, Ford has potential in some areas of the South, primarily because of the ideological appeal his campaign is trying to press.

Although the national polls show Carter's regional lead over Ford as great as 20 percentage points, local polling and a field survey by The Associated Press show Ford within striking distance in Louisiana, with its large Catholic vote and pockets of high conservatism; in Mississippi, with its conservative nature; in South Carolina, home state of Thurmond and a Republican governor, James Edwards; and in Florida, where Ford strategists say they are six points behind and gaining.

Texas and Virginia, where Republicans have shown consistent strength in recent years, are considered toss-up states.

Carter's headquarters disagrees with the Republican claims and says Carter is leading comfortably throughout the South.

Federal agencies set open meetings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dozens of federal commissions and boards are preparing to hold meetings that will open their operations to public view for the first time.

The federal panels are required to begin holding open meetings by next March under the new "Government in the Sunshine" act, which is aimed at opening the business of at least some public agencies to the public.

The new law affects only the 50-odd federal regulatory agencies. It does not apply to executive branch agencies like the White House or to the Congress, which enacted it.

Only the Federal Power Commission and the Consumer Product Safety Commission among major federal regulatory agencies now hold meetings open to the public. But even these two agencies have some adjustments to make to comply with the law.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission, for example, now conducts its votes in secret but will not be allowed to vote privately on most matters in the future.

Spokesmen for several agencies contacted by The Associated Press said study groups have been appointed to consider how to convert to the "sunshine" policy mandated by Congress.

"There are many mechanics to be worked out," said Henry Patrick, a spokesman for the Federal Communications Commission. "For example, we have a room that holds about 100 people. We'll have to decide if we have to expand the room."

He said the FCC is "nowhere near ready" to implement the new law.

However, several other agencies said they plan to comply with the new requirements before the March deadline.

"Our intention is to comply by about early February," said Andy Rothman, a spokesman for the Securities and Exchange Commission. The SEC also has a task force studying how to put the new law into effect.

Rothman said one problem is that "Congress neglected to give us any funds with which to implement the law."

Warren County program cancelled

Flu shot deaths top 30

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — The death of a Mason, Ohio dentist after receiving a swine flu immunization shot sparked cancellation of the Warren County shot program and a dispute between coroner and public health authorities about the safety of the program.

"The federal government takes products off the market that kill mice but not human beings, like saccharin, but here they are in a crash immunization program and they aren't sure it's safe," said Warren County Coroner Dr. Ralph Young.

The controversy was sparked by the death Wednesday morning of Dr. Alvin C. Erbeck, 74, less than a day after he received a shot at Montgomery, Ohio, in adjacent Hamilton County.

"You can't get flu from a flu shot," said Cincinnati Health Commissioner Dr. Arnold Leff, adding that the death was reported to the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Leff said, however, Hamilton County will continue with its program. He said more than 65,000 elderly had been immunized with no ill effects.

The Warren County Board of Health, after hearing Dr. Young, cancelled its immunization program indefinitely. It was set to start Friday.

"It is my position," said Dr. Young, "Dr. Erbeck died of acute gastroenteritis. It is of a viral nature and I can't say yes or no if there is any danger from the vaccine. National health authorities can't agree on this and I think there are too many unknown factors not to warrant caution," said Dr. Young, who said he has now decided against getting a shot himself. He said "I will also advise my patients against it. I believe it is my duty as a public official to warn the public as well."

The Warren County Board of Health cancelled its immunization plans pending an autopsy on the death of Dr. Erbeck which will be performed by the office of Hamilton County Coroner Dr. Frank Cleveland. It will take about two weeks, Dr. Young said.

"I see a man, who was in normal health, die 24 hours after receiving the immunization. I don't think we as public officials can not fail to warn the public against taking the shots until this is proven non-related," Young said.

"I won't stand behind any smoke screen. This man died of a viral infection, exact cause undetermined, and I'm waving the red flag saying the immunization program should go slow."

Warren County Medical Director Dr. Ray E. Simendinger said he felt delay was "the only prudent thing to do." However, he said "I don't think the Mason, Ohio death will substantiate anything concerning a connection with the swine flu. I feel we should hold up though, not because of a personal concern, but because we need to know if Dr. Erbeck had any past difficulties and we need to solidify our position."

Dr. Young said Erbeck's relatives reported the victim had symptoms within three hours of taking the shot. These included diarhea, chills, vomiting, headaches and fever.

Three of nine states that suspended the swine flu inoculation program have decided to resume giving shots after tests revealed no evidence that the vaccine caused the deaths of elderly persons.

But several areas reported sharp declines in the number of persons showing up Wednesday for the free inoculations. The program is designed to reach up to 200 million Americans.

There was no hesitation at the White House, however, where President Ford's personal physician, William Lukash, said the 63-year-old President would receive his shot today.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford scheduled the shot for today in an effort to persuade Americans the vaccine was safe.

Officials in Louisiana and Illinois on Wednesday ordered the resumption of their programs. Vermont authorities said immunizations would resume on Friday.

At least 33 elderly persons in 16 states — most with a history of heart trouble — are reported to have died after receiving the inoculations.

That includes three persons in the Pittsburgh area whose deaths Monday prompted nine states to suspend the program a day later.

Federal and state officials stress that there is no known connection between the $135-million vaccination program — which began Oct. 1 — and the deaths.

Other states where the program was halted were Alaska, Maine, Michigan, New Mexico, Texas — except Houston — and Wisconsin. There also were suspensions of the program in some areas of other states.

At least 21 states have yet to begin inoculations.

Food and Drug Administration officials said Wednesday they found no evidence in preliminary tests that a batch of swine flu vaccine used at a Pittsburgh-area clinic was responsible for the deaths there.

The FDA said it had completed tests of 35 vials of vaccine gathered from the Pittsburgh clinic and found no trace of foreign materials. FDA officials said they would run more tests on the samples' purity and potency in about a week.

Spokesmen for the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta repeated that "there is no evidence that the program should be curtailed in any way."

A spot check, however, showed a decrease in the number of persons lining up for shots.

In New York City, health officials said 10,000 persons showed up on Wednesday, compared with 20,000 who were inoculated Tuesday.

Pennsylvania officials said 12,803 persons were inoculated Wednesday, a drop of 11,000 from the day before. And in Florida, the director of the swine flu program in Dade County, the state's most populous, said the turnout was about one-fourth what it was on Tuesday, when more than 10,000 persons were vaccinated.

Ford, Carter seek electoral votes

New York prime target

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

New York, with 41 electoral votes, is shaping up as a prime target of both major party presidential candidates as Jimmy Carter heads into the state on the heels of a two-day visit by President Ford.

Carter was flying to New York today after spending a quiet two days at his home in Plains, Ga. It was the beginning of a three-day trip in which the Democratic presidential nominee also will touch down in Detroit, Kansas City, Mo., and Cincinnati, Youngstown and Columbus, Ohio.

Ford returned home to Washington on Wednesday night after swinging through New York City's middle-class suburbs. There he voiced saber-edged criticism of Carter and promised that a Ford administration will show "compassion for the American taxpayer."

But there was potential trouble awaiting Ford in Washington.

It was reported that the special Watergate prosecutor will decide this week whether to look into claims that Ford discussed with members of Richard Nixon's White House ways of blocking an early investigation of the Watergate scandal.

And the Washington Post reported in today's editions that the Democratic National Committee is preparing to file a complaint with the Federal Election Commission about Ford's alleged use of aides and Cabinet members, who earn government salaries, for campaign duties.

Both vice presidential candidates, Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale and Republican Sen. Bob Dole, were heading for Houston, where they meet Friday night in a nationally televised debate.

Ford, at each stop on Wednesday, told his audiences that Carter wants to raise their taxes but that a Ford administration will cut taxes. At White Plains, N.Y., Ford said, "I say the middle-income taxpayer is already overtaxed, overburdened and underrepresented."

And he signed a bill extending the federal revenue-sharing program for 3½ years at a projected cost of $25.5 billion. The money goes to state and local governments.

In a statement issued in Plains, Carter said, "I am pleased that Mr. Ford has decided to sign the bill." But, he said, "I do regret that so little else has been done by this administration to ease the plight of our cities and to help restore a true federalism in our system of government."

He said Ford had vetoed legislation that would have provided needed aid to cities and states.

Meanwhile, the Ford administration announced an increase in the production loan rates for wheat and feed grains after months of rejecting farmers' pleas for such increases.

There were indications the move could aid the Ford campaign in grain-growing states where the race with

U.S. set to deport alleged war criminals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Karlas Detlavs says he was aware back in 1941 that Nazi soldiers were rounding up Jews for the concentration camps in his native Latvia.

By his own account, Detlavs did little. "How do you help? If you help the Jews the Nazis will put you in the concentration camps, too," he said Wednesday.

The U.S. government has other thoughts about Detlav's activities in Latvia. Wednesday, it announced the beginning of deportation proceedings against him and two other men it says helped the Nazis kill hundreds of Jews in Latvia and Lithuania during World War II.

Named by the government were Boleslavs Maikovskis, 72, of Mineola, N.Y., a Latvian native; Bronius Kaminskas, 73, a native Lithuanian of Hartford, Conn.; and Detlavs, 65, of Baltimore. The three were charged with illegally entering the United States after the war by lying about their wartime activities.

The charges were part of a new campaign aimed at resolving the allegations against some 77 people in the United States accused of being war criminals. If the government succeeds, it will mark the first time alleged Nazi war criminals have been deported and forced to leave the country.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service will hold three separate hearings Nov. 15 when the three individuals will have to show cause why they should not be deported. The central issue at these hearings will be whether they lied when they entered the country.

If deported, the three would simply be forced to leave the country. They could be subject to prosecution by another country if they entered that country's jurisdiction.

The government in 1973 allowed the extradition of Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan of Queens, N.Y., to West Germany, where she is awaiting trial for murder. But she was not deported, a process where the U.S. government begins the process of forcing a person to leave, while extradition results from the initiative of a foreign government.

There was no direct indication by the government of how the accusations against the three were lodged or by whom. But a lawyer for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, James Vincent, has just returned from Israel, where he gathered eyewitness accounts of atrocities for use in the new government campaign.

Maikovskis in 1965 was convicted in absentia of war crimes and sentenced to death by a Soviet tribunal in Riga. At that time, American authorities refused Soviet requests for his extradition.

Kaminskas was charged with participating in shooting about 60 children near the Medziolkalnis Woods in Lithuania in September 1941.

Share totals $26,779

City Council accepts compromised tax rate

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

A resolution accepting amounts and rates as determined by the Fayette County Budget Commission following a compromise reached this week on an unlevied tax was adopted Wednesday night by Washington C.H. City Council.

In essence, City Council agreed to accept $26,779 as its share of a three-tenths of a mill tax which will be levied by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners.

The Fayette County Budget Commission Wednesday received approval from the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals to reconvene and adjust the tax rate for 1977 to include the three-tenths of a mill tax on the county duplicate.

Earlier this year the Fayette County Board of Commissioners decided not to impose the full 3.0 mills of inside operating millage and by a joint agreement between the commissioners and the county budget commission only 2.7 mills were levied for county operations in 1977.

A political advertisement by Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford last week criticized the action and it was discovered the three-tenths of a mill tax belonged to the city.

The discovery resulted in negotiations between city and county officials and an agreement was reached to have the county levy the tax and reimburse the city a total of $26,779.

Under the agreement reached, the local government distribution formula will be changed in order that this city will receive a 48 per cent share. The city formerly received 39.87 per cent of the funds which are provided from the state based on the amount of sales tax generated by each county.

Dumford and City Manager George H. Shapter were applauded by City Council members for their efforts in obtaining the tax revenue.

"I'd like to thank Bucky for bringing to the attention of the county auditor this oversight on the millage," said Council member James Ward.

Council member Ralph L. Cook said, "I's like to thank George (Shapter) for pursuing this tax thing." Council finance chairman Mrs. Bertha McCullough added that she believed the city manager "did a very excellent job."

She and Shapter attended an emergency meeting of the budget commission to negotiate the city's share of the three-tenths of a mill tax. Countywide, the tax is expected to produce $51,000 and the city first requested a $35,000 share.

But, Shapter added a word of caution despite the added tax revenue to be received by the city.

"Even though we'll be receiving some $26,000, we still need the two levies we have on the ballot.

The city has two one-mill levy renewals on the November 2 general election ballot. The levies are earmarked for street maintenance and operation of the Washington C.H. Fire Department.

Additional coverage of Wednesday night's regular Washington C.H. City Council meeting can be found on page 14 of today's edition.

Millage to be imposed

Budget commission re-establishes tax

The Fayette County Budget Commission met Wednesday to re-establish tax rates and local government money distributions to the city and county.

The commission voted unanimously to assess the three-tenths of a mill tax formerly dropped from the county duplicate. It will now be imposed on all Fayette County residents as it has been in past years.

The action came in a lengthy collection of "whereas" and "therefore." Essentially, the commission was faced with allowing the county to levy the tax in accordance with an agreement reached between city and county officials or levying it against city residents only.

After the county elected not to collect the millage for 1977, it was determined that the city had the right to impose it on its residents. Had the city done so, the county would have lost the opportunity to levy the millage indefinitely.

The compromise agreement allowed the county to levy the tax while the city and county shared in the proceeds.

The city's share of local government funds was increased by $26,779 to compensate for allowing the county to levy the tax.

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners voted unanimously to accept the millage increase.

Wednesday night, City Council accepted its tax rate for 1977.

Hot dog man in the soup

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Charges are pending in two cities against a 24-year-old businessman who revolutionized lunchtime on the streets of downtown Columbus with pushcart hot dog stands.

Z. Felix Szymanski, whose All-American Hot Dog Corp. operates from gaily decorated stands in downtown Columbus, is charged with two counts of passing bad checks in an indictment returned Tuesday by the Franklin County Grand Jury.

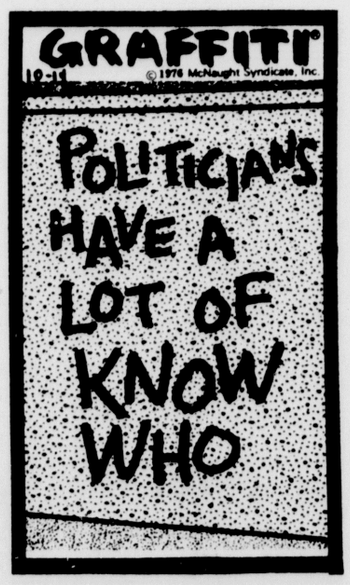
The corporation was also named in the indictment.

Meanwhile, arrest warrants have been issued in Philadelphia for Szymanski and five other officers of the Ohio corporation for theft, deceptive business practices, bad checks and criminal conspiracy. The Columbus firm has been named in a separate warrant.

Representatives of the Philadelphia district attorney's office will travel to Columbus this week to make arrests, according to Eugene Boggia, assistant district attorney in charge of the investigation.

The men allegedly solicited five Philadelphia investors to contribute between $3,250 and $3,500 each for hot dog carts that were to have been operated during Bicentennial activities this summer.

No All-American hot dog carts have appeared on Philadelphia streets so far, despite the completion of most of the city's Bicentennial activities, Boggia said.



Bolivia jet crash toll tops 100

SANTA CRUZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia began three days of national mourning today for more than 100 of its people killed when a chartered American cargo jet plowed through a street crowd and into a group of young soccer players at practice.

The three American crewmen of the Boeing 707 were also killed.

At least 100 Bolivians were hospitalized, a government spokesman said, "and there are injured who are hovering between life and death."

He said at least half the victims were children.

The spokesman reported 84 bodies, including those of the Americans, had been identified.

Officials said it was the worst aviation disaster in Bolivia's history. President Hugo Banzer flew to Santa Cruz, 350 miles southeast of La Paz, ordered three days of national mourning and said he would lead the funeral procession Thursday morning.

The four-engine jet was owned by Jet Power Inc. of Miami and was chartered to a Bolivian firm, Lloyd Aerero Boliviano. After delivering oil well machinery and other cargo from Houston, it had just taken off empty at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday from the airport on the edge of the city when it faltered.

"People at the scene said they heard an explosion before it fell and saw fire in one of the motors on the left wing," a Bolivian air force officer told reporters.

The plane clipped the tops off several big trees, demolished a corner of the Julio Gutierrez primary school, mowed down a line of people buying kerosene from a street vendor on Avenida de Ejercito, and crashed into a practice field outside the municipal soccer stadium where a number of people were watching two boys' teams scrimmaging.

The pupils at the school were home for lunch, but the caretaker, his wife and three children were in the building and were killed, an air force official said.

Another official said about 50 people were killed in the kerosene line, about 40 were killed on the soccer field, and eight boys were suffocated in a locker room of the stadium by smoke from the burning plane.

Debris and bodies were strewn across the soccer field.

"All those people were destroyed, burned, mutilated," a witness said. "It was like a scene from Dante. There were screams from the burned people."

Jet Power Inc. said the three crewmen were Capt. Charles Baldwin, a former airline pilot; first officer Lee Marsh; and flight engineer Leslie Bennett. All were from the Miami area.

An air force officer said the plane's instruments indicated that one of the engines on the left wing failed. The "black box" flight recorder was recovered and turned over to investigators.

Secret U.S. arms system sale near

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's decision to supply Israel with a major new infrared night-fighting system collides with long-standing opposition by U.S. military men who contend such advanced technology should be withheld from other countries.

In this case, it appears that only a few senior Pentagon officials knew in advance that approval would be given to sell the Israelis the system, which still is under development.

It was not known whether Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, or any other members of the JCS were consulted beforehand.

There were strong indications that disclosure of the agreement to provide Israel with additional weapons and other military equipment was premature. Word was dropped by Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon during a picture-taking session in Ford's office Monday and then confirmed by the White House.

State Department spokesman Robert L. Funseth described the new arms decision as routine and said it grew out of an "ongoing relationship" between the United States and Israel.

Pentagon sources said U.S. military men have opposed, with limited success, the provision of certain weapons and other gear representing advanced technology to Israel for fear it might fall into Arab hands in battle and then reach the Soviet Union.

American military men are especially anxious to safeguard technology that they believe gives the United States a head start of five to ten years over the Soviet Union.

The FLIR (acronym for Forward-Looking Infrared) system promised to Israel falls in this category, sources said.

FLIR uses heat-sensitive infrared sensors instead of radar to detect targets in the dark. Pilots of F4 and F111 fighterbombers will use it, together with laser-guided bombs and missiles, against tanks, bunkers, enemy aircraft and other targets.

One specialist, calling FLIR "spectacular," said target images shown on a screen in a plane's cockpit are as clearly visible as in daylight.

Unlike radar, such heat-sensing devices are jam-proof. Infrared sensors also are impervious to interference from dust clouds, such as might be stirred up in desert warfare.

The FLIR system reportedly will not be ready for installation on U.S. warplanes for several years. It is uncertain when the Israelis would get theirs.

Red China leaders hold big powwow

TOKYO (AP) — Leaders of the Chinese Communist party are believed meeting in Peking to back up Premier Hua Kuofeng's purge of radical party leaders and perhaps to prepare the formal announcement of his elevation to chairman of the party, Japanese press reports from the Chinese capital said today.

Kyodo news agency reported that scores of limousines were parked Wednesday night at the Great Hall of the People, the Chinese party's central meeting hall. The report said traffic control in the area was strengthened, and that police were patrolling adjacent streets.

There was speculation that Hua had called the Communist party Central Committee together to endorse his reported arrest last weekend of Chiang Ching, Mao Tse-tung's firebrand widow, and some 30 other leading party radicals.

There was no confirmation from the Hsinhua news agency, Peking Radio or other official Chinese organs that a party meeting was in progress. Nor was there any official confirmation of the purge.

However, Japanese correspondents reported that photographs of Chiang Ching and the other three leading radical members of the party Politburo — Shanghai leader Wang Hungwen, Vice Premier Chang Chun-chiao and ideologist Yao Wen-yuan — were no longer on sale in the city. This was another indication that the widespread reports of the purge were true, since photographs of disgraced leaders usually disappear quickly.

The power struggle between moderate and radical leaders that has been going on in China for years was intensified by the death in January of Premier Chou En-lai. Radicals blocked the advancement of First Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-peng, Chou's choice for his successor, and succeeded in having him purged. But Hua, 57, who was named premier and first vice chairman of the party, was considered a compromise choice whose leanings in the power struggle were not clear.

As first vice chairman, Hua has been acting head of the party since Mao's death Sept. 9, and wall posters in Peking last week said he had been named chairman. Foreign correspondents in Peking reported this week that a spokesman for the Chinese Foreign Ministry confirmed the poster report and said the formal announcement would be made after the entire party organization had been informed.

President cleared in Michigan probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate prosecutor Charles Ruff today cleared President Ford of any wrongdoing in connection with campaign finances in his home county while he was in Congress.

"The matter has now been closed, and counsel for the President has been so advised," Ruff said in a two-page statement issued to reporters.

Ruff said FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley on July 13 alerted the Justice Department to "information concerning alleged misuse of political contributions" by Ford during the period from 1964 to early 1974.

That information "concerned a previously unreported allegation that political contributions from certain named unions had been transmitted to political committees in Kent County, Mich., with the understanding that they would be passed on to Mr. Ford for his personal use," the statement said.

Ruff identified the source on the allegation only as "an individual who had recently become aware of the underlying information."

He said the individual took the allegation to an FBI agent.

As actress, Liz Ray makes good typist

ST. CHARLES, Ill. (AP) — Elizabeth Ray made her stage debut playing a movie sex goddess with a pink towel as part of her wardrobe. Some critics thought another towel should have been thrown in after the first act.

Miss Ray, who starred in the Washington sex scandals last June, launched a hoped-for acting career Wednesday night in a 21-year-old comedy that was racy for its time — "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter."

The 33-year-old former secretary was the one who brought down Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, by claiming that he placed her on his congressional payroll as a typist when her real duties were sexual.

After the performance, she confided in her dressing room that she had been very nervous in the first act.

"If you were on a rubbing table with nothing on but a towel, you would be nervous, too," she said. "But after the first act, my nervousness seemed to wear off.

"Most of all I was afraid I would lose that towel, and also 70 per cent of my lines were in that first act."

Miss Ray had the fringe benefit of a fine supporting cast as she tripped almost birdlike across the small stage of Pheasant Run Theater, 40 miles west of Chicago.

Several times she flubbed her lines, and at other times she was barely audible. One of the biggest laughs from the curious playgoers came when she sat down and tried to use a typewriter.

The theater was far from a sellout, with only about two-thirds of the 450 seats filled.

Miss Ray throughout had trouble keeping her long blonde hair out of her eyes. And she brought another laugh when she got off the rubbing table and said in her high, little voice, "I'm just terrible in bed. Everybody says so."

One critic was heard to mutter, "She should have stood in bed."

Miss Ray's role as Rita Marlowe was created for the late Jayne Mansfield about a blonde sex symbol movie star who fancies herself a deep thinker. Miss Ray seemed to sum it up several days ago in an interview when she said, "Without skills, it's hard to make a living."

The play is scheduled for a one-month run.

Ford sets News meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will hold a televised news conference tonight to comment on closing of the Watergate special prosecutor's probe of his congressional campaign finances and to field questions over that and other issues, the White House announced.

There was no other immediate response from Ford to special prosecutor Charles Ruff's announcement that he is closing the books on the investigation of contributions to Ford's congressional campaign committees in Michigan.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the President requested that his 7:30 p.m. EDT news conference be carried live by television and radio networks.

Ford probably will make an opening statement that will focus on the conclusion of the probe, and then field questions, Nessen said.

Ford has not held a formal news conference in the capital since last Feb. 17. Tonight's session was to be held in the Executive Office Building next to the White House.

Nessen said Ruff notified the President's counsel, Philip Buchen, by letter Wednesday night about his decision to end the investigation.

The unexpected news conference caused a half-hour postponement in a black-tie dinner the White House has scheduled tonight to honor dancer-choreographer Martha Graham.

Cold front, winds in northeast

By The Associated Press

A cold front that became active when it reached the Northeast produced showers and thundershowers over the Great Lakes region and the north Atlantic states before ending early today.

Thunderstorm gusts reached 62 miles an hour at Elmira, N.Y.; 58 miles an hour at Johnstown, Pa.; and 56 miles an hour at Watertown, N.Y. Small hail fell in parts of northern Michigan, but rainfalls in the area were light in the six-hour period ending at 2 a.m. EDT today.

Precipitation elsewhere consisted of only a few light showers over the southern parts of Arizona and New Mexico, and extreme western Texas.

A sharp change in the weather was predicted for the Northwestern part of the nation today as a strong cold front from Canada barreling into the area with gusty winds. In Montana, winds have gusted to 56 miles per hour at Livingston, while winds reached 45 miles per hour at Havre.

Showers, with snow in the higher elevations, were forecast for the northern Rockies and northwestern Plains today, with temperatures falling into the 20s and lower 30s by night.

Outside of the shower areas, the only other cloudy part of the country overnight was along the Pacific coast, where some dense fog was forming. Overnight skies across the remainder of the United States ranged from clear to partly cloudy.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 76 at Key West, Fla., and Yuma, Ariz., to 24 at Craig, Colo.

The forecast for today calls for scattered showers with mostly cloudy skies and colder temperatures over Montana east of the continental divide, western North Dakota, New England and northeastern New York. A few snow flurries may be seen over northern New England and northeast New York. Elsewhere, skies will be sunny or fair. Cooler weather will spread over most of the Great Lakes region and the Ohio Valley into western New York. It will continue rather cool from the southern Rockies through most of Texas and southeast Arizona, and it will be mild in the rest of the nation.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, hesitating after the sharp swings of recent days.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped about 3 points in the early going, but gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said traders seemed uncertain whether Wednesday's rally, sharp as it was, had firmly reversed the downtrend of the previous two weeks.

Today's early prices included Philadelphia Electric, unchanged at 17½; Lawter Chemicals, down ⅝ at 8½, and Continental Oil, up ⅛ at 36⅜.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 15.95 to 948.30 after having lost 81.78 in the 11 prior sessions.

Advances outnumbered declines by about a 5-2 margin on the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index rose .64 to 54.51.

Big Board volume reached 21.69 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .27 to 98.23.

Carter is close, but Agriculture Department officials denied any political motivation.

Carter had issued a statement Monday calling for such increases to help farmers get loans they say they can't get in sufficient amounts under current market conditions. Acting Secretary of Agriculture John A. Knebel denied that the raises were "in response" to Carter's plea.

Meanwhile, Reps. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and John Conyers, D-Mich., both members of the House committee that voted to recommend impeaching Nixon, have asked Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff to look into the possibility that Ford lied at hearings held before he was confirmed as Nixon's vice president.

And Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the House Banking Committee, also called on Ruff to look into the matter.

The question Ruff is being asked to answer is whether Ford, as House GOP leader, acted at the behest of Nixon's White House when he helped stop an investigation of Watergate money in the fall of 1972.

Ford, who has acknowledged fighting such a probe, denied under oath during his vice presidential confirmation hearings that he had done so at the request of White House aides.

However, former Nixon aide John Dean said Richard K. Cook, a White House lobbyist, was told to seek Ford's help in blocking the probe. Dean said, "I can recall Dick coming back and telling, for example, how Jerry (Ford) was going to call a meeting of the minority members ... and really tell them what they should do on the day of the vote and how they should hold together and things of this nature."

Cook, now a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. executive, said, "despite John Dean's repeated and frantic requests, I never spoke with Mr. Ford" about blocking the probe. Cook said, "There is no question in my mind that the President told the truth" at confirmation hearings.

Meanwhile, Jesse M. Calhoon, president of the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, said Wednesday the relationship between his union and Ford "has been on the highest moral and ethical level."

Calhoon, subpoenaed in a grand jury probe of Ford's political finances, which was also launched by Ruff, said he has no reason to believe Ford misused donations from his union.

He said his union donated $12,000 to Ford's congressional races in 1968, 1970 and 1972, but that the union gave Ford no other funds.

CBS chief suddenly quits post

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

Just 15 months after his powerful boss said he'd be "greatly pleased to have him as my successor," Arthur R. Taylor, 41, abruptly quit his $480,000-a-year job as president of CBS Inc.

Industry observers were surprised by his unexpected decision Wednesday to leave the billion-dollar conglomerate he's headed since 1972. He disclosed neither his future plans nor reasons for leaving. CBS declined to say why he resigned.

But it said his decision in no way involved CBS-TV's poor ratings this season or the controversial "family viewing" concept for early-evening shows he initiated and the networks adopted in September 1975.

A knowledgeable industry source attributed Taylor's departure to a personality clash between the handsome young executive and his strong-willed boss, CBS board chairman William S. Paley, 75.

Paley went to great lengths in July 1975 to rebut an article in "New York" magazine that mentioned "a strong rumor" that he and Taylor "aren't hitting it off" together.

"Absolute nonsense," Paley said in a statement then. "As I have said before and as I have been quoted in the press, Arthur Taylor and I have a very good relationship and I would be greatly pleased to have him as my successor."

Paley, declining to comment on Taylor's sudden resignation, praised him in a statement Wednesday, and tersely added:

"We understand and appreciate his decision to make other plans for his future. We wish him the very best."

CBS said Taylor, an investment banker who rose to executive vice president at International Paper Co. before joining CBS, turned in his resignation shortly before a CBS board meeting Wednesday.

Women's liberation reaches bookstores

By GWEN FLORIO
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — "A Mind of Your Own" is one bookstore where little girls don't play with dolls and Mommy isn't always home while Daddy works.

Instead, the children's books the store carries picture girls with wrenches or fixing pipes. Boys do the cooking.

"We tried to choose books that offered children more options," said Bill Anderson, a day-care worker who volunteers at the nonprofit store.

"They show that girls don't have to be just mothers, or some man's possession," he said in an interview. "And there are books that show little boys crying or playing with dolls, all in a very positive light."

Judy Brunk, head of the board of directors that runs the store, said, "We also carry books dealing with problems children go through, such as death or living with a single parent.

"There was a need for an alternative bookstore in Des Moines to provide books people couldn't get in other stores, especially children's literature."

In selecting books, staffers look for those that don't stereotype women and for books written by women about their experiences, said Joyce Drury, coordinator of elderly services for Iowa Children and Family Services.

The store carries a wide selection of fiction and poetry. It also offers medical and sociological literature, with books on natural childbirth, abortion and battered wives.

But children's books are the fastest-selling, said Ms. Drury.

So far, customers have reacted favorably to the store, she said. "A lot come in just to visit, and to talk about the women's movement."

None of the nearly 50 men and women involved in the bookstore have been in the business before, said Ms. Brunk. Each of them contributed $50 or 50 hours of work to help get the store opened three weeks ago. Day-to-day affairs are handled by a 12-person policy-making board.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHRBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "announcer" on the "Lohman and Barkley" TV comedy show here looked awfully familiar. No matter that he did an Ed McMahon-style introduction entirely in Japanese.

He later did an entire Henny Youngman routine of one-liners in Japanese. I fell down laughing each time, then suddenly realized: That's Jack Soo.

Soo, as "Barney Miller" fans know, is the deadpan, middleaged Japanese-American who brews the bad coffee on the show.

Inquiries were made, and it turns out that Soo, born in Oakland, Calif., didn't start in show business as an actor. He started as a singer, then became a comic and finally an actor.

"That routine you saw was part of my old, old act," he said with a laugh. "I did it maybe 25-30 years ago, but always in English. This was the first time I did it in Japanese, even the punch lines."

Soo's comedy career began in 1941, when he ran out of tunes he knew and had to pad his act with jokes while sharing the bill with a stripper at a club in Watsonville, near Ft. Ord., Calif.

The career was interrupted by a shameful part of U.S. history when, after Japan's Pearl Harbor attack, he became one of thousands of Japanese-Americans the government uprooted from their West Coast homes and put in internment camps for most of the war.

Soo — whose real name is Suzuki — spent two years at Camp Topaz, Utah. He doesn't like to discuss his memories of those years. But he says he was in a concentration camp, not an internment camp.

"I'd just started what I loved. I felt my life had ended right there," he added. But things took a turn for the better.

He was released shortly before war's end. He wound up in Cleveland, hired as a part-time barkeep, part-time singer in a Chinese restaurant owned by a gent by the name of Mr. Chin.

"He was a very kind man," Soo recalled. He said the owner knew he was of Japanese descent and advised him to change his name from Suzuki to Soo. This was done, and Jack's career resumed.

"The funny part of the thing is that the boss told all his Chinese employes that this 'Chinese fellow' never learned to speak Chinese because he came from Iowa and there were no Chinese around."

Soo edged back into show business, joining Joey Bishop in 1949 as the latter's straight man, then worked clubs on his own. He got his big break in 1959 in Broadway's "Flower Drum Song."

A good agent helps in Hollywood, but Soo became a regular in the hit "Barney Miller" because he helped a fellow comic "with the lousiest night-club act in the world" change a flat tire 28 years ago on a cold morning before dawn in Springfield, Ill.

"He also borrowed ten bucks from me," Soo recalled. "I wouldn't let him pay me back because I wanted him to be obligated to me the rest of his life.

"So when we parted, he says, 'Someday I'm going to be a writer-producer and you're gonna work for me.' And I said, 'Oh yeah, sure.'"

The comic was a guy named Danny Arnold. He now happens to be executive producer of "Barney Miller."

Ohio University enrollment rises

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University reports enrollment on the Athens campus has increased for the first time in five years. Preliminary figures place enrollment at 13,809, up 5 per cent from the 1975-76 school year.

Provost Neil Bucklew said the most encouraging part of the report showed a 16 per cent increase in enrollment of freshmen.

FOR A STRONG AND RESPECTED VOICE IN COUNTY GOVERNMENT

ELECT
LAURENCE A. DUMFORD
COUNTY COMMISSIONER
January 3rd Term
DEMOCRAT

YOU CAN NOT HAVE A PROGRESSIVE COUNTY BY ELECTING NEGATIVE CANDIDATES

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT

One of the responsibilities of a county commissioner is that he be qualified to handle the tax payers money in an efficient manner. I would point out that I helped make balanced county budgets for a period of twelve years, when we did not have the luxury of receiving $220,000 per year of revenue sharing money. My opponent would have you believe that his presence in the commissioner's office assures you of reduced spending. A close look at the county general fund appropriations over the past five years will dispel this theory. Appropriation is the approval to spend.

YEAR	COMMISSIONER	APPROPRIATION
1972	Dumford	$670,385.
1973	Perrill	$695,906.
1974	Perrill	$789,927.
1975	Perrill	$804,935.
1976	Perrill	$888,347.

The above figures represent an increase of 32.5 per cent or a total of $217,961 over a four year period. The above does not include any highway expenditures.

Opinion And Comment

Indifference to the dream

The New York News' fine commemorative publication in magazine format, "Op Sail," beautifully recalls that halcyon time last July 4 when the tall ships graced New York harbor. A succession of remarkable color photographs refresh memories of the noble parade of sailing vessels which echoed the period of our nation's founding.

One is moved to remember the galaxy of events, not only in New York but across our land, which climaxed celebration of the Declaration of Independence two centuries before. These are happy recollections of a day when the American people praised their heritage of freedom in joyous community of spirit.

Events since Independence Day of this Bicentennial year give less cause for rejoicing. Indications of apathy and indifference toward the presidential and congressional campaigns suggest that a great many Americans who celebrated the origins of their democracy have forgotten its contemporary worth.

They seem also to have forgotten their responsibility as citizens - their obligation, and privilege, to take part in the electoral process. Though the Ford-Carter debates have attracted large television audiences, millions of otherwise eligible citizens have not even registered to vote. Political scientists and samplers of public opinion are forecasting that for the first time in well over a century fewer than half of the electorate will go to the polls.

The tall ships symbolized a time of greatness when a brilliant array of men devoted to the cause of liberty established the conditions for its nurture on our continent. Will the American people, on this election day 200 years later, but feebly exercise their right of choice - will they thus do the Founding Fathers the signal dishonor of indifference to the dream they cherished? We fear that it may be so.

A WORD EDGEWISE .... By John P. Roche

Anybody have a good crisis?

Extremely reliable Washington sources indicate that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has been issued his flying orders: Settle a Crisis by Nov. 2. Probably Mr. Ford and his political advisors hoped the media would string along — at least through Election Day — with the party line that Super K "solved" the Rhodesian confrontation. But as more and more journalists escaped from Kissinger's spell and began to check the facts, it became apparent that nothing had emerged except a meeting from which — predictably — a deadlock will emerge.

True, the President can claim that his Administration "solved" the Arab-Israeli confrontation, but that has a rather hollow ring to it. What has happened recently is that the Syrians have taken time out to dispose of the wild cards — the Palestinian guerrillas. Israel has been given a breathing spell, but no indications of a long-term settlement.

In fact, one can argue that Syrian consolidation of power in Lebanon would close the semicircle around Israel. And intelligence reports indicate that the Egyptians have dug three huge tunnels under the Suez Canal — perhaps to accommodate increasing camel traffic?

Meanwhile, back in Washington, the General Accounting Office has issued a most embarrassing report on the Mayaguez Affair — which all hands had considered dead and buried. The central accusation is that the President knew the Cambodians were prepared to release the ship and crew in time to stop the costly rescue. Allegedly, at 6:07 a.m. on May 15, 1975, U.S. monitors picked up a statement by Cambodian Minister of Information Hu Nim that release was in the works, and Kissinger so informed the President at 7, but the strike was not aborted.

What bothers me about this is not that it may be true, but that in Oct. 1976, people will forget the atmosphere of May, 1975. If you were President and Kissinger dashed in with the news — in May, 1975 — that the Cambodian Communists were offering a peaceful solution to the Mayaguez seizure, what would your reaction be? After all, Kissinger had brough word in 1973 that the North Vietnamese were committed to a peaceful solution of the war — and in May, 1975, Hanoi's troops were dominating the South. Probably this was just another trick to get the ship's crew out of reach before we could react — and who the hell was Hu Nim?

In any event, the President needs a foreign policy triumph, and the State Department is on crisis alert. Rocketing up to the 7th floor are reports from all the regional bureaus on crisis possibilities. The first on the agenda was apparently Cyprus — if the Secretary could talk the Turks into some minor border concessions, or convince the media that he had, it might hold until Nov. 2 and delight Greek-American voters. The big problem here is that the Turks are not sophisticated enough to go along with a charade for Ford's benefit — the first rumor of Turkish concessions would go off like a bomb in Ankara.

What about Latin America? Well, Bolivia is trying to gain access to the sea from Chile and Peru. Perhaps instant diplomacy could resolve that? Hold it — this would involve negotiations with the Pinochet regime in Chile which is on the black-list of all right-thinking people.

Then there are the Guatemala-Belize argument over the "ownership" of the latter Central American state, the Honduras-Salvador "football war," and the British-Argentine dispute over the political fate of the Falkland Islands. . . pretty small pickings. Who but stamp collectors ever heard of Belize or the Falkland Islands? And a headline such as "Ford Ends Football War" could lead to inquiries whether he wore a helmet. Too bad that the Johnson Administration ended our Mexican border. dispute. Scrub Latin America.

Maybe there is some action in Western Europe? There the Secretary might get some cooperation. What about that long-festering feud between France and Britain over the Channel Islands — were they, or were they not retroceded to France with the Duchy of Normandy in the 12th or was it the 13th century? A summit with Jim Callaghan and Valery Giscard d'Estaing on the status of Jersey and Guernsey might raise our negotiating stock. Oh, no! It would sound like a session about cows. Perhaps the best thing to do is advertise: Have solution, will travel — and have somebody check, fast, the Tamil minority crisis in Sri Lanka.

The Treaty of Ft. Stanwix in the Mohawk Valley in New York in 1768 fixed the boundaries of Indian lands in Ohio. About 3,400 Indian warriors assembled for the conference. From the eastern end of Lake Ontario the line ran southerly to the Delaware River then west to the Allegheny River, down the Allegheny and to the Ohio and hence to the Tennessee. The Indians ceded all lands east and south of that line for goods and silver worth more than 20,000 English pounds. — AP

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Do not wait for opportunities to materialize "out of the blue." Seek them out yourself. A period for exercising your lively imagination and your good judgment.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

You may feel the weight of pressure in certain job issues. Don't try to force your own views. Listen — and learn. Superiors will be impressed.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

A minor flirtation could be a pleasant diversion, but don't let it take your mind off your work. There's much to be accomplished — profitably.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

Fine lunar influences. You can take to the high road enthusiastically; pursue worthwhile objectives with a good measure of attainment. Romance also favored.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Aspects are generous, but you will accomplish much more through teamwork than by going it alone. This is often difficult for the Leoite but, at times, it has its merits.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Good judgment needed now. Where a project is pending, try to force the pace if it will prevent loss of time or assets. Otherwise, you can "play it by ear."

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Don't consider first thoughts only, nor first impressions. You could be mistaken about motivations, indications, meanings. Give all the benefit of the doubt.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

You may run into snags or obstacles — but you can handle them well. Pep up an old idea, keep your vision broad. Think over past experiences — and profit by them.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Jupiter influences extremely generous. A day in which to exercise your keen faculties and capitalize on your wealth of talents. Business matters especially favored.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Be careful not to mix friends and finances now. Arguments, mistrust on either side would be a distinct possibility. In order respects, day should go well.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

You may face some inconveniences but the result will justify them and will compensate if you handle situations maturely. Broaden your mental horizons, perk up enthusiasm.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Stellar influences suggest that you expand — within reason. Tread cautiously in new areas but go forward confidently on familiar paths. Progressive ideas stimulated.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with lofty ambitions, unusual practicality and efficiency and a fine gift of logic. You are devoted to home and family, but are not always demonstrative in your affections. This sometimes hurts, so try to let loved ones know that you care. Your versatility is outstanding and the fields from which you could choose a successful career are almost limitless. In the art world, you could shine as writer, poet, playwright, designer or musician; in the professions, choose law, diplomacy, statesmanship or medicine. If business appeals, banking and real estate are your best bets.

Mysterious illness remains unsolved

By TOM JOURNEY
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Health officials are still puzzled by a mysterious illness that swept an electrical controls factory here more than a month ago, affecting 13 per cent of the work force.

However, the plant has no connection with two plants in Pennsylvania where workers have complained of similar symptoms, said Earl Reeg, personnel manager for Robertshaw Controls Co.'s Acro division, which has its headquarters in Richmond, Va.

In all three cases workers complained of nausea, headaches, stomach pains and breathing difficulties.

In Pennsylvania, Essex International Co. furloughed 300 employes at its electronics plant in Kittanning, Pa. after 100 of them got sick. Health authorities also were looking for the cause of a similar illness that struck 70 employes of the RolaJensen plant in Punxsutawney in September.

The Ohio plant was closed four times from Aug. 25 to Sept. 8.

"We have been unable to determine any cause-and-effect relationship," said Dr. George Shadle, head of the Ohio health department's division of occupational safety.

"All the tests were honestly negative," he said. "I feel we've gone as far as we can go. To the best of our knowledge...we can't consider it of bacterial or viral origin."

Tests were conducted on water supplies, pesticides used on lawns surrounding the plant, pipes and propane tanks, among other possibilities, Shadle said.

The propane leak looked promising as the source until it was repaired and workers still got sick.

However, DeWitt Huffman, industrial hygiene engineer, said abnormally high concentrations of methyl alcohol, freon and acetone were found at different times in the plant.

Those chemicals alone or in combination might have caused the illnesses, but adequate ventilation would prevent sickness, he said.

Reeg said 10 or 15 employes quit because of the illness. But he said he's satisfied the plant is safe.

Betty Shipe was one of the lucky ones who didn't get sick at the Robertshaw plant in Columbus. She was working the day shift Aug. 25 when she heard rumors that other employes were getting sick.

The grapevine, as it turned out, was all too accurate.

"It was about 11 o'clock when they told us how many were sick and told us to come out of the factory," she recalls. "We were really surprised when we did go out to see how many did go to the hospital."

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

The Other woman tells her side

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from HIS WIFE who wrote an open letter to all women who were in love with a married man. I hope you will give me equal space to respond:

DEAR WIFE: He has never told me you are a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) or that you have neglected him sexually. Instead he speaks only in glowing terms of you, how you stood by him in rough years, through all the difficult times.

There is no talk of divorce. I know I will never see him on Sundays or holidays. I don't call him at home. We meet at hotels since there are teenagers at my place. Yes, I sometimes spend more on him-on transportation, gas for the car, whatever. But we do not measure our relationship in money. And I insist he not buy me gifts.

I know how you feel about social status, financial security and retirement income. I ended my loveless, unhappy marriage without regard to such things. I love your husband; and we share a need for each other that has nothing to do with your set of values. But because your husband is a good man and would never hurt you, I know we will probably never be together.

I never went after your husband; he pursued me, because I recognized his pain and bewilderment; his triumphs and delights, in a way you have forgotten or belittled. He needed to be actively loved, or I would not be a part of his life.

THE OTHER WOMAN

DEAR ABBY: I beg to differ with you when you state that a girl can tell if a man is married because she never sees him on weekends or holidays.

I went with Rob for 14 months and he was with me morning, noon and night every day of the week. And last Christmas he came to my house at 9 in the evening and stayed until 10 the next morning until after the kids had opened their gifts. Then he left, saying he had to go to a family dinner. He came back again at 7 that evening and left at 6 the next morning.

When my little boy had an operation, Rob stayed at the hospital with me all day and night. Finally, on New Year's Eve, I learned he was married when we ran into some people who knew his wife.

He confessed it was true, and said he and his wife didn't sleep together but she didn't believe in divorce. I figured if he treated her that way, he'd eventually treat me that way, too, so I kicked him out. Why would a woman want to hang on to a louse like that?

STILL SINGLE AND LOOKING

DEAR STILL LOOKING: Because she probably figures she's better off with him than without him. I think he showed his "lousiness" more by lying to you about his marital status than by seeking satisfaction outside marriage to a woman who refuses to sleep with him but refuses to divorce him.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Oct. 14, the 288th day of 1976. There are 78 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1066, Normans under William the Conqueror defeated the English at the Battle of Hastings.

On this date —

In 1644, the founder of Pennsylvania, William Penn, was born in London.

In 1890, the 34th president of the United States, Dwight Eisenhower, was born in Denison, Tex.

In 1933, Germany announced it would withdraw from the League of Nations.

In 1944, in World War II, British and Greek troops liberated Athens from German occupation forces.

In 1947, U.S. Air Force Captain Charles Yeager tested a rocket-powered research airplane in California and became the first person to fly faster than sound.

In 1964 the American black leader, Dr. Martin Luther King, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

Ten years ago: An early fall blizzard swept over Wyoming and Eastern Colorado, isolating cities, blocking highways and leaving at least four people dead.

Five years ago: Dr. Earl Sutherland of Vanderbilt University won the Nobel Prize for Physiology and Medicine for his research on hormones.

One year ago: The Ford Administration said it had devised a plan to protect the rights of Americans while continuing effective intelligence operations.

Today's birthdays: Writer Arthur Schlesinger Jr. is 59. Pianist Gary Graffman is 48.

Bank appoints new board member, executive officer

NEW HOLLAND — A new member of the board of directors and chief executive officer have been named at the First National Bank in New Holland.

Mrs. Jane Bryan, 3366 White Road, near New Holland, has been appointed as a member of the board of directors. Mrs. Bryan, a graduate of Washington High School who attended Ohio University, succeeds her late husband, Joseph V. Bryan, former bank president and director, who died September 5.

Richard Kirkpatrick, of New Holland, has been elected by the board of directors to serve as the bank's chief executive officer until the annual meeting in January.

Other members of the board of directors are McKinley Kirk, Paul Peck, Earl Arnold and Dr. John Louis.

Bank officers are William Davidson, executive vice president; Mrs. George Hott, cashier; Mrs. Robert Green, assistant cashier; Mrs. Richard Garrison, teller, and Mrs. Bruce Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Daniel Mace, bookkeepers.

The First National Bank in New Holland was founded in 1904 and currently has assets of over $6 million.

Municipal Court

For engaging in a disorderly conduct incident at the Emerald Inn tavern recently, three Washington C.H. residents received identical sentences by Judge John P. Case during a non-traffic session Wednesday in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Rick Penwell, 22, of Columbus Ave., Timmy Penwell, 20, of Broadway St., and Randy Nichols, 25, of Warrior Court, were each found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Each was given a fine of $100 with $30 suspended on the condition that none would enter liquor selling premises for one year.

Alphus E. Crawford, 52, of 316 Fourth St., was fined $30 for disturbing the peace by intoxication.

ATTEND CONVENTION

Mr. and Mrs. David Hurley and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cruea of Scioto Vending Systems, 742 Highland Ave., attended the four-day 1976 convention-exhibit of Automatic Merchandising and Foodservice Management in Philadelphia, Pa. More than 7,000 other executives participated in the convention and looked over new equipment and products used at foodservice and vending installations. One of the keynote addresses at the convention was delivered by Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen.

Community Ed. report

By HANK SHAFFER
Program Director

Community Education will have an organizational meeting for a mixed volleyball league tonight in the Washington Middle School gym at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be to set up teams and those wishing to participate should come prepared to practice after teams are set up. Women's and men's leagues have been set up earlier in the week. Those wishing to play in either of those should phone the Community Education Office, 335-6621.

The Community Chest drive has already started and Community Education is one of the ten designated recipients of the donations. We hope that you will give whatever you are able to help our organization and the other nine worthy groups.

The swine flu vaccine will be given at a number of different locations this coming week. Unfortunately, the seminar on how it affects people and why you should take it could not be scheduled. Therefore, we urge you to call Doris Douglass at the Health Department, 335-5910, if you have any questions concerning the vaccine. The vaccine will be given at the following locations: Tuesday, Bloomingburg gym 9 to 11 a.m.; Wednesday, Jeffersonville Lions Building 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Thursday, Good Hope gym 9 to 11 a.m., and Washington Shopping Center (Scott's) 2 to 7 p.m.; Friday Washington Shopping Center (Scott's) 2 to 7 p.m.

If you have any ideas for seminars on a one night basis, please contact the Community Education office. We welcome your ideas and concerns.

Youth shooting education program begins Saturday

A new community education effort sponsored by the Washington C.H. Jaycees and the Fayette County Fish and Game Association will begin Saturday.

The two organizations will jointly sponsor and conduct a 10-week youth shooting education program for area youths between the ages of 7 and 14. Though being offered for the first time locally, the program has been promoted by the Daisy Division of the Victor Comptometer Corp. for a number of years. Conducted nationally by the Jaycees, the program which teaches proper gun handling and marksmanship has highly popular with youngsters and adults.

The initial local youth shooting education program class will consist of 16 boys and girls and will be held each Saturday from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. in the Washington C.H. Middle School gymnasium. The first group of youngsters registered for participation in the program at the National Hunting and Fishing Day event on September 26.

If the fall course progresses as expected it is anticipated that the two local sponsoring organizations will begin a second 10-week program after the first of the year.

Parents or youths interested in obtaining more information about the program should contact Clem Edwards of the Jaycees at 335-2351 or 335-0200.

Goats help fight forest fires

NICE, France (AP) — Officials in southern France are trying a new weapon to fight forest fires — goats.

In a controlled experiment, a herd of 50 goats will be used to cut firebreaks in the rugged forestland along the French Riviera which is swept by fires each summer.

Kept in line by electric fences, the goats will munch the underbrush for the next three years in a closely watched area.

Louis Perrin, a local farmer, came up with the idea.

Mel Tillis sues over commercials

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Mel Tillis, winner of this year's top country music award, says's he'll take legal action against two networks that rejected his dog food commercials because he stutters.

"It hurt my feelings and it hurt my pocketbook," Tillis said Wednesday. "It also hurts to know networks won't let people who have handicaps have employment or equal opportunities."

The commercials were rejected by executives at both the National Broadcasting Co. and Columbia Broadcasting Co., who said they felt they might offend people who stutter. The networks also said they hadn't realized who the person in the commercial was.

Tillis said his lawyer plans to file discrimination complaints with the Federal Communications Commission.

"If this isn't discrimination, I don't know what is," Tillis said. "I thought there was an all-out effort in this country to hire the handicapped."

In New York, an NBC spokesman said, "It appeared to us that if we approved this, it would appear to be making fun of people with that affliction. Nowhere was Tillis identified as the country and Western singer who actually does stutter. We had no idea it was him."

A CBS spokesman in New York said the stuttering "is so exaggerated in the commercial to the extent that we think it is inappropriate so far as our standards are concerned. It might be offensive to a certain segment of the national community, so we rejected the commercial."

Tillis was named by the Country Music Association on Monday night as the entertainer of the year — generally regarded as the highest honor in country music.

The 42-year-old entertainer has stuttered since a bout with malaria at age 3. He does not stutter when he sings.

Ex-state treasurer Don Ebright dies

PICKERINGTON, Ohio (AP) — The burial of Don H. Ebright, a state treasurer for 12 years and a candidate for governor in 1950, is scheduled for today. He was 74.

Ebright, who died Monday night in a Cleveland hospital, was treasurer from 1938 to 1950 when he ran for governor, but was defeated by Democrat Frank Lausche.

Following the loss, he joined the Union Bank of Commerce in Cleveland as a vice president, later serving as senior vice president until he retired in 1967.

Comrades meet

The Comrades of the Second Mile met in the Bloomingburg United Methodist Church for their October meeting. Mrs. Rex Bloomer gave devotions, using as her theme Faith. She read scripture from Psalms and the writings of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale. The members decided to continue their project of giving financial aid to Church Women United for the purchase of gifts for children at Christmas.

After the usual business reports, the President, Mrs. Alvin Writsel introduced Miss Elsie Forman as guest speaker for the evening. Miss Forman invited the members to accompany her on a review of her recent trip around the world. By using slides and interesting commentary, we toured Hawaii, Japan, Thailand, Nepal, Hong Kong, India, Israel, Greece, Austria and Hungary. She showed slides of the beautiful temples and gardens, and talked briefly on Buddism, Hinduism, and Shintoism, the principal religions of the far East.

Delicious seasonable refreshments were served by Mrs. Rachael Smith and Mrs. Bloomer to, Mrs. Edgar McFadden, Mrs. Dan Thompson. Mrs. Jack Sollars, Mrs. Alice Cory, Mrs. Richard Thompson, Mrs. Glenn Heistand, Mrs. Donald Denen, Mrs. Dale Thornton, Mrs. Gilbert Biddle, Mrs. Grace Iden, Mrs. Eli Craig, Mrs. Joe Giebelhouse, Mrs. Lydia Lafollette, and Mrs. Writsel.

Daughters project

The Loyal Daughters of First Christian Church met in the church social room when Mrs. Ward Brown read the article "Aspiration." Mrs. Orpha Willis presented devotions entitled "Grace". She read Scripture from Corinthians, Ephesians, Acts and Titus, and the poem, "Let Your Wish Become a Prayer" by Helen Steiner Rice. A Bible quiz was conducted and a moment of silent prayer was observed. Mrs. William Rulon gave the closing.

Mrs. Zoe Follis gave the treasurer's report for the 13 present, and each signed cheer cards for the ill and shutins. All were reminded to continue saving the grocery tapes at Ev's, a class project.

During the social hour winners of the game trivia were Mrs. Lloyd Sowders and Mrs. Ted Merritt. Refreshments were served to the 13 by Mrs. Homer Kimmey, Mrs. R.A. Wasson and Mrs. Dodothy Allen.

Tables were of a fall theme accented with Halloween jack-o-lanterns.

Zeta Upsilon plans dinner-meeting

Zeta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the home of Mrs. Don Jones Oct. 12, when various reports were made and minutes of the previous meeting read. Program booklets were distributed and discussed, with some changes made.

It was announced that a ham dinner will be served Oct. 26th in the home of Mrs. Steve Colburn, then all will go to Grace United Methodist Church for a Pledge Ritual and a Ritual of Jewels. Members are also reminded to bring old toys and games to this meeting.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Warren Huber, Mrs. Bob Snodgrass, Mrs. Robert Knecht, Mrs. Steve Lewis, Mrs. Charles Bowersox, Mrs. Doug Grugg, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Bill Tippett and Mrs. Willis Gever Jr.

PERSONALS

Plans completed by board

Junior Achievement program scheduled to open on Monday

Plans for beginning of operations of the local Junior Achievement program for the 1976-1977 school year were completed at a luncheon meeting of the organization's board of directors Wednesday in the Terrace Lounge.

Rick Stinson, president of the Junior Achievement board of directors, reported on a recruiting campaign which has been conducted at Washington Senior, Miami Trace and Greenfield McClain high schools.

The recruiting campaign netted approximately 180 potential members for the three companies which will open operations in the Junior Achievement center on N. Fayette Street next Monday.

It was also reported that besides the new members recruited there are about 30 members who participated in the program a year ago.

The Junior Achievement program will operate this year with a total of three companies.

The Armco Steel Corp. Metal Products Division plant in Washington C.H. is sponsoring one company while Mac Tools, Inc. will be sponsoring another. The Dayton Power and Light Co. and the Huntington Bank of Washington C.H. are co-sponsoring one of the companies.

Three-man advisory teams which supervise sales, production and front office operations have been selected. The Armco Steel Corp. will provide its own advisory team while the Washington C.H. Jaycee chapter will supply an advisory team for the company co-sponsored by the Dayton Power and Light Co. and the Huntington Bank. The Hoover Plastics Co. of Greenfield will provide an advisory team for the company sponsored by Mac Tools, Inc.

Stinson said the Junior Achievement organization experienced problems this year in obtaining advisory teams. He said he has contacted a number of retired businessmen in the Washington C.H. area about the possibility of them forming an advisory team for next year if the program is expanded to four companies.

Harry V. Turner, principal of Greenfield McClain High School, is a member of the Junior Achievement board of directors and another Greenfield representative is being sought to be added to the board. Greenfield McClain High School had a number of participants in the program a year ago and a large response is expected this year.

In other matters, the board heard a report on the fund-raising campaign which is presently being completed.

Robert Grim, a Miami Trace High School teacher, will be serving as manager of the Junior Achievement center this year.

Nobel Prizes awarded

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two American medical researchers and an American economist today were named for the 1976 Nobel Prizes in Medicine and Economics.

The Royal Caroline Institute announced that the medicine prize was awarded to Prof. Baruch S. Blumberg of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School and Prof. D. Carleton Gajdusek of the National Institute for Neurological Diseases at Bethesda, Md., "for their discoveries concerning new mechanisms for the origin and dissemination of infectious diseases."

The Swedish Royal Academy of Science awarded the economics prize to Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago, a 64-year-old native of Brooklyn who also writes a weekly column for Newsweek magazine.

Isabel Peron eyes convent

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Former President Isabel Peron wants to leave her luxurious detention center to enter a Roman Catholic convent in Spain, according to a newspaper report.

The afternoon newspaper La Razon said the 45-year-old widow of Juan D. Peron, ousted by the armed forces in a bloodless coup last March 24, met with the vicar general of Argentina's armed forces Tuesday in the Swiss-style chalet where she has been confined since shortly after the coup.

Mrs. Peron has been charged with the misappropriation of $1 million in public funds. The money was to have gone to flood victims, but was deposited in her private bank account, government sources said.

Traffic Court

A Mount Sterling man had one of two traffic charges lodged against him dismissed Wednesday during a traffic session of Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Dennis R. Swartz, 23, of Mount Sterling, was fined $50 for failing to stop after an accident, but a charge of making an improper turn was dismissed by Judge John P. Case.

It will be increasingly warm in Ohio through Friday with a chance of rain.

A weak high pressure system centered over Missouri and extending northward will move across Ohio today, providing a mostly sunny day with temperatures in the 60s. Cloudiness will increase tonight as a low pressure system in southern Manitoba approaches the state.

Set welfare indictments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Franklin County prosecutor's office will seek indictments against 39 suspected Welfare cheaters who are current or former employes of Ohio State University.

County Atty. George C. Smith said Wednesday that the cheating came to light in an investigation by the state Department of Administrative Services.

Suspects probably will be charged with deception by failing to say they were employed when they applied for welfare venefits. His office expects to take the cases to a grand jury within 10 days, he said.

OSU is not involved in the determination of welfare eligibility of its employes, said William Merriman, the university's communications director.

Most of the employes worked in the OSU hospital in lower-level positions and were paid from $2.30 to $5.10 per hour, Smith said, and records show they received welfare aid in food stamps and Aid to Dependent Children benefits ranging from $96 to $296 per month.

Of requests for indictments against 63 persons on deception charges, 43 persons pleaded guilty and one trial ended in a conviction.

City manager reports

Police force vacancies to be filled soon

The Washington C.H. Police Department will soon start filling a number of its vacancies.

City Manager George H. Shapter Wednesday night reported that an examination for police officers eligible for the rank of sergeant will be administered by the Civil Service Commission on October 21.

Four officers presently holding the rank of police specialist have applied for the promotional examination.

Following the test and certification by the Civil Service Commission, one officer will be promoted to rank of sergeant to fill the vancy created by the retirement last December of Sgt. Virgil Harris.

Police Specialist Dennis Brown was recently promoted last week to the rank of captain following a test conducted by the Civil Service Commission. Brown fills the vancy left by Capt. Charles Foster's retirement last December.

Shapter also reported to City Council that the city has received an eligibility list for an appointment to the rank of patrolman. He said the list, as certified by the commission, contains four names.

It is anticipated that a patrolman will be appointed later this month.

The city manager also reported to city council members on a number of other topics:

STREET MARKINGS

Last week, under a contract with the state, five school crossings and five intersections in the city were marked with a new thermal plastic coating. The material was applied at temperatures in excess of 400 degrees and bonds with the street surface. The city manager said the durability of the substance is many times that of street paint markings. He added that when the current paint which still shows at the intersections wears off, the new markings will be much better appearance wise.

STREET LIGHTS

All street light fixtures which were turned off earlier this year under a budget-cutting program have been reinstated by the Dayton Power and Light Co. Shapter said the auditor's office will be refunding money to city residents who paid for steet lighting for the months of October, November and December. Shapter also said sample high-pressure sodium lights will be installed as soon as they are received.

ALLEY TRAFFIC

At two recent meetings a resident complained of speeding cars in an alley situated south of the Kroger Co. store on Clinton Ave. A request was submitted that a stop sign be placed at the cross alley in the first block south of the Kroger store. Shapter said he had checked the alley personally on numerous occasions over the past few weeks and did not observe any speeding traffic. He said there is a continuous "barn sale" in operation in the alley which could possibly be a contributing factor to the excess traffic referred to by the complaining resident. The alley will continue to be observed.

ALLEY MAINTENANCE

The city has been unable to locate an agreement concerning the maintenance of alley by the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. behind the company's facility on N. North Street. Shapter said the telephone company's maintenance superintendent is convinced no such agreement exists.

SALT SPREADER

A new salt spreader has been ordered from Bill Jaeckels of Washington C.H. at a price of $1,395. The $1,300 price was the low bid of two bids received. Funds were appropriated for the purchase in the street maintenance accounts.

ZONING BOARD

The city manager again asked City Council for possible candidates to fill a vacancy on the Washington C.H. Board of Zoning Appeals.

EPA LETTER

The city manager said he had received correspondence from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency concerning the proposed construction of 12-inch storm sewers in the city's multi-million sewer improvement project. The EPA granted the authority for the 12-inch lines to be included in the project costs.

HOLIDAY CONFUSION

The city manager, at the recommendation of Council members, will be drafting a new schedule of legal holidays. Shapter said a problem surfaced during the Columbus Day holiday (Oct. 11) when parking tickets were issued during part of the day. Shapter said the city is still operating under a holiday schedule that was devised in 1962. It was pointed out that legal holidays are spelled out in the parking meter ordinance.

CURB CUT REQUEST

Owners of the Deanview Nursing Home, 719 Rawlings St., have requested a 100-foot curb cut to provide head-on parking spaces. Council's safety committee will investigate the matter since a resolution is required on all curb cuts over 25 feet. An expansion project is presently underway at the facility.

HELP OFFERED

Hank Shaffer, director of the Washington C.H. Area Community Education Program, has informed the city manager that the program would be willing to sponsor a town meeting to assist in supporting the city's two one-mill levy renewals on the November ballot.

City Council cuffnotes

City attorney post still vacant

The city has been without the services of full-time legal counsel for the past 44 days and a solution to the problem is not immenent.

City Manager George M. Shapter Wednesday night reported to City Council members that he has contacted three local attorneys about the position, but has received no replies.

The city solicitor's post has been vacant since August 31 when the resignation of Gary D. Smith became effective. Smith, 1370 Dayton Ave., had served in the post since January of 1974.

The salary offered by the city makes the post unattractive to most attorneys who have substantial private practices.

Smith received $5,500 a year in the post, but the city is reportedly prepared to offer more money in an attempt to attract a replacement. The time required in court is another drawback.

Council agreed to have the city manager contact the Fayette County Bar Association to discuss the situation. Presently the Fayette County prosecuting attorney's office is handling preliminary hearings on felony charges in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Another problem which has been created by the vacancy is the postponement or eventual dismissal of charges against some defendants.

Municipal Court Judge John P. Case informed Shapter he will be forced to postpone a second jury trial next week if the post is not filled.

TWO PIECES of legislation were considered by Council during the regular semi-monthly meeting held in the Fraternal Order of Police building.

An ordinance dealing with the required distance between a bowling alley and school property was approved after its third reading. The approval of the measure clears the way for the proposed construction of a bowling alley on Commerical Avenue and repeals an ancient city ordinance prohibiting bowling alleys to be built near school grounds.

Council placed an ordinance to vacate an alley running from North Street in a northwesterly direction to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad on its first reading. The alley has never been in existence and is located on property owned by Floyd and Alice Reid.

IN OTHER matters, City Council:

—Accepted a bid of $2,205 annually submitted by the Pennington Insurance Agency for a three-year policy on city buildings and contents. The only other bidder was the Richard R. Willis Insurance Agency, Inc. with a bid of $3,480 annually;

—Received a smoke ejector holder to be used by the Washington C.H. Fire Department in clearing smoke from buildings following fires. The new piece of equipment was purchased with funds raised in a project sponsored by firemen. Firemen Edward Helt and Cecil D. Seaman told Council members that Local No. 2474 of the International Association of Firefighters is planning to support the one-mill levy renewal for fire department operations on the November ballot.

—Learned of a joint meetin between City Council, the city's planning commission and the city board of zoning appeals scheduled for 7:30 p.m. October 26.

—Appointed Council members James Ward and Richard Kimmet to a committee to investigate obtaining a new meeting place. Council has been meeting in the old Fraternal Order of Police building, 470 N. Fayette St., since the remodeling of city administration offices earlier this summer. The building now used for meetings will not be suitable during winter months; and —Instructed Council's safety committee to investigate a possible traffic hazard at the intersection of Highland, Clinton and Leesburg avenues. The committee will seek the assistance of the Ohio Department of Transportation for the study.

Columbus man dies after shot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A terminally ill 34-year-old Columbus man has died after receiving a swine flu immunization shot, but his doctor and the county coroner stressed there was no apparent connection between the innoculation and his death.

Frank Hall, 34, of Columbus, died Tuesday night in his home. He had received the flu shot on Monday.

His physician, Dr. James Lewis, said Hall was a diabetic, was being treated with dialysis because of kidney failure and had severe cardiovascular disease.

Dr. William R. Adrion, Franklin County coroner, said he did not "think there was any relationship between the vaccine and his death."

Noting that Hall was one of the youngest persons known to have died after receiving the immunization shot, Adrion said, "This is the age that he was going to die whether he got the vaccine or not."

Dr. Thomas Halpin, chief of the state Health Department's bureau of preventative medicine, agreed with the other two physicians.

"There is no evidence the immunization was a factor," he said. "I'm sure the cause of death is going to be listed as diabetes or cardiovascular disease."

Halpin said the man's death will have no effect on the state's swine flu immunization efforts and urged counties to continue their innoculation programs.

The Sloan Library in Zanesfield, Logan County, was given to the town by Dr. Earl S. Sloan, a native, who made a fortune from the manufacture of Sloan's Liniment. — AP

Successful homecoming held

The 1976 Homecoming weekend began with the selection of the Homecoming Queen.

The student body chose Jill Schaeper to represent them. The Senior class chose Beth Schaeper. Both are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Mark J. Schaeper. The Junior class chose Margie Easterday, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Easterday; the Sophomore class chose Susan DaRif as their attendant. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Kay DaRif. The Freshmen chose for their first attendant, Tammy Schneider, daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Schneider.

Homecoming dance

The homecoming weekend began with the annual homecoming assembly Friday morning. The choir began by singing "I Write the Songs." "Mr. Touchdown" was then selected. The student body chose him by placing money in jars labeled with the names of all the senior players. The player with the most money is chosen the winner. The year Jerry Brickles received the award.

The history of homecoming at Washington Senior was read before the presentation of this year's queen and court. The band played as the queen was presented to the student body. The girls Ensemble ended the beautiful assembly with a selection of tunes.

The homecoming parade route ran from the Middle School to Gardner Park Stadium prior to the game. The Queen rode on a float made by the Student Council. The court rode in corvettes following the ROTC. The WSHS marching band, the pep club and the cheerleaders also participated in the parade.

Pre-game festivities included the presentation of the Queen and court to the capacity crowd for the first home game this season. Queen Jill presented the game ball to co-captains, Mark Heiny and Bret Shaw expressing her hopes for a homecoming victory.

The school spirit experienced throughout the day, centering on the slogan, "Win it for Jill" must have been the topmost thought on the players' heads, for they played an outstanding, and exciting game. They topped Sylvania Northview, 22-15, to give the homecoming the final touch it needed.

"Midnight Blue" was chosen as the theme for the homecoming dance held Saturday night. The student Council was in charge of the activities and they worked hard in preparation. The DECA club helped make favors and put up the decorations. The hard work paid off in transforming the gym into a masterpiece.

The program began with a welcoming speech by Student Council President Mike McDonald. The queen and court were presented to preside over the dance. The couples danced to the sounds of the Silver Nichels.

As 11:30 p.m. grew near, everyone realized that another great homecoming at Washington Senior High School was over. So, for another year, homecoming will be another memory left until another will take i t's place. For Seniors, it will be remembered forever.

Student comments . . .

By DAVID LEISURE

We, the upper classmen, would like to welcome the new members of our student body, the Freshmen class. We find the Freshmen to be a great asset to our school. There are mixed feelings from the ninth graders concerning Washington Senior High. Here are a few of the thoughts from our new friends:

Pam Bennett - It's a very exciting experience. The feachers and students are really friendly, especially our Number 1 band and director.

Lana McCoy - I like all the activities, and the upperclassmen have really been nice. I'm looking forward to this year and the following three.

Kathy Prysiazniuk - There are more activities and clubs to join and participate in. The upperclassmen are a lot of fun to be around.

Robbin Hendren - It makes you feel more like adults than children. Mr. Pfeifer is really a neat principal, and we have more priviledges.

Susan Moore - I really enjoy all my classes. It's a new experience, and we have a lot more responsibilities. All the privileges we have are great!

Eric Croker - It's too big for us little guys.

Wayne Aills - I like the cafeteria. I like the outdoor activities and the gym.

Steve Spears - It's more fun than the Junior High, and the teachers are friendlier.

Gloria Smith - The teachers give you a lot of respect if you respect them. Also, we have a lot of responsibilities, but, they're fun.

Tom Easterday - I like my gym class, but the teachers are strict.

Kelly Mounts - I like being mixed with upperclassmen. I'm able to choose most of my classes.

Bill Runnels - I like new things, and the Senior High is new!

Pfeifer, better known as 'Coach' now principal

By CHRIS McKINNEY

As the 1976-77 school year opened, a group of new students entered Washington Senior High School. Along with these new faces came a man who is commonly known to us as "Coach." This man is the new principal at Washington Senior High School, Maurice Pfeifer.

Although this is Mr. Pfeifer's first year as principal, he is not unfamilar with the school system. He has been vice-principal at the Middle School and the Senior High. He has also been a guidance counselor at the Middle School in addition to teaching Physical Education, Health and Driver's Education.

Mr. Pfeifer came to Washington C.H. in 1965 after a successful four-year stint as head football coach in Marysville. During this time he was head wrestling coach and an assistant in track. Prior to that he was a Madison South, where he started his coaching career.

In two years at Madison South his teams came up with a 13-1-1 record including the Darby Valley League football championship, and an 8-0 season in which his teams were 11th in the state in the Class A ratings.

Mr. Pfeifer is a native of Lima. At Lima Central High School he lettered in football and tennis.

A graduate of Ohio Northern University, he lettered four years in football making all-conference as a center and a linebacker while captaining the 1958 edition of the Polar Bears. He also lettered four years in tennis and was conference singles champion for four years. He coached the Ohio Northern tennis team while a student becoming the youngest college coach in the United States at the age of 19.

MAURICE PFEIFER

Mr. Pfeifer received his Masters Degree from Xavier University. He also attended Ohio State University, Miami University and Southern State College.

Now that he is principal, Mr. Pfeifer feels there are some advantages he did not have as a staff member — "You get to work with the whole student body instead of just a portion of it."

Somewhat wistfully, he said he misses coaching, "but that is to be expected after 17 years."

Lion of the Week

By DEBBIE HIGHFIELD

Our first Lion of the Week is Robyn Leslie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Leslie, 804 Lincoln Drive.

Robyn is one of our cheerleaders in the crowd. She doesn't wear a blue uniform, but she's a great cheerleader.

She begins her spirit-building the day before the game, by organizaing a group to make signs and badges for the upcoming Friday. The next morning, she is wearing painters pants and a 'New Blue' shirt, either chanting, or singing the alma mater.

Seeing her spirit lifts your day and prepares you for that night's victory. At the game, she screams and yells throughout the entire contest no matter what the outcome of the event may be.

This is why we've chosen Robyn our Lion of the Week. She's our No. 1 Super Fan.

We salute you Robyn!

Pass receivers earn Lion weekly honors

The passing games of both squads were the keys to last Friday's 22-15 Washington C.H. win over visiting Sylvania Northview. The Blue Lions used the pass effectively and the guests from the north did not.

Junior Mike Turner, a lanky 6-3, 185 pound end, and senior Dee Foster did most of the catching in the Blue Lion's homecoming victory, and their performances earned them Blue Lion lineman and back of the week honors.

Turner starting only his second game at right defensive end scored the first of three Blue Lion touchdowns when he snared an errant Sylvania pass and rambled 60-yards to the endzone. He graded out 80 per cent on the night in defensive efficiency by the coaching staff and was credited with four individual tackles and two assists.

On offense, Turner latched on to a conversion pass from quarterback Mark Heiny after Jeff Elliott scored the go-ahead touchdown late in the fourth period.

Foster, who shares the messenger wide-receiver spot with Sam McClendon, was Heiny's main target Friday. Last week, it was McClendon's turn as he caught two touchdown passes and earned similar honors in the win over Hillsboro.

Foster had three catches totaling 133 yards. One of the speedy receiver's grabs was good for a 12-yard touchdown, the Blue Lions' second of the night. Another catch was good for 66 yards in the fourth quarter setting up the winning touchdown.

On that fourth quarter catch, Foster was finally tackled on the Sylvania four-yard line as time ticked away. Elliott's carry followed giving the Blue Lions a 3-2 season record.

Ondrus keeps Lions at home to continue McClain rivalry

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

Blue Lion football fans can keep their road maps folded again this week. Coach Paul Ondrus' squad will appear for the second-straight week at Gardner Park.

After four straight weeks on the road from Wellston to Westerville, the Blue Lions made their home debut last Friday and thrilled a large homecoming crowd with a 22-15 non-league win over Sylvania Northview.

Sylvania, a school near Toledo, was rather unfamiliar to the Blue Lion crowd, but this Friday's opponent needs no introduction.

Greenfield McClain will travel the 15 miles to Gardner Park to resume a long-standing rivalry that dates back some 70 years.

Coach Ondrus no doubt is happy that McClain will do the traveling this week instead of his Blue Lions. Coach Fred Brisker's Tigers are tough at home which is not to say they are not tough on the road.

However, McClain always seems to rise to the occasion on its home field. Last year, it was the Blue Lions who felt the Tigers' wrath. So far this year it has been Circleville.

McClain handed the Blue Lions their first loss of the season last year at Greenfield in a tightly fought, 7-0, contest. Last Friday, in a similar contest McClain blanked Circleville, 6-0.

Beating Circleville anywhere is an indication that a McClain is good and that the Blue Lions will have their hands full as they resume South Central Ohio League action.

Both squads are 3-2 on the year and they have another thing in common. The have both been shutout by Westerville North. McClain lost 10-0 while the Lions were stunned 34-0.

Coach Brisker was concerned with his defensive line before the season started, but after last week's shutout of Circleville he has apparently solved his problem.

The keys to that line are Joe Cannon and Bill Harvey, and they have left an impression on the Blue Lion coaching staff after viewing game films.

Cannon, who weighs 202 pounds and has been described as "a one-man gang", plays defensive tackle while Harvey holds down the middle guard spot in Brisker's somewhat unconventional defense.

"I'm sure the people that play across from them will know they are there," Ondrus said.

Brisker's defense does some strange things according to Ondrus with line shifts and various different looks. "They get you to try and guess," Ondrus said.

Also lining up with Cannon and Harvey is 225-pound Bret Robinson. Robinson was highly touted at Hillsboro earlier this year before moving to the McClain school district. At Hillsboro, he was fondly called "Mongo". The McClain offense has also been known to do some strange things.

"Basicly they are conventional," Ondrus reported, "but they will show you some razzle-dazzle."

The scouting report states that Brisker will send in a lot of trick plays when the offense is stalled "just to keep the defense off balance."

The Blue Lion coaches have seen everything from reverses to the tightend and then a pass (the end is Steve Wood, who is the backup quarterback) to double reverses.

When Brisker is not using the "razzle dazzle", tailback Tony Anderson is his main weapon. The speedy tailback ruined the Blue Lions last year with a 50-yard jaunt setting up the only touchdown of the game.

Steve Weaver, the quarterback, works the option with Anderson. And, while Weaver is an adequate runner, Ondrus is planning to key on Anderson, "the lesser of two evils."

Also in the McClain backfield is sophomore Randy Seldon and fullback John Dettwiller. Sometimes Dettwiller is pulled in favor of Cannon at fullback, and Ondrus feels the bigger Cannon is more dangerous.

The Blue Lions only have one starter who is listed as questionable for Friday's contest. He, however, is the Blue Lions main threat on the ground.

Tailback Jeff Elliott is still feeling the effects of the flu. He played last week, but was not at 100 per cent.

One Blue Lion was injured severly in practice Wednesday. Sophomore Tommy Upthegrove injured his knee and spent the night in the hospital. He is definitely out for the season and is scheduled to undergo surgery.

Friday's game will be taped and broadcast by Channel 3 at noon Saturday.

Mexican QB aids Blanchester squad

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Mexican exchange student, who speaks little English, has come to the rescue of Blanchester High School's football team, helping extend its victory streak to 20 games.

Bruno Ramos, 18, from Mexico City, did not play in his first American football game until Oct. 2, starting on defense against East Clinton.

"But we were trailing 7-0 at halftime and only had one first down," said Jack O'Rourke, the Blanchester coach. "I decided to put Bruno in at quarterback. He ran the team with no problem at all."

With the coaches calling the plays from the sidelines, Ramos ran for two touchdowns and two extra points, leading Blanchester, a Clinton County team, to a 20-7 victory.

Last week he followed with another touchdown and extra-points run as Blanchester beat Mason 15-13, its 22nd straight game without a loss.

The 5-foot-9, 160-pound senior says he has played the sport about eight seasons.

"The big difference between the play there and here is the quarterback calls more plays in Mexico while the coaches call most of the plays here," he said.

O'Rourke says the language barrier is disappearing each week for Ramos.

"Bruno has gotten to the point where he understands what we tell him in practice if we talk very slowly. I was afraid to use him at first because I didn't know if the language problem would hurt us. But he knows what he's doing even if he can't tell you," said the Blanchester coach.

Around Ohio: Tailback Terry Bates of Fremont Ross has 913 yards rushing in five games and has surpassed 240 yards twice. The latest was 242 yards last week against Mansfield Senior.

John Long, Williamsport Westfall's 2,528-yard career rusher, is out for the season after undergoing knee surgery.

Lancaster's 24-16 victory last week was only Upper Arlington's fourth loss in 43 Central Ohio League games and the first to the Golden Gales since a 1963 forfeit. Bob Krannitz, a substitute tailback, ran 185 yards and scored two Lancaster touchdowns.

Newcomerstown's victory streak is up to 12 games, one shy of the school record. Doug Donnelly of Cambridge ran 63, 87 and 3 yards for touchdowns in a 47-34 loss to Canton McKinley. A converted middle guard, fullback Gerald Jackson scored three McKinley touchdowns.

Xenia beat Kettering Fairmont East with a 32-yard flea flicker play in the last 12 seconds, quarterback Kent Phillippi to Curtis Wingard, who later called to Mark Scott for the score.

Miami Trace, near Washington Court House, is averaging 530 yards a game and has not lost in its last 18 under Coach Fred Zechman.

Cleveland Stadium will be the site of a high school football doubleheader Saturday: Parma Padua vs. Cleveland Latin at 6 p.m. and Cleveland St. Ignatius vs. Cleveland West Tech at 8:30 p.m.

Computer narrowing possible champs

New leaders in prep football ratings

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Class AAA Akron North, Class AA Elyria Catholic and Class A Woodsfield are new regional leaders in the Ohio High School Athletic Association's computerized weekly football ratings.

Akron North displaced Stow Walsh Jesuit for the top spot in Region 3, moving up from second. Walsh Jesuit fell all the way to eighth place.

Elyria Catholic moved up one spot in Region 5 while Girard, last week's pacesetter, tumbled to seventh.

Woodsfield made the most dramatic jump, vaulting from sixth a week ago into the leadership in Region 11. Newark Catholic, No. 1 in that area last week, is now tied for third.

In Class AAA, Parma Valley Forge, Findlay and Cincinnati Moeller maintained their regional leads.

The Class AA frontrunners again were Columbus DeSales, Philo and Cincinnati North College Hill while still atop Class A regions were Cleveland Cuyahoga Heights, Fostoria St. Wendelin and West Jefferson.

Ashtabula St. John and Cleveland Cuyahoga Heights had shared the Region 9 top spot last week. St. John was second this time.

The OHSAA uses the ratings, based solely on a team's schedule and those of its opponents and not margin of victories, to select its semifinalists for the postseason playoffs.

Despite its 5-0 record and ninth-place ranking in the Class AAA grid poll, the Miami Trace Panthers fell farther behind Cincinnati Moeller in the state computer ratings.

The Panthers are currently in 24th place in Region 8 rankings with 22 points. Moeller has 63 points.

League rival Wilmington has 27 points in the same region and is ranked 19th.

In the Class AA rankings, Greenfield McClain shot to 18th place after upsetting Circleville last Friday. McClain has 18 points while Cincinnati North College Hill leads the region with 38.

Circleville and Washington C.H. are right behind McClain with 17 and 15 points respectively. Hillsboro is in 39th place with nine points while Madison Plains is in 46th place with five points.

Islanders top Sabres in NHL

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Sabres got almost all the shots ... but the New York Islanders got all the breaks. As a result, they got most of the goals.

Despite a staggering 30-14 difference in shots on goal, the Islanders converted theirs with high efficiency Wednesday night and took a 4-3 decision with a little help from their opponents.

"We capitalized on the mistakes Buffalo made, but that's what we have to do all season to keep winning," said Islanders Coach Al Arbor after his club remained the only undefeated team in the National Hockey League.

The Islanders scored a shorthanded goal in the first period by Ed Westfall and quickly added another score by Clark Gillies when the Buffalo defense collapsed.

Gary Howatt drilled in two more New York goals in the second period and the Islanders withstood a late charge by the Sabres. New York could only get two shots on goal in the entire third period and Buffalo lost a chance to tie the game late in the third period when Brian Spencer missed a shot into the open net.

In other NHL action, the Boston Bruins beat the New York Rangers 5-1; the Los Angeles Kings tied the Toronto Maple Leafs 4-4; the Atlanta Flames whipped the Cleveland Barons 4-2; the Chicago Black Hawks stopped the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1; the St. Louis Blues turned back the Colorado Rockies 3-2 and the Vancouver Canucks trimmed the Washington Capitals 4-1.

IL baseball awards

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rich Dauer of Rochester, the International League's leading hitter in 1976, now shares the Most Valuable Player honors with two others and has been named Rookie of the Year.

The 24-year-old second baseman, a native of San Bernardino, Calif., also tied with his teammate, pitcher Scott McGregor, in the balloting for the league's All-Star team.

Rochester also had the Most Valuable Pitcher and Most Valuable Manager, as the awards and the team were announced Tuesday.

Dauer, who hit .336 with 11 homers and 78 runs batted in during his first full year with the Class AAA Red Wings, tied for MVP honors with Mickey Klutts of Syracuse and Joe Lis of Toledo. Each got five votes from sports reporters in the eight IL cities.

Klutts, a shortstop, hit .319 with 24 homers and 80 RBIs. The first baseman, Lis, led the league with 103 RBIs, powered 30 homers and hit .306.

The Most Valuable Pitcher was Rochester's Dennis Martinez, who led the league with 140 strikeouts. His record was 14-8, with an earned run average of 2.50.

Rochester's Joe Altobelli was named Manager of the Year for the second time, after leading his squad to the regular season pennant.

The only other shared MVP award for the IL was in 1970, when it went to Rochester's Roger Freed and Columbus's George Kopacz.

For the All-Star team, Dauer and McGregor each got 23 votes, one less than the maximum. The left-handed pitcher was 11-6, and led the league with six shutouts.

Other players, by position, were: first base, Lis; shortstop, Klutts; third base, Butch Hobson, Rhode Island; outfielders, Miguel Dilone and Omar Moreno of Charleston and Terry Whitfield, Syracuse; catcher, John Stearns, Tidewater; righthanded pitcher, Martinez.

WCH golfers finish league

The Washington C.H. Blue Lion golf team finished out the South Central Ohio League dual-match schedule with a 178-186 win over Hillsboro Wednesday at the Washington Country Club.

The win gave coach Rick Crooks' young linksters a 6-4 league record and left them 9-4 overall. Only one more dual match remains. It is slated today against Chillicothe High School at the Chillicothe country club.

Saturday, the Blue Lions will enter district tournament play at Chillicothe's V.A. Course. The top team from the six-team tourney will move on to Class AA state competition.

Monday, the SCOL meet will be held at Wilmington's Snow Hill Country Club.

Gary Fisher took top honors for the Blue Lions Wednesday in the win over Hillsboro with a 43. He was followed in the scoring by teammates Willie Hatfield with a 44, John Moore with a 45 and Greg Tillett with a 46.

Hillsboro's Tim Sharkey took medalist honors with a 39, but his teammates shot in the high 40s.

McCurdy, Patton, Boy share OAC honors

CLEVELAND (AP) — Capital's Tom McCurdy, Jim Patton of Baldwin-Wallace and Marietta's Mark Boy shared the Ohio Athletic Conference football honors this week.

McCurdy, a sophomore middle guard, and Patton, a senior defensive back, were named OAC defensive players of the week, while Boy, a sophomore tailback, was the only offensive selection.

Aeros top Calgary

HOUSTON (AP) — With team emphasis being placed primarily on defense, Houston defenseman Marty Howe was surprised his first goal of the year came so early in the season.

Howe's power play goal at 15:39 of the second period broke a 1-1 tie Wednesday night and boosted the Aeros to a 2-1 victory over the Calgary Cowboys in a World Hockey Association game.

Reds have no preference who will challenge world crown

CINCINNATI (AP) — They're playing a waiting game in Cincinnati—and they don't seem to care who shows up at Riverfront Stadium Saturday.

The Cincinnati Reds, fresh from their three-game sweep of Philadelphia in the National League playoffs, began looking ahead to the World Series.

For some, it was a matter of taking on the bigger name.

For others, it was a matter of raking in a bigger paycheck.

And for most, it was a matter of believing that whichever team wound up representing the American League would also wind up a loser.

"I don't care who we play because these guys represent the best team in baseball," Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said Wednesday as he awaited the outcome of the best-of-five playoff between the New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals, now tied 2-2.

"There isn't another club in baseball that can match the eight players we can put on the field every day," Anderson added. "This isn't any three or four-man team, like most clubs."

Anderson said he believed "some of the younger players are hoping it will be in New York. But that's because Yankee Stadium seats more than the Kansas City park and they're figuring that playing New York will mean more money to them."

Gary Nolan, the right-hander who started the final game of the Reds' playoff against the Phillies, said emphatically that he was hoping to play New York "because I figure it's a once-in-a-lifetime shot. I've never seen Yankee Stadium except on television. And it would sure make me feel proud, standing out there on the mound."

Pete Rose also said he would prefer going against New York, but for a more practical reason. "I know the Yankees' pitchers better because I've faced most of them before," he said. "I guess you might say it's a psychological thing with me, but it always bothers me when I'm facing a pitcher for the first time."

Ray Shore, Cincinnati's special assignment scout who has been keeping close tabs on both American League playoff clubs, said he would rather see the Royals win the AL flag.

"Kansas City, that's the club I'd like for us to play in the series," Shore said. "The Yanks have the more experienced staff and I think they'd have a better chance of holding down our hitters. And the Kansas City park has Astroturf like ours. That's another reason why I'd rather see us play them than the Yankees."

For the most part, though, the Reds were being noncommittal about their possible opponent.

"I don't care which team it is," said left-hander Don Gullett, the Cincinnati starter in the World Series opener, summing up the Reds' viewpoint. "All I know is I'll be ready when Saturday comes."

Royals hook Catfish to tie Yanks in AL playoff

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Having beaten New York Yankees ace Catfish Hunter in the game they had to win to stay alive, the Kansas City Royals go after their first World Series berth tonight against Ed Figueroa.

The Yankees, hoping for their first American League pennant in 12 years, tried to wrap it up with Hunter Wednesday. But the bid backfired when the Royals kayoed Hunter early.

That left Figueroa, a 19-game winner during the regular season but the loser in Game Two of these best-of-five AL playoffs, for tonight's deciding game. Today is Figueroa's 28th birthday.

The Royals forced the championship series to its limit by beating New York 7-4 Wednesday with a barrage of extra-base hits that included a double and triple by Hal McRae.

That overcame a pair of home runs by Graig Nettles of the Yankees and sent the two division champions back for one more game in this see-saw series.

McRae, who broke out of a slump that had left him hitless in the first three games of the series, thought that beating Hunter in Game Four would give the Royals the edge tonight.

"I feel we have the momentum now," said McRae. "I think we're in the best position. We beat their best pitcher — their big gun. They won't have the same faith in the guy they throw tomorrow (Thursday night) that they had today (Wednesday)."

Yankees Manager Billy Martin bristled at that suggestion. "Figueroa will start the fifth game, and we have a lot of faith in him," he said.

What was Martin's reason for using Figueroa, who has lost three decisions to Kansas City this season, including the second game of the playoffs?

"Nineteen wins," snapped the Yankees manager. "That's a pretty good reason."

Ignored as a possible starter for the final game was lefthander Ken Holtzman, a veteran of playoff and World Series competition during his years in Oakland. "Holtzman hasn't been pitching well lately," said Martin. "I really didn't consider him."

If the Yankees had no plans for Holtzman, Royals Manager Whitey Herzog could have used him on loan. Asked about his fifth game starter, Herzog had to hedge Wednesday night.

"I have no idea right now," he said. "I have a choice of four — Dennis Leonard, Marty Pattin, Al Fitzmorris and Paul Splittorff. If I had Holtzman, I'd pitch him."

Splittorff, who pitched 5 2-3 innings of shutout relief in Game Two, would have had the assignment almost automatically if he had not had to warm up Wednesday. But he was anxious for another shot at the Yankees.

Leonard was the second game starter and was knocked out early. But Herzog thinks the 17-game winner could do a creditable job. "He's a power pitcher and if he throws strikes he can give them trouble," the manager said.

Fitzmorris is the only Royals player who has not played in the series so far. "If I pitched, I'd feel strange," he said. "I think my bid was turned down."

Don January tiring out?

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Tough old Don January, who happily calls himself "Old Folks," will close out one of pro golf's most remarkable seasons this week.

"This is it," drawled the slow-moving, easy-going January before teeing off in the first round today as the defending champion in the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open. "I've played enough. I'm running out of gas."

That's exactly what happened in his last start, two weeks ago in the Sahara Invitational in Las Vegas. He led through three rounds, then faded over the last 18 holes and finished in a tie for second with Dave Hill.

Still, that performance helped him to the best year of his pro career that has spanned more than 20 years, and capped one of the most dramatic comebacks in sports history.

At age 46, after a three-year retirement in which he rarely played even friendly golf, he won the prestigious Tournament of Champions, was in title contention almost every time he started, has a chance at the Vardon Trophy for the tour's low scoring average and now has won $162,772, more than twice as much as he had ever won.

"It's been very rewarding, very satisfying," January said.

Not just another concrete bowl

Riverfront Stadium gains tradition

By NORM CLARKE
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — It is just another ball park. It looks like any of the other impersonal concrete bowls which have sprouted up in major league cities around the nation the past decade or so.

But for a park just six years old, Riverfront Stadium already has a lot of tradition going for it.

Everybody knows the $50 million stadium is the personal playground of Cincinnati Reds star Pete Rose. And it's where quarterback Ken Anderson of the Cincinnati Bengals takes target practice against the rest of the National Football League seven times a season.

But that's not tradition, yet.

Tradition is Henry Aaron hitting the first home run in the park on opening night, June 30, 1970, and the late Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh hitting his last, in the fourth game of the 1972 National League playoffs.

It is Aaron tying Babe Ruth's record of 714 career homers on April 4, 1974, with his first swing of the season, in an appearance ordered by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Tradition is Chicago's Ken Holtzman and Rick Wise of St. Louis throwing no-hitters just 20 days apart in 1971.

It is President Richard Nixon starting the 1970 All-Star Game by throwing out the first ball and Rose ending it with his crunching collision with Cleveland catcher Ray Fosse in the 12th inning.

And the tradition isn't limited to sports or even to the stadium itself.

Singing cowboy star Roy Rogers claims he was born at second base—long before the base was ever there and Joe Morgan guarded it.

Murderer Charles Manson grew up playing in the back alleyways of the slums that were later leveled to make room for the stadium.

More than a century ago, Stephen Foster and Mark Twain hung around the neighboring riverfront after which the ballpark is named.

And even today, the majestic Delta Queen, the 50-year-old paddlewheeler, calls the dock beyond the right field wall its home port.

Riverfront will get some tradition starting Saturday when the defending world champion Reds begin their second straight World Series and their fourth since 1970.

Anderson eyes Steelers

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson has taken his lumps over the years from the Steelers and looks hopefully toward Sunday's confrontation at Pittsburgh where Cincinnati has never won.

"It's a challenge," said Anderson, discussing the team that has been his nemesis. Pittsburgh has won the Central Division of the American Conference of the National Football League for three straight years.

Cincinnti is 4-1 this season but despite the Steelers' 1-4 record, and the absence of injured quarterback Terry Bradshaw, Cincinnati is only a one point favorite.

"Look at their whole defense," said Anderson. "They try to intimidate people. They're very physical.

"We haven't done very well against them in the past. They've had good success against us."

Pittsburgh has beaten Cincinnati in eight of the last 12 games between them. Cincinnati scored on the final play of the game at Cincinnati last season to lose 30-26. The Steelers romped 35-14 in the first game at Pittsburgh.

In a 1914 Georgia-Alabama League baseball game, pitcher John Cantley hit three grand slam home runs and a single to drive in 15 runs in leading Opelika, Ga., to a 19-1 win over Talladega, Ala.

Ashford & Simpson Get Act Together

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures

Nick Ashford and Valerie Simpson have written lots of the soul hit songs of the last dozen years, been married a couple of years, become parents of baby Nicole. In the past few years, they have made a few records themselves and performed from time to time.

Now they have decided to get serious about getting their act together and their show on the road, and for Ashford and Simpson that is meant literally.

George Faison, who choreographed Broadway's "The Wiz," did some choreography for them. Ashford says, "He more or less married it with the music. He really knows how to make the picture work. We wanted to make the act get over; we don't want people to think of us as dancers. I think he enhanced what we do.

"Just the fact we're really ready and want to get out there makes this tour different for us." The tour, which extends into the summer, includes seven performances in Broadway's Uris Theater, sharing the bill with Al Green, and a couple of TV guest appearances.

The couple's most recent album on Warner Brothers is "Come As You Are," and a new single released from it is "Somebody Told Me a Lie." Earlier they made "Gimme Something Real" and "I Wanna Be Selfish" for Warner Brothers and before that Miss Simpson made two solo albums for Tamla.

The new album, Ashford says, "Expresses what we feel about performing. We want to communicate and be uplifting. We think what is needed today is inspiration. We don't believe in negativity. I've had experiences — we've written about them — which were unhappy. We know we have our moments when everything isn't fine. We've got to stop and deal with them. We're, saying, 'We're going to make it through here.' "

The couple has homes in New York City and Connecticut — where they have a vegetable garden. They've been married two years and, Miss Simpson says, some people thought they always were married. "Other people say they knew all the time that eventually we'd get married. Why didn't they tell me? I didn't know it, at least not consciously.

"I recommend long friendships. You get to learn a lot about a person."

Her husband agrees. "We were always telling each other about our experiences. Then when we finally looked at each other with the love light, a lot of the games we were playing with other people — we'd already told them. We couldn't use them on each other. It was starting out with nothing hidden and not trying to fool somebody. I kept on being my regular self and she kept on being her regular self and we loved it.

Miss Simpson, a native New Yorker, and Ashford, born in Fairfield, S.C., and reared near Detroit, met in the White Rock Baptist Church in Harlem when she was 17 and he was 21. She was singing there with three other girls. Gospel music was having a vogue just then and the girl quartet went into an off-Broadway gospel nightclub, Ashford joining them. That didn't last long but before she went back to a secretarial job and he started looking for a job, they tried writing some songs together. They sold them, which led to being hired to write for Scepter Records.

The big break came there, when Ray Charles got a hit with one of their songs, "Let's Go Get Stoned." On the strength of that, Motown Records hired them in 1965.

"We thought we had a good pace of writing," Miss Simpson says, "but they were turning out songs as fast as pancakes, they had so many writers."

The Motown system was to let a writer, who was getting hits with, say the Temptations, keep writing songs for that group. But if a song didn't become a hit, then other Motown writers could try writing for the Temps. Lots of writers came to hate that, but Miss Simpson and Ashford say they thrived on the competition. They worked for Motown some seven years, though they never moved out of New York, just flew to Detroit sometimes, then back to New York.

He says, "Competition brings out the best in you. You don't know how much reserve you really have until you push yourself. There were so many good writers and producers there. You felt you had to call upon yourself for more than you had previously been giving.

Their biggest hit probably is "Ain't No Mountain High Enough," Miss Simpson says, because it was a hit for Marvin Gaye and Tammi Terrell, then again later for Diana Ross. "Reach Out and Touch (Somebody's Hand)," recorded by Miss Ross and by Aretha Franklin, also was big. And the one they get most requests for is "Give Me Something Real."

They surprised Motown, the couple recall, by turning in completed songs on demonstration records, complete with background singers. "They had hundreds of music tracks there, with no words. Usually somebody would later pick up a track and write words," Miss Simpson says.

She explains, "Nick writes all the lyrics and I do the music but he gets into that, too. Most of the time it happens together. We'll be playing and singing and thoughts will come and something falls out right so we know it sounds good."

Studying The World Of The Occult

SOMETHING'S THERE. By Dan Greenberg. Doubleday. 320 Pages. $7.95.

One of the frustrations of journalism, albeit a rare thing, is when a lot of time and money is spent on an idea for a potential story and it doesn't pan out. There's a great temptation to put something into print anyway, if for no other reason than to justify the effort.

Such seems to be the case with "Something's There." Although this is a literary effort, a valid comparison can be made to journalism because the author ventures into a serious vein — trying to discover and write about whether there's anything concrete to the world of the occult.

The impressive part of "Something's There," is the obvious effort Dan Greenberg made toward trying to discover for himself whether ghosts exist, people can levitate things, etc. He spent a lot of time trying to meet a respectable spirit — assuming there might be such a thing — and talking with and observing those who claim they count spirits among their friends. He also read a lot, according to a bibliography that listed 119 sources. Impressive indeed. But that's about it. There's nothing new here.

One further note: Greenburg has a knack of writing a humorous flash when you least expect it and that talent sporadically surfaces in this book. Unfortunately, though, this is rather disruptive at times because it keeps the reader asking "is this for real or is it a put-down?" It's real, but after reading it for a time you'll probably want to put it down.

LANDS UPRIGHT — After striking a ditch along U.S. 62, near the Stafford Road, this car, driven by a Fayette County youth, rolled over through a line of fence and finally ended up on all four wheels. Two persons were injured as a result of the Wednesday afternoon accident.

In crash on U.S. 62-S

Driver, passenger injured

A Fayette County driver and a fellow passenger were injured when the car they were in rolled through a ditch and into a corn field, Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported.

Traveling north on U.S. 62-S, James L. Haines, 17, of 2596 Staunton-Sugar Grove Road, reportedly lost control of his car on a curve located just south of the Stafford Road, at 4:40 p.m. Wednesday.

The car went off the right side of the roadway and into a ditch, rolling over and traveling through part of a fence owned by A.J. Paddock, of Alabama. The car landed upright, but not before it had incurred severe damage in the process.

The youth was taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released. A passenger, Rick A. Nichols, 15, of 731 McLean St., claimed injury as a result of the mishap. The 17-year-old youth was charged with reckless operation.

A car driven by Larry L. Jackson, 27, of Greenfield, was northbound on the Creek Road at 11 p.m. Wednesday when it reportedly went left of center and down an embankment just south of Rock Bridge Road.

The car landed in a creek bed, and was severely damaged. Jackson was charged with failing to drive on the right half of the roadway. A passenger in the car, George F. Hamilton, 21, of Greenfield, claimed injury.

A truck belonging to the Colonial Stair and Woodworking Co., 8 E. High St., Jeffersonville, was reportedly struck and moderately damaged by a hitskip vehicle while parked along an alley near the business, just east of Ohio 41-N. The accident was alleged to have occurred sometime Wednesday morning.

Washington C.H. police officers reported that a car driven by Kathleen G. Scabaver, 16, of Mascoutrh, Ill., was eastbound on Temple Street at 6:44 p.m. Wednesday when it failed to stop for a red light, and collided with a car proceeding north on Main Street.

The second car, severely damaged, was driven by Larry C. Baker, 33, of 2145 Ohio 41-S. Miss Scabaver's car was moderately damaged, and she was charged with a red light violation.

Stolen property suspect charged

Horse injures fairgrounds trainer

A resident of the Fayette County Fairgrounds was injured early Thursday when a horse he was attempting to train, broke loose and ran over him, Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported.

Howard Jarrells, 40, who resides on the fairgrounds, was treated and released from Fayette County Memorial Hospital after suffering head injuries as a result of being struck by the standardbred horse at 9 a.m. on the fairgrounds race track.

According to sheriff's deputies, Jarrells and the owner of the colt, Ronald K. Cornwell, 326 Rawlings St., were in the process of training the horse by "line driving" when it reportedly broke loose and ran over Jarrells.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson reported that Keith Morris, 22, of 212 S. Fayette St., was charged Wednesday with receiving stolen property after a pair of "needle holders" valued at $20 were discovered in his possession.

The item, belonging to the Fayette County Memorial Hospital, was reportedly found on Morris' possession during a routine search by sheriff's deputies as he was being booked at the Fayette County jail on a probation violation charge on Oct. 7.

Morris is scheduled to appear in Washington C.H. Municipal Court later this week for a hearing on the charge.

Betty J. Smith, of Milledgeville, told sheriff's deputies that sometime between 1 and 3 p.m. Tuesday, approximately a half tank of gasoline was siphoned from her car as it was parked in front of a residence in West Lancaster.

Washington C.H. police officers reported that an alleged breaking and entering incident took place at the Allen L. Mossbarger insurance agency, 310 E. Court St., sometime Tuesday. Though the door had reportedly been pried open, nothing was believed to have been taken.

Arrests

SHERIFF

WEDNESDAY — Larry L. Jackson, 27, of Greenfield, failure to drive on right half of the roadway; James L. Haines, 17, of 2596 Staunton-Sugar Grove Road, reckless operation; Keith Morris, 22, of 212 S. Fayette St., receiving stolen property.

POLICE

WEDNESDAY — Kathleen G. Scabaver, 16, of Mascoutrh, Ill., red light violation.

No damage reported

A compost pile at a Washington C.H. industry caught fire and was extinguished by Washington C.H. firemen at 4:19 p.m. Wednesday.

The fire, of undetermined origin, took place on a compost pile near the Mac Tools, Inc. plant, S. Fayette St., and was extinguished by firemen using water. No damage was reported.

Traffic safety awards announced

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vocational Industrial Club of America won the top award from the Governor's Traffic Safety Committee Wednesday for its efforts to promote safety.

The Fairfield, Ohio club was given the Urie C. Felty Award, established in 1973 in honor of the state's first highway safety director, for a program that included a mayor's proclamation, television interviews on alcohol abuse and rides in patrol cars to observe drunken drivers.

Other awards went to:

—Girl Scout Troop 23, Lake to River Council, and Boy Scout Troop 138, Mahoning Valley Council, for bicycle and pedestrian safety programs;

—Knox County Law Enforcement Explorer Post 320 for its Safety Town program for preschoolers;

—An all-day promotion of accident prevention at the Canfield State Fair;

—A holiday safety monitor program by Youngstown REACT team C-98;

—Wayne Donaldson, Uhrichsville, for establishing a school safety program.

Sgt. James H. Reed, assistant commander of the highway patrol's Fremont Post; Montgomery County Sheriff's Deputy Jerome L. Hansen of Dayton; and Mansfield Patrolman Wolfgang W. Gaskill received enforcement awards.

Nation's voters face many local issues

By The Associated Press

The spotlight in the 1976 election is on the presidential race, but voters in November also will be deciding close-to-home questions involving everything from nuclear safety to state-regulated slot machines.

Some of the proposals are in the form of constitutional amendments offered by state legislatures. Others have been placed on the ballot as a result of voter initiatives and petition drives.

An Associated Press spot check showed that the nuclear safety issue has generated the most interest, followed by proposals to ban or restrict nonreturnable beverage containers.

California residents voted against a proposal on the June primary ballot to limit development of nuclear power plants and impose restrictions on the operation of those already in existence.

Similar measures now are on the ballot in a number of states, including Oregon, Montana, Ohio, Washington and Arizona.

There are about 60 atomic power plants already in operation and another 40 plants are expected in operation by 1980. Critics of nuclear power say that safety controls are not strict enough.

The proposals under consideration would:

—Set specific safety standards for builders.

—Provide for safe storage, transportation and disposal of nuclear wastes.

—Require legislative approval of all new plants.

—Urge Congress to suspend the limit on liability insurance in case of nuclear accidents.

The outcome of the vote is expected to be close in most states and both sides have been fighting hard. Opponents of the measure in the State of Washington have a fund of more than $340,000, but a poll published by the Seattle Times in August showed 44.1 per cent of those surveyed were for the measure, 23.9 per cent were against and 32 per cent were undecided.

Here is a look at some other issues under consideration around the country:

RETURNABLE BOTTLES AND CANS

Massachusetts, Maine and Michigan are among the states trying to limit the use of nonreturnable containers. Under the Maine proposal, which is typical, all beer, ale and soft drink containers sold in the state after Jan. 1, 1978 would have to have at least a five-cent deposit. Cans with flip-top openers would be banned, as would plastic rings used to hold the cans or bottles together in a six-pack.

UTILITIES

Voters in some states will decide on measures that could affect electric and gas bills. In Massachusetts, a proposal would require the same per-kilowatt charge for all customers in contrast to the current practice of lower rates for big users. The governor and the state Department of Public Utilities contend that the measure would hurt industry. Ohioans for Utility Reform — OUR is pushing a measure requiring utilities to offer low-cost "lifeline" rates, with a minimum charge for a minimum amount of power. A measure on the ballot in Missouri would prevent utilities from including construction work in progress as one of the ongoing costs in figuring rate increases. Supporters of the measure say it's not the job of a utility customer to finance long-range construction projects.

GAMBLING

Legalized gambling of one form or another is under consideration in several states. The biggest fight has been in New Jersey where there is a proposal to okay casino gambling in Atlantic City. Two years ago, a plan for casino gambling throughout the state was rejected by a 3-2 margin. The Eagleton Institute of Politics of Rutgers University said a late-September poll showed 59 per cent of those questioned favored the proposal, 36 were against and the rest were undecided. In Delaware, the issue is whether the voters favor state-regulated slot machines. In California, the controversy is over greyhound racing. And in Oregon, a proposal on the ballot would allow charitable, fraternal and religious organizations to run bingo games.

SPENDING—MONEY

Two measures on the Michigan ballot specifically deal with money. One would limit state spending to 8.3 per cent of total personal income in the state; the other would remove the state's constitutional prohibition on a graduated income tax. Massachusetts voters also will decide whether to permit a graduated income tax — an idea that has been turned down three times in recent years. In Missouri, there are proposals to increase the state's sales tax by an eighth of a cent, but remove it from food and prescription drugs. North Dakota voters are faced with a plan to reduce the sales tax from 4 to 3 per cent. The drive is led by a businessman critical of the state's $180 million general fund surplus.

GOVERNMENT REORGANIZATION

Jimmy Carter has made his reorganization of the Georgia government a key issue in the presidential campaign. Another kind of reorganization — involving the state constitution — is on the November ballot. A key proposal would rearrange the constitution to put similar subjects under the same articles. Officials say it would be the first step toward an article-by-article constitutional revision in the future. Another measure on the Georgia ballot would allow a governor to succeed himself for a second four-year term. In Montana, residents of 156 counties, cities and towns will vote on proposals for new forms of local government. The new ideas generally would increase power at the local level.

STATE CAPITAL

The biggest issue on the Alaska ballot is where to put the state capital. Alaskans voted in 1974 to move it from Juneau and created a commission to propose three alternative sites. The choices: Willow, about 70 miles north of Anchorage and the cheapest of the three to develop; Mount Yenlo, a wilderness area 100 miles north of Anchorage and the second cheapest to develop; and Larson Lake, 120 miles north of Anchorage and the most expensive in development costs.

MISCELLANEOUS

Oklahoma residents have another chance to vote on legalizing the sale of liquor by the drink; an Equal Rights Amendment to the state constitution and a ban on the ownership of most handguns are on the ballot in Massachusetts; and a Florida measure would strengthen the state's financial disclosure law for public officials.

Shelter for beaten wives successful

FAIRFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Early this year, Lois Hake Woman divorced her husband, changed her name and opened her home to other women who had lived in fear of their husbands' anger as she did for 29 years.

Her residence, which she kept in the divorce settlement, is an ordinary four-bedroom ranch. In February, it became the Butler County Woman's Crisis Center, opening its doors 24 hours a day to offer protection from wife beaters.

So far, 20 women have been housed there, one returning as many as four times, for three to five days.

"Most of them return home after that," Miss Woman said. Experience has taught her why.

"In 29 years of marriage, I can't tell you how many nights I spent locked in the car or sitting in an all-night diner to be safe from my husband," Miss Woman said.

"But I stayed married," she writes in a 40-page pamphlet entitled "Diary of a Battered Housewife."

"Being beaten is such a shameful experience you don't want to tell anyone, because you're afraid of the kind of justice which often sets such men free within five minutes; because even if your husband earns $20,000 a year, you may have no alternatives financially; because of a son—we're so conditioned to think a child needs a father; and for religious reasons.'

Gearing herself for divorce at age 49 and with no recognizable marketable skills, she did telephone solicitation to maintain the home.

Since she has opened the shelter, which houses 12 women, and written her diary, Miss Woman lectures throughout the state.

She said she is looking for funds and working with agencies in the Cincinnati area "so the center can offer total resources—housing for women and children as long as needed, peer counseling, paralegal and medical services, and job training and counseling."

The cooperative shelter is staffed with two volunteers who answer crises calls. Present services include nightly talk sessions for abused residents and the offer to accompany the victims to file assault charges, to the welfare department and to attorneys.

"The trouble with going to an attorney is that in our town you need $100 just to go for advice," she said. "And many women aren't eligible for Legal Aid because their husbands earn too much money."

Miss Woman said statistics show "three times as many women are abused as are raped." She quoted a recent poll which said 20 per cent of Americans think wife beating is acceptable under certain conditions.

She said her name is an effort to break the chain of subservience.

"After my divorce, I took back my maiden name. Then, I realized that no woman has her own name—before you're married you use your father's," Miss Woman said.

"So, I decided to take a name that would be solely mine...one that no man would think of using. 'Woman' is my answer."

Appeal scheduled on data ruling

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Federal Home Loan Bank Board has filed a notice of appeal of U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin's ruling Sept. 27 barring the agency from providing data processing service to savings and loan associations.

Rubin ordered the service stopped as the result of a suit brought by a private data processing firm in Cincinnati.

The firm contended the federal agency was causing a hardship for private industry by providing the service. Judge Rubin said the Federal Home Loan Bank had no basis in law for providing such services.

Ohio Perspective

Issue 5 links consumers, utility companies

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — How much help do residential consumers want in dealings with Ohio gas, electric and telephone companies? If Issue 5 on the November ballot passes, two consumer offices will champion their cause against utilities.

The proposed constitutional amendment would create a Residential Utility Consumers Action Group (RUCAG), an independent, nonprofit advocate office, funded on a voluntary basis.

Regardless of the outcome of the vote on RUCAG, a separate consumer counsel will begin next year intervening on behalf of homeowners and renters in regulatory cases before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO).

The consumer counsel concept, already in effect in about a dozen states, was enacted as part of a major utility rate reform bill.

RUCAG's role would be similar, but the concept of a voluntarily-funded, independent action group for utility consumers would be unique to Ohio, if enacted. It originated with Ralph Nader's Public Interest Research Group in Washington, D.C. and has yet to be adopted by any state.

RUCAG would be financed by voluntary $6 a year check-offs on utility service bills and would be guided at the outset by a seven-member board of trustees, named in the ballot issue.

Ohioans for Utility Reform (OUR), sponsor of the proposition and three other ballot issues, stresses that RUCAG would be free of governmental interference and accountable only to its membership.

"It's not a government agency," says Steve Sterrett, OUR's public information director. "When you are accountable, you are also influenced by. RUCAG will be accountable only to its membership and if it doesn't perform well, ratepayers won't fund it."

Citizens for Safe, Lower Cost Electricity (CSLCE), a utilitybacked coalition opposed to the four OUR amendments, sees RUCAG in a different light— "unnecessary and duplicative."

"It beats me as to why anyone would want to pay twice for representation, especially in this day of increasing costs, and into a fund administered by a group of seven people they know nothing about," says Eugene "Pete" O'Grady, chairman of CSLCE.

Although Ohio's public utilities will be assessed for the operation of the consumer counsel, the office already in existence, the companies will eventually pass this cost on to ratepayers. Consequently, O'Grady reasons a consumer who voluntarily contributed to RUCAG would also be paying for the consumer counsel's activities.

This public consumer counsel will be named early next year by nine trustees from different segments of society, appointed to an advisory board by Atty. Gen. William J. Brown. Should the voters approve issues, RUCAG would operate as a separate entity.

RUCAG's seven original trustees, who would receive expenses but no salary, would serve until contributions reached the $10,000 mark. After that, public elections by congressional district would be held for two-year terms on the policy board.

Although the prospective board members are named in the amendment, O'Grady says "most voters will not know anything about these seven people, let alone know that a 'yes' vote on Issue 5 will elect them to state office."

The seven are: James L. Mack, a Shaker Heights psychologist; John T. Looney of Wadsworth, a representative of the American Friends Service Committee; Edward A. Harter, a Columbus attorney; Susan E. Clark, an Akron social worker; Charles S. Toskas, a Youngstown teacher and consumer protection caseworker; Fred Shuttlesworth of Cincinnati, a Baptist minister, and Susan M. Weaver, director of Cuyahoga County's child abuse prevention program.

Lively election in New Hampshire

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire is having one of its liveliest governor's races in years. The outcome may provide the first test of what effect thousands of new residents will have on the state's politics.

Republican Gov. Meldrim Thomson, a conservative known for his outspoken views, is pitted against liberal Democrat Harry Spanos in the November election. Thomson is trying to become the second governor in the state's modern history to serve three straight terms.

New Hampshire, which despite its small size grabs national attention every four years with the country's first presidential primary, traditionally has been conservative and overwhelmingly Republican.

But in the past six years more than 80,000 new people — about 10 per cent of the state's population — have settled in New Hampshire, many of them seeking to escape higher taxes in other states. New Hampshire is the only state with neither a sales nor an income tax.

The Thomson-Spanos race, according to a number of veteran politicians, is expected to test the sentiments of those new voters because Thomson and Spanos have opposing views on a litany of issues, including the emotional subject of taxes.

In their first joint appearance at a Chamber of Commerce breakfast in Manchester, Thomson called Spanos an "ultra socialist" after Spanos accused Thomson of "one man rule" and undermining government operations during both his two-year terms.

Spanos, 50, a former state senator and an articulate spokesman for the progressive wing of his party, surprised many politicians by defeating two other Democrats in the primary. Thomson easily defeated a moderate Republican to get the GOP nomination, rolling up 65 per cent of the votes.

Thomson, although remaining the favorite, is facing the stiffest race yet because of a divided Republican party and a Democratic party which has captured three of the state's four congressional seats — two since 1974.

"You're going to find the electorate is changing," said John Lynch, executive director of the Democratic state committee. "The election is going to be an indication of the changing mood of the electorate."

Peter Thomson, the governor's son and campaign manager, agrees the election may give an insight on the changing electorate because the candidates have "real philosophical differences."

"If these people came to New Hampshire to escape taxes in Massachusetts they'll vote for Meldrim Thomson. If they came to continue the policies of Massachusetts than they'll vote for Harry Spanos," said the younger Thomson.

Thomson has banked his campaign on his unwavering opposition to the imposition of either general sales or income taxes and his generally conservative fiscal policy. Spanos, who as a state legislator voiced sympathy with a graduated income tax, has said in the campaign that he is opposed to any such tax at this time.

Alcohol education program begins

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Liquor Control has begun an alcohol education program for Ohio's junior high schools.

Director Clifford E. Reich said department representatives will speak at schools on liquor laws for persons under 21. The speaker will coordinate the program with the classroom teacher for discussions on alcholic beverage control, reading material and a department film.

Walleye fishing curb attacked

By JIM DAUBEL
For The Associated Press

Walleye fishing would be closed statewide during seven weeks of the best spring angling for that species if a bill recommended by a House committee is approved by the legislature and governor.

Sponsor of the measure is Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, a longtime foe of the wildlife division and consistent supporter of antigun, antihunting legislation.

Wilkowski's measure would prohibit the taking of walleyes by commercial or sports fishermen from March 24 to May 11 annually. He says it is aimed primarily at curtailing the illegal snagging of walleyes in the Sandusky River at Fremont every spring.

The legislation is opposed by the wildlife division and is expected to come under fire from sportsmen's groups if it is pursued when the General Assembly reconvenes next year.

"I received a number of requests—a vast number—from fishermen who were concerned about the illegal fishing of walleye," Wilkowski explained. "Everyone will agree out here in northwestern Ohio that it's like a Roman circus during spawning season."

The walleye fishing problems in the Sandusky River are well known to the division, which moved two years ago to curb illegal fishing tactics when thousands of the prized gamefish migrate upstream during their annual spring spawning runs in March and April.

Terminal tackle has been restricted and portions of the river closed from 1 a.m. to 5 a.m., when most snagging occurs. Stronger measures, including daylight fishing only, have been advocated within the division but never adopted.

Wilkowski maintains that the natural resources department "has condoned snagging and will continue to condone it because of agreements and arrangements with the League of Ohio Sportsmen, all to the detriment of other fishermen who don't belong to the league or any other sportsmen's organization."

The division and many sportsmen are opposed to Wilkowski's bill for several reasons. First, by protecting the species statewide, they contend all fishermen would be punished for the excesses of a few. Secondly, the division is particularly critical of any move to put fish or game management in the political process.

Wilkowski steered the bill to his own House Economic Affairs Committee rather than the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee, where such bills normally would go.

He said he brought the legislation to his own committee because it "deals with a multitude of subjects. There is no reason why it shouldn't go" before his panel, he said.

Asked why he didn't go before the natural resources committee, Wilkowski replied that "getting an endorsement before a committee means absolutely nothing. The ultimate test is on the floor of the Senate."

ONA seminar slated Oct. 28-30

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Newspaper Association holds its 13th seminar on the use of newspapers in education here Oct. 28-30.

Speakers include Dr. Martin W. Essex, Ohio superintendent of public instruction; Eugue Rutland of the Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial-Appeal; Wilma Blaylock of the Memphis city schools; Nancy Eberhart of the Ohio Department of Education; Lloyd McCrory, superintendent of the Mansfield city schools; and Harry R. Horvitz, president of the Ohio Newspaper Association.

The association has developed projects on understanding the news media for junior high schools and further application of newspapers in learning.

See 61 per cent vote turnout

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some 61 per cent of Ohio's eligible voters will go to the polls for the Nov. 2 presidential election, Secretary of State Ted Brown predicted Tuesday.

The record high equals 4.2 million of the 6.9 million eligible voters, Brown said. He said Montgomery and Franklin counties were the only metropolitan counties to show an increase in voter registration from 1972, but many suburban and rural counties have reported increases from their 1972 figures.

By 1800 there were upwards of 1,000 settlers scattered throughout 35 of the 103 townships in that part of the Western Reserve which was east of the Cuyahoga River, and 700 miles of roads had been cut through the wilderness.—AP

Both sides seek southern political advantages

DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

Beneath the contest between Jimmy Carter and President Ford in the South is another struggle. It may determine the political direction of the New South and the chances for a new Republican majority.

By nominating a native Southerner for president, the Democrats have done two things crucial to the future of the region:

—They have ended a long free ride for Republicans in the South in national elections.

—And they have made it possible for many Southern Democrats to stop doing their own thing at the local level while ignoring the party's presidential ticket.

Ever since the Dixiecrats bolted the party in 1948, the once Solid South has been eroding for the Democrats. Dwight Eisenhower made inroads in 1952 and 1956, and Richard Nixon held some of the new ground in 1960. Barry Goldwater took five Southern states in 1964 despite a Texan heading the Democratic ticket.

In 1968 only Texas stayed with the Democrats. What George Wallace didn't win with his third party bid, Nixon got. And in 1972 Nixon took them all.

The split began over civil rights, but it spread to other issues on which Southern voters generally concluded that the Republican presidential nominees were more conservative, and therefore closer to their own traditions, than the national Democratic party.

Local Democrats, meanwhile, most of them just as conservative as any Republican, simply ignored the national party, or even denounced it while campaigning back home. They ran on their own strength and voting habits older than the Civil War.

At the same time they continued to call themselves Democrats, keeping their seniority in Congress and other benefits of national party support. They had the best of both worlds.

But a couple of things happened which threatened this comfortable accommodation. For one thing, once Southerners had dared to vote against the party of their fathers at one level, it was an easier step to the next. Southern districts began sending Republicans to Congress for the first time since Reconstruction.

Sensing a trend, some newcomers decided to enter politics under the new banner, and some lifelong Democrats, like Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, who had first defected as Dixiecrats, completed the switch and became Republicans.

But just as the conservative mood of the Old South was leading it to what was seen as the more conservative party, the old patterns were being broken by the 1965 voting rights act, which brought thousands of new black voters onto the rolls.

Segregationists were no longer automatically winning elections. Blacks began to be elected to public office. And white New South politicians, able to draw from both constituencies, began to appear, men like Carter in Georgia, Reubin Askew in Florida, Dale Bumpers in Arkansas, Wendell Ford in Kentucky.

Now, one of the New Southerners is heading the Democratic ballot.

"The South sees him the kind of presidential nominee they have been asking the Democrats for," said an early Carter backer. "For the first time they have a candidate who is nationally acceptable ad whom they can accept and identify with."

"Most local candidates for the first time are proud to have the national ticket tied to their campaigns," said David Dunn, Carter's Florida campaign coordinator.

If Carter makes the national Democratic party respectable to Southern voters, the main advantage the Republicans had in the South will be wiped out. And most of them know it. Ford workers say they are surprised at the way Ronald Reagan's conservative Republican backers are pitching in to save the Ford campaign in Dixie.

The kind of Southerners who are sticking with the GOP appear to be in large measure those who would have been Republicans all along if they had lived in another part of the country — businessmen, professionals, white collar workers, suburbanites.

This is a growing class in the South and could provide a reasonable base for a growing Republican party no matter who wins the presidency — if the GOP can adapt its approach and cultivate these voters.

On the other hand, one of the things which has stumped Ford's strategists is the way the rural South and the growing urban industrial working class is sticking with Carter.

Despite their conservative bent on social issues, these people are closely affected by the basic economic issues which have always been the strength of the Democratic party. Recession and inflation influence them just as much as voters anywhere else.

That basic Carter strength has not been lost on the Democrats of the old school. While Ford is picking up some Democratic support in the South, he is not getting it in the measure that Nixon, Goldwater, and Eisenhower did. There are people lining up behind Carter who haven't backed the national ticket in two or three decades.

If this means embracing a liberalized New South in the person of Jimmy Carter, most of them seem willing to do it. This was graphically illustrated when Sens. James Eastland and John Stennis accompanied Carter to Mississippi for a public annointing. Even Ross Barnett, who was perhaps the most famous of Mississippi's segregationist governors, is on Carter's steering committee in the state.

Ford's hopes of saving the South for the GOP lie in trying to convince Southerners that as a conservative he holds greater right to their loyalties, even though Carter was born and raised in their midst.

"He may talk like us but he doesn't think like us," said Haley Barbour, the young Mississippian who is Ford's Southern coordinator. And that is the heart of the strategy, that the South "will vote principles instead of geography."

Carter's hopes lie in the belief that the New South retains its traditional regional pride while it tolerates new ideas.

"We don't think Jimmy's out of the mainstream of the South," said Phil Wise, Carter's Southern coordinator. "A lot of the pride of the South is at stake in this race."

Some Carter supporters see his candidacy as a kind of vindication of the South, and this has made a lot of Southerners protective of Jimmy Carter.

After his Playboy interview appeared some Carter campaign offices received calls from people asking just which verses of Scripture he had been referring to in his explanation of pride and lust.

"Now these people know the Bible," said Dunn. "They weren't asking for their own instruction. They wanted the right verses to defend him with."

One problem Ford has in campaigning in the South stems from the very nature of Republican party growth in the region. It has been based largely on the appeal of a national ticket which sold itself and never built a local base independent of coattails.

In some Southern states — Louisiana is a good example — the Republican party has been run more like a private club than a political party. It lacks the organization and machinery for delivering the vote.

Ford must necessarily depend largely on direct appeal from the candidate to the voter through media or through central telephone banks, both highly expensive.

Nevertheless, Ford has potential in some areas of the South, primarily because of the ideological appeal his campaign is trying to press.

Although the national polls show Carter's regional lead over Ford as great as 20 percentage points, local polling and a field survey by The Associated Press show Ford within striking distance in Louisiana, with its large Catholic vote and pockets of high conservatism; in Mississippi, with its conservative nature; in South Carolina, home state of Thurmond and a Republican governor, James Edwards; and in Florida, where Ford strategists say they are six points behind and gaining.

Texas and Virginia, where Republicans have shown consistent strength in recent years, are considered toss-up states.

Carter's headquarters disagrees with the Republican claims and says Carter is leading comfortably throughout the South.

Federal agencies set open meetings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dozens of federal commissions and boards are preparing to hold meetings that will open their operations to public view for the first time.

The federal panels are required to begin holding open meetings by next March under the new "Government in the Sunshine" act, which is aimed at opening the business of at least some public agencies to the public.

The new law affects only the 50-odd federal regulatory agencies. It does not apply to executive branch agencies like the White House or to the Congress, which enacted it.

Only the Federal Power Commission and the Consumer Product Safety Commission among major federal regulatory agencies now hold meetings open to the public. But even these two agencies have some adjustments to make to comply with the law.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission, for example, now conducts its votes in secret but will not be allowed to vote privately on most matters in the future.

Spokesmen for several agencies contacted by The Associated Press said study groups have been appointed to consider how to convert to the "sunshine" policy mandated by Congress.

"There are many mechanics to be worked out," said Henry Patrick, a spokesman for the Federal Communications Commission. "For example, we have a room that holds about 100 people. We'll have to decide if we have to expand the room."

He said the FCC is "nowhere near ready" to implement the new law.

However, several other agencies said they plan to comply with the new requirements before the March deadline.

"Our intention is to comply by about early February," said Andy Rothman, a spokesman for the Securities and Exchange Commission. The SEC also has a task force studying how to put the new law into effect.

Rothman said one problem is that "Congress neglected to give us any funds with which to implement the law."
